City repaid $37,500 transit loan

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN) has repaid Des Plaines $37,500 it borrowed from the city in August while the Regional Transportation Authority budget awaited court approval.

The emergency loan, which NORTRAN sought from Des Plaines and 19 other communities it serves, was repaid with interest, said Mayor Charles J. Bolek. The city earned $189.11 during the one-month period of the loan.

NORTRAN, which is funded by the RTA, required $300,000 in emergency loans to continue transportation service to area municipalities. The loans were needed because the RTA budget was approved after the legal deadline and required special court approval before funds could be distributed. The Illinois Supreme Court in August ruled that the budget was legal, and funds earmarked for NORTRAN were released.

NORTRAN provides four local bus routes in Des Plaines serving the north, south, west and southwest areas of the city. Buses leave the vicinity of the Chicago and North Western Ry. station downtown every half-hour during the rush hours and every

State senate rejects school-aid reforms

by STEVE BROWN

The Illinois Senate failed by two votes Friday to pass a series of reforms to the state school-aid formula.

The effort added fresh evidence to predictions that the special session of the Illinois General Assembly called to act on education matters will accomplish nothing.

State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, an assistant minority leader, predicted that the failure indicates the legislature will be unable to pass any of the measures called for by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Final action on changes to the school-aid funding formula was delayed, but Graham said he does not see any other senators changing their votes. The measure failed by a vote of 34-23 with two senators absent. Thirty-six votes were needed for passage.

GRAHAM SAID that efforts were made to pass one part of Walker's accelerated tax collection plan, but that move also failed. Walker has proposed a speedup in the collection of certain sales and income tax receipts, which would give the state $95 million during the current fiscal year.

Graham said the Senate adjourned until Tuesday, but indicated that the full Senate will probably not go back to Springfield until Wednesday.

He indicated the Senate will take a wait-and-see attitude on further legislative action. The Illinois House, which adjourned Wednesday without accomplishing anything, will return Tuesday and attempt to act on the speedup bill.

"I don't think the Democrats in the House will have the votes to pass any bills there," Graham noted.

In reviewing the Senate vote, Graham noted four Republicans joined the Democrats in attempting to pass the formula changes. He indicated some of the defections came because senators seeking reelection were heavily pressured by constituents.

Chicago-bound jet hijacked to Europe

From Herald News Services

Six hijackers, one reportedly "wired" with explosives, hijacked a TWA 727 jetliner bound from New York to Chicago Friday and forced the pilot to fly them to Europe after a refueling stop in Montreal.

In New York, police found a bomb at Grand Central Station they said was connected to the hijacking.

The aircraft, with the passengers still aboard, took off from Mirabel International airport, 40 miles north of Montreal, at 9:38 p.m. Chicago time for a refueling stop in Gander, Newfoundland. Its arrival at Gander was estimated at 11 p.m. Chicago time.

A CONTROL TOWER spokesman at Mirabel said the hijackers had warned they had explosives on board, but stressed there had been no injuries to any of the passengers.

Another control tower spokesman said, "We don't know whether or not they're bluffing about explosives, but we're not going to check."

TWA officials in New York said they were sending a Boeing 707 — a longer range aircraft — to Newfoundland.

There were conflicting reports of the number of passengers on board. TWA in New York said there were 92 — 85 passengers and 7 crewmen. But the Ministry of Transport at Mirabel said there were 44 passengers and 6 crewmen. The Canadian official attributed his figures to the pilot.

A SPOKESMAN from TWA in Chicago, told The Herald 72 of the passengers were to disembark in Chicago before the plane continued to Tucson, Ariz.

Alex B. Reeves of 1536 Potter Rd., Park Ridge, waited during the night for the arrival of his daughter Basia, a stewardess on the flight returning home to celebrate her 25th birthday.

The plane, flight 355, was flying from New York's Laguardia Airport to Chicago when it was hijacked east of Buffalo. It landed at Mirabel International Airport, 40 miles north of Montreal, at 7:45 p.m. Chicago time.

The aircraft took off at 9:38 p.m. Chicago time after refueling. A spokesman for the Mirabel control tower said the hijackers had requested and been given air charts for Europe.

In New York City, police said the bomb squad found a list of demands from a group calling itself "Fighters for Free Croatia" in a locker at the busy commuter center in mid-Manhattan.

Bomb squad officials declined to say why they connected the group to the hijackers.

"THE DEMANDS of the hijackers are all wrapped up with the bomb," a bomb squad spokesman said. "The bomb is a 'pressure cooker' device."

The police spokesman said, however, the demands were undecipherable.

"There are eight pages of silly things — they're completely erratic," he said. "He wants them published in several papers, including the Washington Post, the New York Times and the Los Angeles Times."

The last hijacking in the United States was a Southern Airways jetliner commandeered Nov. 10, 1972, in Birmingham, Ala., and forced to fly to Cuba.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said in New York, "We believe there is one (hijacker) in the cockpit and five in the cabin. We believe the man in the cockpit is wired with some kind of explosives device, but we don't know."

The jetliner left New York at 6:40 p.m. Chicago time and was commandeered about 250 miles east of Buffalo.

Washington man new police chief

Robert P. Derks, a high-ranking official in the federal government's protective service division, Friday was named Arlington Heights police chief. Derks, 40, currently serves as acting assistant commissioner for the Office of Federal Protective Service Management, a division of the General Service Administration in Washington, D.C. He replaces L. W. Calderwood, 72, who retired June 30 after 18 years at the helm of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. Capt. Paul Buckholz has directed the police department since Calderwood's departure. Derk's appointment becomes effective Oct. 18. His salary has been set at $30,000 per year.

Wheeling police ticket quota

Wheeling Police Chief M. O. (Sykes) Horcher has asked his patrolmen to write at least one ticket each per eight-hour shift, but his second-in-command said Friday the chief's request is a "reminder," not an order. Lt. Ted Bracke, who was acting chief in Horcher's absence Friday, said. "We all need to be reminded at times. I wouldn't say it's a direct order that says you must." Horcher sent to officers and patrolmen Tuesday a memorandum citing a recent decrease in motor vehicle violations, and recommended that the village's 16 patrolmen write at least one traffic ticket per shift.

NORTRAN repays $37,500 loan

The North Suburban Mass Transit District has repaid Des Plaines $37,500 it borrowed from the city in August while the Regional Transportation Authority awaited court approval of its budget. The emergency loan, which NORTRAN sought from Des Plaines and 19 other communities it serves, was repaid with interest, said Mayor Charles J. Bolek. The city earned $189.11 during the one-month period of the loan. NORTRAN, which is funded by the RTA, required $300,000 in emergency loans to continue operating. The loans were needed because the RTA budget was approved after the legal deadline and acquired special Illinois Supreme Court approval before the funds could be distributed.

Girl still in serious condition

The 17-year-old victim of a hit-and-run accident in Schaumburg remained in serious condition Friday afternoon in an area hospital, while police filed a second traffic charge against the alleged driver. Stacy Detwiler, 1027 Duxbury Ln., suffered multiple facial injuries when a bicycle she was riding was struck at 9 p.m. Wednesday, allegedly by a pickup truck driven by Vincent M. McFadden, 22, of 333 Hazel Ct., Schaumburg. McFadden, who was charged Wednesday night with fleeing the scene of a personal injury auto accident, was charged Friday with driving on a revoked license. He is free on $500 cash bond.

Auto repair shop burglarized

Burglars stole cash and car accessories valued at $2,000 from a Des Plaines auto repair shop early Thursday, but failed in an attempted break-in at another auto shop in the city early Friday, police reported. Police said burglars pried open a steel exterior door and kicked in a storage room door at the Milex Tune-Up shop, 1714 S. River Rd., between midnight and 6 a.m. Thursday. Reported taken were spark plugs, condensers and a cash box containing $200. Burglars between 4 and 6 a.m. Friday smashed a window on an exterior door to gain entry to the AAA Auto Interiors, 1578 Miner St., but apparently were frightened away by two guard dogs inside the garage, police said. Nothing was reported taken from the auto interior shop.

May help eliminate blighted areas

Tully plan a boon for suburbs?

by KURT BAER

Efforts to revitalize suburban downtowns may get a financial boost from the Cook County Board.

A proposal by County Assessor Thomas M. Tully to lower the tax assessments on blighted commercial property would be an incentive to redevelop old and decaying suburban centers, a Northwest suburban mayor told the county board this week.

"Chicago does not have a monopoly on blighted areas. In many suburban downtowns, expensive land is supporting one-story, 70-year-old buildings and this is not a good use of the land," said Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

IN ARLINGTON Heights, for example, the downtown business district contributes only 1.9 per cent of the village's total assessed valuation, he said.

"Planners and other experts will tell you that a figure of 10 to 12 per cent is a more viable norm for a suburban municipality," Ryan said.

Tully's plan is to lower the tax assessment in specially-designated areas from the normal 33 to 40 per cent of market value to 16 per cent for a five-year-period. The break on assessment would encourage developers to rebuild the properties, he says.

"Cook County needs to remain in a strong competitive position with other states and communities that are trying to lure development away from us," Tully said.

"WE CANNOT LET metropolitan Chicago go the way of New York with urban decay threatening the industrial and commercial strength of the Seaboard," he said.

Drawing on Tully's comparison, Ryan told the county board, "We also cannot let suburban Cook County go the way of Yonkers, N.Y.," a financially-troubled suburb near New York.

Some serious problems stalk Tully's proposal.

Definitions and standards for a "blighted area" have not been spelled out and there is disagreement as to who should have the power to decide if an area qualifies for the lower assessment.

The original proposal gave the power to the assessor. But Ryan and some members of the county board challenged the wisdom of putting such discretionary authority in the assessor's office.

"WHAT IS BLIGHTED should be determined not by the assessor but by the Cook County Board," Ryan said. "The power should rest with the people's most closely elected representatives — in this case, the county commissioners."

There is also a question about the legality of Tully's proposal.

Julian D'Esposito, an attorney hired by the Illinois Assn. of School Boards which opposes lower tax assessments, said the incentive program is an exemption, not a classification of real estate, and exemptions are beyond the power of the county board.

"Because exemptions are limited by the (Illinois) Constitution to homesteads and may be adopted only by the legislature, the proposal is certainly beyond the power of the county board and most probably an unconstitutional exemption," D'Esposito said.

The county board has recessed its hearings on Tully's incentive plan.

Tumor competes for athlete's life

Today

Mike Klein's people

The interview had nearly ended, but one more area demanded exploration. It could not be denied.

So the most difficult question was placed before 16-year-old Jimmy Groszek: Do you ever think about dying?

"The last two days in the hospital that's all I thought about," Jimmy said. "I was prepared for it then. Now I'm still prepared."

Jimmy Groszek, the youngest of three sons in his family, was admitted during early June to Skokie Valley Hospital. Jimmy had just completed his sophomore year at Niles North High School.

EARLY SYMPTOMS caused his doctors to suspect that Jimmy had viral encephalitis, which is an inflammation of the brain.

Jimmy had almost no energy. He required long naps after school. He endured terrible headaches and pressure behind both eyes. Double vision began later.

"When they took the X-rays, they knew it wasn't encephalitis," said Marian Groszek, Jimmy's mother, who became a widow 11 years ago when her husband, Emil, died of cancer.

"They knew it was a brain tumor," she said.

That brain tumor inside Jimmy's head is inoperable. Surgery to remove the tumor could affect his ability to move. Jimmy might become handicapped.

Jimmy was transferred from Skokie Valley to St. Francis Hospital in Evanston. Specialists determined that fluids that cleanse the brain had collected at the front of his skull. Jimmy's tumor would not allow the fluids to circulate freely.

SURGEONS INSERTED a special tube into Jimmy to allow the fluid to drain.

The headaches, the double vision, the pressure behind the eyes . . . those are gone. As Jimmy sat on living room stairs in the family's Skokie townhouse, it was hard to imagine that he could have anything worse than a sniffle.

But that brain tumor remains. To what extent, his doctors do not know. Whether it will continue to grow, they cannot answer.

Jimmy will not learn until November or December whether 30 cobalt treatments he underwent permanently have retarded the tumor.

"The idea of the treatments was to shrink the tumor," Marian Groszek said. "If it grows back . . . that's it."

That day when brain scans reveal his condition will come soon enough. "I don't think about it," Jimmy said. "It's not worth it."

AS IF THESE were not enough, there are other problems. Marian Groszek has no valid medical insurance, to her surprise. She had thought her family was fully covered.

"I had hospitalization, but I went in one year ago to have a kidney removed," Marian said. "I always had high blood pressure and the insurance company didn't want to pay my claim. They said it was a pre-existing condition.

"I never had any trouble with the kidney before," she said, "just the high blood pressure.

"My lawyer is trying to settle with them. He says it's a lost cause. They say I got the insurance by fraud, which was not intentional. I just didn't circle high blood pressure on the application.

"I have close to a $6,000 bill," Marian said. "Jimmy's is already $5,000 without the hospital."

MEDICAL EXPENSES for Jimmy and his mother will total about $15,000.

Mrs. Groszek is employed as a part-time waitress. Her income is supplethat started after her husband's death.

But a portion of those payments will end next February when Paul, Jimmy's older brother who also attends Niles North, turns 18. Another brother, Greg, 22, lives away from home.

There is no way that Marian Groszek can deal with $15,000 in medical expenses. When there should be only concern for Jimmy's health, she also must worry about money.

"My lawyer wanted me to file bankruptcy. I didn't want to," she said. "I'll suffer more later from filing that by trying to pay, even if it takes 20 years."

Other options do exist. But Marian said, "My brother gets mad when I talk about selling this townhouse. We couldn't live anyplace else so cheap."

It's not all disheartening. "Benefit Game for Jimmy Groszek." That's how the tickets read. They're being sold by Jimmy's Niles North hockey teammates.

The tickets advertise Sunday's 7:30 p.m. game at the Skokie Skatium, 9300 Bronx, Skokie.

JIMMY'S HOCKEY team, the Niles North Vikings, will skate to win and raise funds.

A good crowd is expected. Chicago hockey fans always turn out to watch Stan Mikita, the great Black Hawk center.

There will be other Hawks, too, and players who are students at the annual Stan Mikita Hockey School for hearing impaired boys.

The harsh truth is that no guarantees exist for Jimmy Groszek. But he does not live in fear. Jimmy lives every moment to its fullest. He has a great attitude.

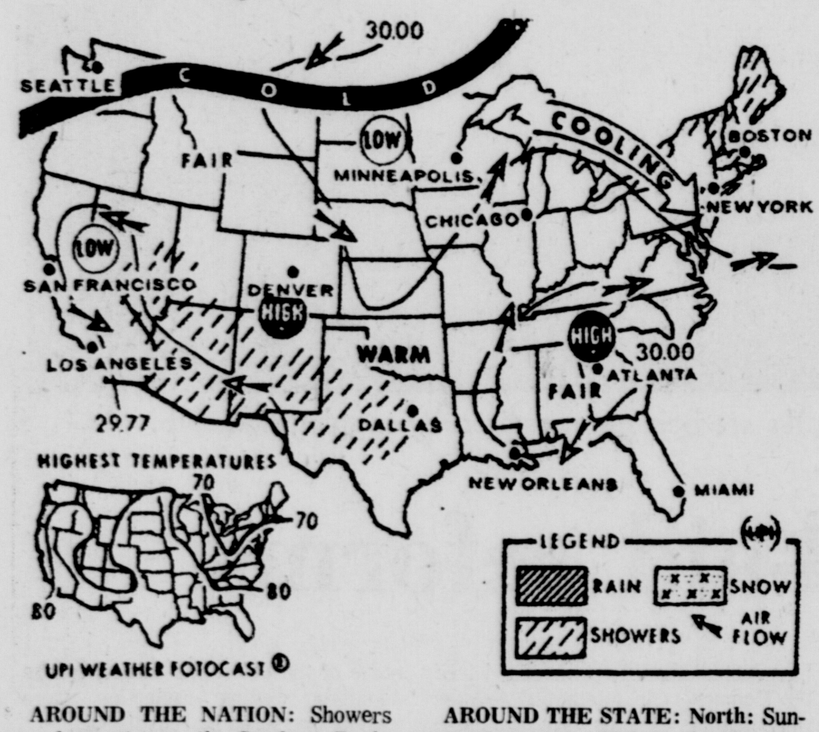

"This couldn't have happened at a worse time," Jimmy said. He spoke firmly and calmly. "Any other time wouldn't have been as bad.

"I was playing the guitar real good. Now I can't play half as good. Plus driver's education. I would have had that class now.

"Let's see, what else," Jimmy said. "My hockey. It ruined my hockey. I feel great, back to normal. Just can't play hockey.

"Guess that will give me more time to concentrate on my guitar," Jimmy said. "I should have been doing that all along."

Swine flu shot dates set statewide

A statewide schedule of dates for swine flu vaccinations has been released by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

"Vaccine will be administered first in the west central portion of the state. From there the program will move to the northeastern portion and will be completed in southeast Illinois," said Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

In suburban Cook County, swine flu shots will be given between Oct. 27 and Nov. 7. Communities are making plans for local immunization clinics.

CHICAGO OFFICIALS have not announced the dates for swine flu vaccinations in the city.

Immunizations will begin in west central Illinois Oct. 5. The final phase of the program in southeast Illinois will begin Dec. 5.

"Due to the limited number of jet injector guns available, we are not able to conduct the program simultaneously in all areas of the state," Ms. Lashof said. Illinois will have 133 jet injector guns available during the program.

Two types of vaccine will be administered in the swine flu program, one for high risk persons — those over 65 and the chronically ill — and one for the remainder of the population.

The vaccine for the high risk groups will be a bi-valent type that will immunize against both swine flu (officially called Type A New Jersey) and the 1975 Type A Victoria flu. The other vaccine, momo-valent, will be for swine flu only.

Retired teachers meet Tuesday

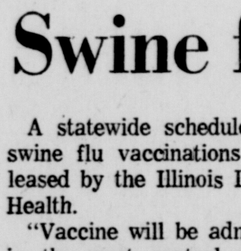

The first meeting of the Retired Teachers Assn. of Northwest Cook County will be held Tuesday in the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

The program at Tuesday's meeting will be about services and advantages offered to retirees. The speaker will be Samuel E. Tapson, senior citizen coordinator in Des Plaines.

National and state dues for retired teachers have been raised from $2 to $3. Total dues are $8, which can be paid Tuesday. Members are urged to bring retired persons who are nonmembers to the September meeting.

Power struggle evident in China, millions mourn

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's 800 million began a week of formal mourning for Mao Tse-tung today, the simmering power struggle among his political heirs broke into the open with demands for further purges of Mao's enemies.

On Friday, millions of Chinese went to work in factories and fields as usual, their mourning for their fallen leader silently expressed in black armbands and white paper carnations. During the night, thousands lined up outside the Forbidden City waiting in gloomy silence to pay their respects.

But even as the official mourning began, the first political salvoes were fired in the battle among Mao's heirs to take up his mantle as leader of the world's most populous nation.

Communist party committees from the nation's three largest cities — Shanghai, Peking and Tientsin — sent messages to the top party, army and government leadership, pledging to carry on the "cause left behind" by Mao and attacking Mao's foe, Teng Hsiao-ping.

The Shanghai message was the most militant, vowing to "deepen the criticism of Teng Hsiao-ping" and continue the power struggle Mao launched to purge the former vice party chairman who once had been heir-apparent to the late Premier Chou En-lai.

"At a time when we were ready to wage a new struggle under the leadership of our great leader Chairman Mao, he left us forever, filling us with grief beyond description," the Shanghai message said.

The Peking committee said it would "rally closely around" the central leadership.

The message from the Tientsin committee made no specific mention of the political struggle, according to excerpts transmitted by the official New China News Agency early Saturday.

Mao's body was to lie in state in Peking's Great Hall of the People until next Friday while his comrades on the party central committee and other leaders of the party, army and government paid their respects along with representatives from various organizations in the capital.

Throughout China, every organization scheduled some sort of memorial service in accordance with instructions laid down by party and government officials.

There was no indication whether diplomats or other foreign residents in Peking would be permitted to pay respects to Mao during the week-long mourning period or to attend a final mass memorial service set for Sept. 18.

As in the past, the Chinese announced that no foreigners from abrorad would be invited to take part in the mourning. But they did not reply immediately to diplomatic inquiries about resident foreigners, who have been permitted in the past to participate in mourning activities for other leaders, Peking sources said in telephone calls to Hong Kong.

Peking remained calm throughout Friday with a steady stream of small groups going to the capital's Tien An Men (Gate of Heavenly Peace) Square to pay tribute to Mao or watch others doing so.

Most stopped briefly and bowed their heads in front of a huge portrait of the only leader the People's Republic of China has ever had in its 27-year history. Many wept while standing, with heads bowed, in front of the portrait, draped with black and yellow bunting.

Bunches of white lilies were placed before the thousands of portraits of Mao adorning the streets of the capital. Youths especially stopped on streets to give a closed-fist salute or make three deep bows, the Chinese expression of devotion and respect.

CHINA'S 800 million began a week of formal mourning for Mao Tse-tung today and even as official mourning began, the first political salvos were fired in the battle of his political heirs.

China's new leader needs military OK

HONG KONG (UPI) — Although Premier Hua Kuo-feng is the nominal head of China's Communist party with the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Hua must have military backing to remain No. 1, China analysts said Friday.

The fact that Hua was named party first vice chairman and premier — the top government post — after the purge of Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping last April makes him the most likely of several possible successors to Mao.

But analysts of Chinese affairs believe that no leader can succeed Mao on more than a transition basis without the support of at least a majority of China's military establishment.

Seizure of power by some military strongman or a civilian with the backing of the military could settle the issue quickly. But it is more likely that the post-Mao structure will not become clear until the party Central Committee thrashes out the issue in full plenary session or calls a new party congress.

History's worst

Air collision kills 176

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — A British and a Yugoslav jetliner collided headon and blew up in the air Friday, killing all 176 persons aboard and hurling bodies and metal to cornfields 30,000 feet below in the worst air collision in history.

Sixth-three persons were aboard the British Trident and 113 aboard the Yugoslav DC9.

Yugoslav officials arrested several persons, including two members of flight control tower, in connection with the disaster. A Yugoslav judge investigating the collision said errors in assessing altitude, perhaps at ground control, probably caused the crash.

Rescue workers picking through the rubble in the cornfields said they found a "black box," possibly belonging to the DC9. The recovery of the device, used to monitor conversations between pilot and tower may help investigators find the cause of the disaster.

"I can firmly say that it was a headon collision. It probably happened because of incorrect assessment of the altitudes of air corridors for the two planes," Judge Vjeceslav Jakovac said.

"Some persons have been arrested and taken into custody. They are being questioned," he said, apparently referring to persons who worked at the flight control tower of Zagreb's Pleso airport, with which the two planes should have been in contact at the time of the collision.

All but one of the 108 passengers aboard the Yugoslav DC9 were West Germans flying home from vacations along Yugoslavia's Dalmatian coast. The British Airways Trident was carrying "a mixed bag of nationalities" from London to Istanbul, according to airlines spokesmen in London.

The planes collided at 30,000 feet in clear sunny skies 20 miles northeast of Zagreb, capital of the Yugoslav republic of Croatia.

Witnesses in the village of Vrbavec told reporters they heard an explosion and looked up to see flaming bodies, baggage and twisted metal tumble from the sky. Wreckage and bodies were scattered over cornfields for miles.

"When I reached the place I saw more than 100 farmers from nearby fields looking at the twisted parts of the British plane and trying to help somebody," motorcycle policeman Gavro Tomasevic said.

"One child was still alive but seconds afterward died. It was too late, nobody could help."

The disaster was the worst air collision in history, surpassing the July 30, 1961 collision between an All-Nippon Airways Boeing 727 and a Japanese air force F86 which took 162 lives. The worst air disaster of all time was the crash of a Turkish DC10 near Paris on March 3, 1974 which killed 345 persons.

In London, British Airways said its plane was carrying 63 persons — 54 passengers and a crew of nine — on a nonstop scheduled flight (BE476) from London to Istanbul.

Ehrlichman ordered to jail; lawyers to appeal decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Friday refused to delay his order that former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman report Sept. 17 and begin serving his sentence in the Daniel Ellsberg case.

Ehrlichman's lawyers immediately took their request for a stay to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, giving notice they were preparing an appeal to the Supreme Court.

District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell turned down the lawyers' motion that he hold up his order revoking Ehrlichman's bond and directing him to start serving the 20-month to five-year prison term. Gesell said the appeals court was the proper forum for the motion.

The Ehrlichman attorneys then asked the appeals court to continue his bond and keep him out of the jail pending a Supreme Court appeal which they hoped to file by next Tuesday.

One of the lawyers, Stuart Stiller, said if the appeals court turned down that plea, one of the Supreme Court justices would be asked to order Ehrlichman kept free until the high court can rule on the case after it opens its new term Oct. 4.

"If the Supreme Court were to reverse his condition after he was in jail it would be a tragedy if he had spent time in jail," Stiller told reporters.

The Ehrlichman lawyers told the appeals court that Special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff authorized them to say he has no objection to allowing Ehrlichman to stay free on bond until the Supreme Court rules.

"It would be improper to permit the incarceration of appellant while there is a possibility that the Supreme Court will reverse his convictions," said their motion to the appeals panel.

This has been the sequence of events:

- Tuesday, Gesell issued his order. At about the same time the same day, the appeals court stayed the effectiveness of its own rejection of Ehrlichman's appeal until Sept. 16 — the day before Ehrlichman was to report for imprisonment under Gesell's order.
- Ehrlichman's lawyers, acknowledging uncertainty on what legal route to take, decided to ask that Gesell stay his order and allow the appeal process to go ahead.
- Turned down by Gesell, the lawyers offered the same motion to the appeals court where the outcome remained uncertain.

Ehrlichman was convicted for his role in the burglary at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding, in an effort to discredit Ellsberg as he went on trial for leaking the classified Pentagon Papers to news media.

In rejecting the Ehrlichman motion, Gesell said:

"The motion to reinstate bond is denied. When defendant was sentenced more than two years ago, he was granted bond pending appeal. He appealed unsuccessfully and rehearing was denied. His bond automatically terminated when the appeal ended.

"The court by its order of Sept. 7 then notified defendant of his place of confinement and report date. No change in defendant's bond status was involved. Any application for further bond must be made at this stage to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia circuit."

Prince Charles to wed: rumors

- Two British newspapers predicted Friday Prince Charles would make Davina Sheffield Britain's next queen. Buckingham Palace sources discounted the possibility. The Daily Mirror said "it was reported" Miss Sheffield, a 25-year-old exdebutante, "will marry Prince Charles, who is due to quit the navy next month after five years." The Daily Mail, in its gossip column, said the two-year romance between the heir to Britain's throne and the lively blonde "will end, according to friends who profess to know, in a marriage when he completes his Royal Navy service next year."
- Songwriter Harlan Howard, awakened early Friday "by a cracking noise," managed to jump to safety before his $200,000 hilltop house in Nashville, burned to the ground. Howard, his 23-year-old daughter, Jennifer and two house guests were in the house at the time. No one was injured. Fire officials did not immediately determine the origin of the fire, but Howard said he thought it may have begun in the den where there was a gas-burning fireplace. Howard's list of hits include "The Chokin' Kind," "I Fall to Pieces," "Heartaches By the Number" and "Too Many Rivers."
- Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, widow of Sen. Robert Kennedy, has been ordered to appear in district court for allegedly tearing up a parking ticket. Officials said the ticket for a parking violation was attached to the Kennedy car last Saturday in Hyannisport by Special Officer John Ebel, a summer patrolman on the police force. He told superiors Mrs. Kennedy tore up the ticket and threw it away in his presence. Mrs. Kennedy was ordered to appear in First District Court Sept. 20 to answer a charge of mutilating a parking ticket.

Hijackers release all hostages

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI) — Pistol-toting hijackers early Saturday released all remaining 71 passengers from nearly 18 hours of captivity aboard a commandeered Indian jetliner but kept hostage the seven-member crew, Pakistan's national news agency said.

The agency said the gunmen, apparently demanding safe passage to Libya, released the passengers from the Indian Airlines Boeing 737 at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday (3 p.m. EDT Friday) — 17½ hours after the hijackers took over the plane in India on a domestic flight en route from New Delhi to Bombay.

The hijackers, believed to number six and reportedly all carrying pistols, and the seven crewmembers remained aboard the pink-tailed airliner sitting on the tarmac at Lahore Airport, the agency said.

The release of the remaining passengers followed several hours of negotiations between the gunmen and Pakistani and Indian officials. The hijackers apparently refused to release the crew members, keeping them as a bargaining tool for the flight to Libya via Saudi Arabia.

The U.S. Embassy in New Delhi said at least one American was aboard the flight but decined to identify him.

The hijackers had earlier released a German couple and their child when the woman began vomiting. An Indian man fainted and was set free. Two other Indians, one of them with a heart condition, also were released.

Senate OKs $5.4 billion for foreign aid

The Senate Friday approved a $5.4 billion foreign aid money bill benefitting mostly the Middle East and sharply reducing amounts the administration requested for countries of southern Africa. The 52-25 vote sent the legislation to a conference committee for resolution of differences with a House-passed bill carrying a price tag $500 million higher. Before final passage, the Senate voted 67 to 10 to eliminate outright a requested $3.5 million for Mozambique, and reduced amounts for Zambia and Zaire from $30 million each to $20 million. Administration officials had argued that assistance to the southern African nations was essential to restoring political stability in the area and preventing racial wars.

School attendance up in Boston

The opening week of court ordered desegreation in Boston ended Friday with increased citywide attendance over last year. On Friday one black student was arrested, another sent home, and a third assaulted. An unidentified white youth punched a black South Boston High senior in the face opening a gash over his left eye needing stitches at Boston City Hospital. The attack on Robert J. Walker, 18, occurred behind the school auditorium less than one hour after School Supt. Marion Fahey toured the building and said she was pleased with the absence of violence inside schools.

Russian defector in U.S.

Russian air force officer Viktor Ivanovich Belenko's first day in the United States Friday was shrouded in as much mystery as his two-year plan to escape his homeland in a MIG25 Foxbat. Belenko, who arrived in Los Angeles Thursday night, reportedly was to be taken to Washington, but federal authorities refused to discuss details of his transfer or his whereabouts. Belenko, a first lieutenant in the Soviet Air Force, was granted political asylum in the United States after landing one of Russia's most advanced planes in northern Japan Monday. He told officials he planned his escape from his base in Siberia for about two years.

Kathleen hits U.S.; 2 known dead

Tropical storm Kathleen swept into the desert and mountain areas of the southwest United States along the Mexican-American border Friday, churning up a 35-foot wall of water in one tiny town and blasting away with 75 mph winds. Two persons were known dead in the worst hurricane-type storm to hit the Southern California-Arizona area since 1939. School classes were abruptly ended, electricity was cut off, main highways blocked for as much as 150 miles, trees fell upon houses and bridges were washed out as the storm moved in from the Pacific. In Ocotillo, Calif., a community mostly of retired people, the 35-foot wave crashed through a ravine in the center of the town, washing a car and its driver from a bridge. Four helicopters were being used to rescue residents.

Suspected looters shot to death

Police shot to death two suspected looters near Cape Town, South Africa Friday and arrested between 350 and 550 colored students holding a sit-down demonstration on their high school's Rugby Field in Port Elizabeth. The two latest fatalities raised to 24 the number of persons killed in two days by riot police. The death toll in 12 weeks of racial rioting across the nation rose to at least 327. Police said two coloreds, the official designation for persons of mixed race, were shot while looting a store in Manenberg, a segregated enclave eight miles from Cape Town.

C&NW awaits RTA decision on equipment

Officials of the Chicago and North Western Ry. Friday said they will wait for official word from the Regional Transportation Authority before responding to reports the RTA has decided not to buy the railroad's commuter equipment.

Reports Friday indicated the majority of the RTA board informally agreed at a closed meeting Thursday to adopt the new stand against direct purchase of the Northwestern's commuter cars.

The RTA and North Western have been negotiating for months on an agreement that would provide RTA funds to the railroad's commuter operations.

Reportedly, the members of the RTA board from Chicago have agreed, over the objections of suburban board members, to offer only a "purchase of service" agreement to the railroad, which would provide a subsidy for commuter operations.

The railroad reportedly has been holding out for outright purchase of the company's commuter cars by the RTA.

A spokesman for the railroad said Friday the company would not respond to unofficial reports of the RTA negotiating position. "Whatever they propose would be infinately more complex (than an outright purchase of service agreement)," a railroad spokesman said. "We will analyze it after we see it."

Dan's been had and says he's mad

"I've been had and I'm mad," Gov. Daniel Walker said Friday as he mailed a $100 check in payment of a fine for illegal hunting. Walker and eight other hunters were cited earlier this month for hunting doves in a field allegedly baited with corn. Baiting for game birds is illegal. Walker and his fellow hunters, including state Rep. Gale Schisler, D-London Mills, said they had not baited the field and speculated they might have been set up. If they had unsuccessfully contested the charge, however, they would have been liable to a $500 fine and up to six months in prison. "Enclosed is my check for $100," Walker said in a letter to federal game officials. "But I cannot and will not pay without adding this: I've been had and I'm mad. I am paying under protest. A regulation (not a law) which penalizes even when there is no knowledge is contrary to American tradition. The federal employes should have simply stopped the shooting before it started. That would have prevented me from unknowingly breaking the regulation — and saved the birds."

Car-A-Day lottery told

The Illinois State Lottery announced Friday it will give away a new car each day for three months in its newest 50-cent game beginning Sept. 21. Called the Car-A-Day-Give-Away, the contest will award a new $6,000 automobile for 91 days, said Lottery Supt. Ralph F. Batch. "Surveys which have been taken of lottery participants indicate that participants want more prizes so, in the public interest, instead of giving one prize of $1,000,000 in the new 50-cent game we are introducing a game which divides the prize pool we would use for a millionaire drawing into 91 winners of cars," Batch said. Seven winners of cars will be drawn every Thursday for 13 weeks beginning Oct. 13. Models will include Pacer, Gremlin, Chevette, Chevelle, Dart, Pinto, Maverick, Granada, Volare, Ventura, Skylark, Comet and Vega. The new 50-cent tickets will contain two portions — the regular red, white, blue and green ticket offering prizes from $5 up to a possible $400,000 — and a green stub for the Car-A-Day-Give-Away.

Chicago teachers, board reach accord

The Chicago Teachers Union and the Chicago Board of Education reached a tentative agreement on a new contract late Friday, authorities said. Union Pres. Robert M. Healey said agreement came on the final unresolved issue — health insurance. Healey said the board agreed there will be no cutbacks in health insurance. Healey issued a veiled threat Thursday night when he said "some sort" of action would be taken by the teachers if the BOE failed to improve its latest contract offer. Healey said the action could include setting a date for a strike vote. The agreement came after an executive session of the board which convened Friday afternoon.

Racing unit delays Maywood sale

The Illinois Racing Board Friday put off to Sept. 20 its consideration of a proposed sale of Maywood Park Race Track to the owners of a Detroit area track. The proposal by Bernard Hartman and Herb Tyler, owners of the Hazel Park Race Track, reportedly consists of $8 million for the purchase of the grandstand, barns and racing dates of the West suburban track. Board members also questioned whether racing dates granted to the Maywood Park Trotting Assn. could be transferred to the new owners as part of the sale.

Woman killed, 10 hurt in blast

One woman was killed and 10 others were injured Friday in an explosion and fire in downtown Blue Island, authorities said. Mrs. Guadaloupe Aguilar, 46, a resident in one of several buildings damaged in the blast was buried under rubble. Her body was recovered several hours after the explosion. She was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital. Witnesses at the scene said the blast and fire occurred in or near a Spiegel catalog order store in the community south of Chicago.

Terrorists plant bombs

Two bombs apparently set by Puerto Rican terrorists Friday blasted a restroom in a restaurant overlooking Lake Michigan and shattered windows on Chicago's Near North Side. There were no deaths or injuries. Police said the bombs may have been placed in the wrong places. The explosions hit the Pinnacle Restaurant atop the 33-floor lakefront Holiday Inn and the Nimpex Building on La Salle Street. The Nimpex blast came moments after a woman telephoned the Chicago bureau of United Press International and said bombs would go off in the cause of Puerto Rican independence.

5 parishes to offer classes in religion, personal growth

Harper panel report on Lahti criticized

by JOHN N. FRANK

A Palatine resident who requested an investigation into Harper College Pres. Robert Lahti's personal use of college vehicles says he is not satisfied with the conclusions of the special investigative committee.

David Bone, 353 N. Morris Dr., Palatine, who requested in August that the college prohibit the use of college vehicles by college personnel, said the report issued by the special committee was a "copout."

The report, presented to the Harper Board of Trustees Thursday, stated that although Lahti admitted twice to using college vehicles for personal business, "considering the time frames and the scope of usage, there is no pattern of abuse."

BONE SAID the committee not only was copping out but also was extremely defensive.

Bone's wife, Jan Bone, said the actions of the special committee have made her seriously consider running for a seat on the Harper board next spring.

"Harper is not a private kingdom, it's an institution for the benefit of the taxpayers," Mrs. Bone said.

Mrs. Bone said she is,"appalled at the insensitivity and arrogance of the chairman (Harper Trustee Robert Rausch) of the special committee."

Rausch, in presenting his report to the board of trustees, said the report probably would not be agreeable to some citizens who addressed the special committee.

"WE OWE NO apology to anyone, we owe only continued quality education to our citizens," Rausch said.

After Rausch concluded his remarks, Trustee William Kelly moved that all of Rausch's comments be included in the minutes of the meeting and that the board endorse the remarks.

The board unanimously voted to endorse the remarks.

The committee's report recommended that the board's policy committee "review the desirability of introducing statements into policy that would give our chief administrative officer (Lahti) sufficient leeway to make executive decisions in those areas where college policy is not clear or where specific situations do not readily fall into a given policy area."

The recommendation followed one calling for review of "Harper travel policy with a view to further definition of situations in which travel other than coach class may be clearly and unequivocally acceptable."

The recommendations followed the committee's findings that Lahti's use of first class air travel five times during a 22-month period in violation of college policy stipulating coach travel on college business "were apparent departures from the letter of college policies but were dictated by obvious common sense."

Rausch aso chairs the policy committee that will consider the special committee's recommendations.

HOWEVER, ridership on the Des Plaines locals has been sagging and the city is in jeopardy of losing routes if the number of riders does not increase.

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, chairman of the city's special transportation committee, said the north and southwest routes are having the most difficulty.

Ridership on all four routes is below the break-even point, according to NORTRAN. Since the local service began in Des Plaines Dec. 1, 1975, together the routes have averaged 1,000 a week. Ridership of 6,000 is needed.

Saturday service and service after 6 p.m. during the weekdays already has been dropped as a money-saving step. Route adjustments also are under consideration to aid the troubled transportation system.

hour during the rest of the day. The buses run five days a week from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

HOWEVER, ridership on the Des Plaines locals has been sagging and the city is in jeopardy of losing routes if the number of riders does not increase.

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, chairman of the city's special transportation committee, said the north and southwest routes are having the most difficulty.

Ridership on all four routes is below the break-even point, according to NORTRAN. Since the local service began in Des Plaines Dec. 1, 1975, together the routes have averaged 1,000 a week. Ridership of 6,000 is needed.

Saturday service and service after 6 p.m. during the weekdays already has been dropped as a money-saving step. Route adjustments also are under consideration to aid the troubled transportation system.

Popularity of meditation concerns religious leaders

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

Transcendental Meditation, the supposedly life-enhancing, awareness-expanding system of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi has taken a firm hold in the United States — much to the dismay of many Christian religious leaders.

Supporters of the system of meditation and thought, first popularized by the Beatles singing group, make several claims for the practice: that it is not a religion and that it provides followers with a way to ease stress and improve serenity.

Some public schools, with the aid of federal, state and local tax dollars, have instituted TM courses for high school students.

BUT A GROWING number of religious officials are concerned about TM, particularly because they doubt its claim to be non-religious.

The issue is joined over the question of what is religion in this increasingly secularized world. As traditional faiths seem to lose their influence on many people, a variety of seemingly secular movements have sprung up, many of them with religious trappings or overtones, offering many of the same benefits and goals as more traditional religions offer.

On the TM front, the most recent expression of concern came when the General Presbytery (convention) of the Assemblies of God church adopted a statement labeling the practice "a treacherous substitute" for the Biblically-based experience of the Holy Spirit "and is no less harmful than is idolatry."

The million-member Pentacostal group made it clear it believes TM "is a religious activity" based on the Hindu religion of its founder, Yogi Maharishi.

IN THE STATEMENT, the Assemblies of God said there were a number of areas in which TM is contrary to Bible doctrines, including its teachings about God, reality, man and salvation. It denies the existence of a personal God, it said, and sees man as his own savior, thus allowing no room for mercy and grace.

According to the Assemblies of God, TM also involves some psychological dangers.

It offers "quick and easy" solutions to anxiety problems without going to the root of the problem. "It ignores the possible cause of psychological stress, offering only temporary relief."

It may well be that the nation is on the verge of a "great debate" about what it considers religion to be and the role various religious movements should play in the public life. And the stakes — financial and ideological — are very high.

Weddings

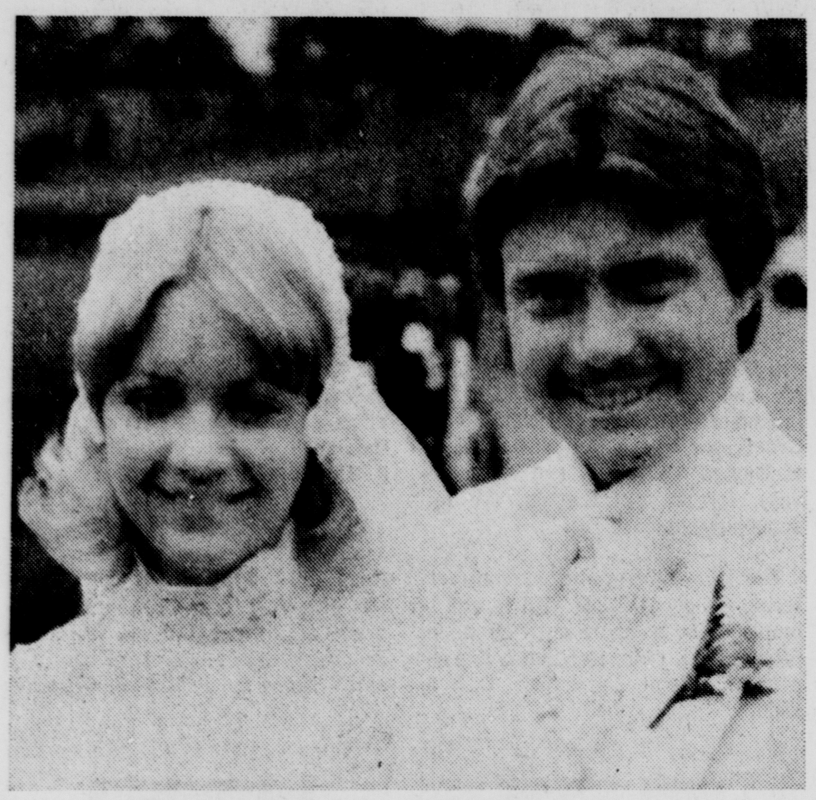

Myra Jean Peterson–Sam Skobel Jr.

Aug. 14 was a special day for Myra Jean Peterson of Sheffield, Ill., and Sam Skobel Jr. of Mount Prospect. Not only did they exchange marriage vows that morning in South Church, Mount Prospect, but Myra Jean celebrated her birthday that day.

The bride is the daughter of Austin L. Peterson of Sheffield and Sam the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Skobel.

For her marriage Myra Jean chose an old-fashioned gown of white chiffon with lace trim. A Juliet cap trimmed in lace held her fingertip veil and she carried a mixed bouquet of roses, stephanotis, statice and baby's breath.

Attending the bride were her sister, Mary Jane Dorff of Henry, Ill., as matron of honor and Sheryl Butts, Chicago; Helen Smith, Walnut, Ill.; and Sharon Maupin, Princeton, Ill., as bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in sea green and white flowered voile cape dresses and wore white picture hats. Each carried a white wicker basket of mixed flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Skobel Jr.

SAM'S BROTHER, Stephen, was his best man, and ushers included his cousin, Jim Buchanan of Hillside, Ill.; Chris Rollins, Quincy, and Joe Wood, Ipava, Ill.

One hundred guests attended the reception in Itasca Country Club, for which the groom's aunt baked a special Russian wedding cake.

After a week's honeymoon in Ocho Rios, Jamaica, the newlyweds are living in an Arlington Heights apartment.

Myra Jean, who attended Illinois State University, graduated from Western Illinois with a degree in home economics. Sam, a Prospect High School graduate, also graduated from Western in marketing after attending Triton and Harper Colleges. He is employed by Osco Drug in Barrington.

Debra Westhusing–Michael Konicek

A folk choir from the bridegroom's parish in Norridge sang the mass, accompanied by trumpet, guitar and French horn, when Debra J. Westhusing and Michael R. Konicek were married Aug. 14 at St. Thomas of Villanova Church, Palatine. The couple wrote their own vows for the 2:30 p.m. double ring service.

Debra's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elden Westhusing of Palatine, escorted her down the aisle, and the groomsmen escorted the bridesmaids.

Debra and Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Konicek, met while attending college in Winona, Minn. Debra, a '71 graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, received a B. S. in nursing from Winona State University this year, while Michael got his B. A. in psychology from St. Mary's College in 1974. He now attends Loyola University studying for a master's in industrial relations while Debra works at Evanston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Konicek

FOR HER WEDDING Debra was attired in a gown of white silk organza with lace applique accents. Her Juliet headpiece holding a fingertip veil also had lace trim. She carried a mixed bouquet.

The four attendants wore pastel print jersey gowns with jackets in pastel shades of yellow, pink, peach and mint green. Their white picture hats were banded in colors to match their dresses. Their bouquets were carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The bride's sister Nancy was maid of honor and another sister, Susan, was a bridesmaid. Susan Brueske, Plainview, Minn., and Susan Karli, Waukon, Iowa, were her other attendants.

MICHAEL HAD John Bello of Norridge as best man. Groomsmen were Dominic Burki, Norridge; David Schottler, Austin, Minn.; and John Soucheray, Mahtomedi, Minn. The bride's two brothers, Mike and Larry, served as ushers.

After an evening reception for 200 guests at the Sheraton-Walden, the couple spent a week's honeymoon at a lodge in Montreal, Canada. They live in Evanston.

Jane Anne Stalker– Glenn W. Upland

The Edwin Upland family of Palatine was in Barrington, R. I., the weekend of Aug. 14 for the wedding of Glenn William Upland and Jane Anne Stalker, daughter of the Clayton R. Stalkers.

Glenn and his bride are college students in this area and are making their home in Hoffman Estates. He will graduate in January in electronic engineering at DeVry Institute of Technology, Chicago. Jane is taking a dietetic technician course at Harper College and also works in the Harper library.

They were married in afternoon, double ring rites in St. Luke's Church and greeted guests later at a reception at Rhode Island Country Club, also in Barrington. A honeymoon on Cape Cod followed.

JANE HAD HER sisters as attendants, Mrs. James Fox of Waltham, Mass., as matron of honor and Ellin and Louise Stalker as bridesmaids. The three wore citrus colored halter dresses with matching jackets, Mrs. Fox in melon and the bridesmaids in lime and lemon. Each carried a bouquet of roses, yellow daisies and baby's breath.

White jersey with pearl-encrusted lace bodice and cuffs was Jane's choice for her bridal gown, and with it a matching headpiece and floor-length veil. White roses and ivy were in her bouquet.

Glenn, who is a graduate of Palatine High, chose Gregory Sell of Palatine as best man. Groomsmen were James Virginelli, Schaumburg and James Weber, Hoffman Estates; ushers were John Brutus, Chicago, and the bride's brother, Thomas, who also gave a reading during the ceremony.

Donna Jo Andersen, daughter of the James Andersens, Arlington Heights, designed and made her wedding gown for her Aug. 14 marriage to Sidney L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, Terre Haute, Ill.

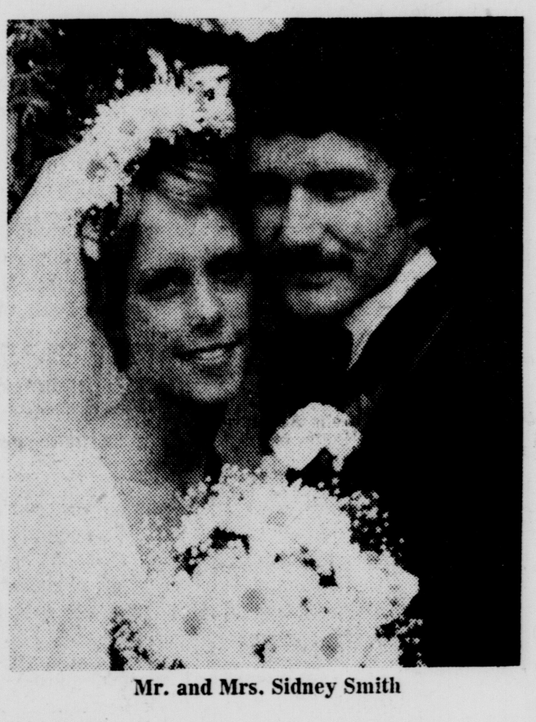

The 10:30 a.m. ceremony was held at Our Lady of the Wayide Church, Arlington Heights and a luncheon reception followed at the Arlington Heights Elks Club.

Old oak furniture brings a pretty price today

Collecting with Grace Carolyn

Did you ever wish you could go back to a certain time, a certain year — just for a little while? I do, and not because I long for the good old days. They weren't all that good. But I would like to go back to 1946, with a few hundred dollars in my pocket.

That's the year I bought my round oak table for $5, my commode (a small chest with doors and drawers) for $1 and my square stand table for 75 cents. They were all made of oak wood, and who wanted it? Nobody but poor newlyweds such as we. (I'm not complaining, for it was those early marriage days of scrounging that gave us the antique fever and 30 years of an enjoyable business-hobby-avocation.)

BUT IN THOSE days, few people wanted old oak furniture. They wanted either sleekly new or period walnut, mahogany and rosewood. No one dreamed that oak furniture would become the antique of 1970, with round dining tables going for hundreds of dollars and hall trees such as the one pictured for almost as much.

Back at the turn of the century, oak was popular because it was so durable and plentiful. It could be used without prolonged drying, and could be pressed, carved, straight or quarter-sawn for fanciness, veneered and bent. It was the furniture for the middle classes, produced by the millions of pieces in every form and for every use imaginable.

THEN, IN THE '30s, oak became unfashionable. The ornately carved and pressed chairs, bureaus, commodes and hall trees together with so many other fanciful (but curiously functional) designs, gave way to Art Deco streamlining. The oak was relegated to the attic, basement or to the Good Will or Salvation Army stores.

Manufacturers of oak furniture of the turn of the century described it as the finest of all cabinet woods: durable, rigid, able to take the hardest use. It did. We are still eating every night from the round oak table we bought in 1946 for $5; it is still as solid and uncompromising as it was then and has been for 75 years. It has survived hundreds of birthday and anniversary parties, a zillion smorgasbords, many moves, dripping candle wax, homework projects, bird house making, paper doll cutting, spilled everythings, sewing projects, typewriter poundings, cards and games uncountable, and still looks just as good as it did 30 years ago when we refinished it. We are talking about refinishing it again — some day.

THE HALL TREE or costumer in the picture (from Early American Museum, Mahomet, Ill.) is a typical quarter-sawn and plain-sawn oak piece with a lift-up bin for boots or whatever, with four brass colored metal coat and hat hangers. A similar one is listed in my oak furniture price guide at $150. I think you would be lucky to find one at that price, for I have seen them for up to $250. The more ornate pieces, with carvings of lions' heads and feet, leaves, flowers, etc., would command higher prices.

It all just goes to prove that one should hold onto everything. Don't throw anything away. You'll either be known as the neighborhood recluse-eccentric and be carried off to the funny farm or end up with a fortune 30 or 40 years hence.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Woman reader asks when fertility ends

Could you tell me at what age a woman quits bearing children? Can she become pregnant when she is going through the change of life and more than 51 years old? Can a woman at this age get pregnant when she hasn't had a monthly period for two months or more? I'll be waiting to hear from you real soon.

This is a frequent question. To start with there is no record of any woman ever having a baby after age 56. Change of life babies are frequent because women wrongly think they can no longer get pregnant.

Your doctor can give you a better idea in your own individual case. You shouldn't assume on your own that you cannot get pregnant unless you are through the menopause and have not had a period for two years. Some doctors think one year without periods is sufficient, but if you don't want to follow the two-year interval, I would suggest you ask your doctor in regard to your own particular case. He may be able to tell you more on the basis of an examination.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Others who want this issue can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I have a granddaughter with Tetralogy of Fallot. She's just 14 months old and weighs 17 pounds.

The doctors say operate as soon as possible as her condition is deteriorating. They say the valve is becoming tighter and the hole enlarging.

From what I've read on the subject I think the child is too small to stand such an operation. But how long could she live without it? What can you tell me about this problem? I read she should be at least 5 years old and weigh 40 pounds before surgery.

Tetralogy of Fallot is a birth defect of the heart and one of the best known types of defects. The two most typical aspects of the defect are obstruction of the pulmonary artery that carries blood to the lungs and an opening between the right and left side of the heart (ventricular septal defect). This, with some other variations, causes unoxygenated blood to be shunted to the left side of the heart and causes the blue discoloration called cyanosis.

Now it is nice to be able to wait until the child is optimal in size, but the degree of the defect makes a lot of difference on the decision the doctors have to make. I presume the obstruction to the pulmonary artery is from an overgrowth of tissue just beneath the valve, and the progression of this overgrowth is increasing the obstruction To make the point clear, if the obstruction were total, there would be no way circulation could be continued. So naturally the doctors are concerned with the degree of obstruction. The more severe the obstruction the more unoxygenated blood is shunted to the left side of the heart.

The location and severity determine the course and time for treatment. I would suggest you trust the doctors' judgment as they have a lot of complex information that has suggested the best course of action to them. In some types of defects it is necessary to operate at once, soon after birth, so there is no hard and fast rule on age or size as you have read.

Vegetable gardeners source of marigold tip

Dear Dorothy: You surprised me with your comment that people plant marigolds in their vegetable gardens. I've heard of it in rose gardens to keep down aphids, but that's been about it. Can you tell me where you got this information? — Mrs. Jason R. Glass

It came first from readers who keep vegetable gardens. Then I read it in publications issued by those deeply interested in environmental concerns. The gist of this material says that the pungent odor of the blossoms not only repels aphids but that the root system discourages nematodes and other such destroyers in vegetable gardens. It came as no surprise because our next-door neighbor, Arthur Burdorf, used to give me marigolds and boast of their effectiveness. I happen also to love the pungent odor and the dainty little flower.

Dear Dorothy: I was trying to get the top off a bottle of vanilla when our neighbor took it out of my hands, turned it upside down and set it down hard on the table. It came undone easily. Works on any bottle or small jar. By the way, your confusion about watering African violets amuses me. How does Mother Nature water them? I always water them like I do any other plant.—Edna Rogers

Dear Dorothy: I can offer a quick relief treatment for bee or wasp stings. It isn't recommended for those who are allergic to such bites because they need special treatment. But for anyone who just gets the sting and the swelling, applying wet tobacco to the bitten spot works great. First time I was stung in the office a co-worker tore open a cigarette and wet it and after the makeshift poultice was on about five or 10 minutes, it stopped hurting and never got sore. This ought to be good for those who are frequently outdoors. I imagine it would work on any kind of insect sting or bite as the nicotine seems to draw out the poison.—Katherine Finnis

Dear Dorothy: Saw your hint about getting the core out of iceberg lettuce by giving it a couple of whacks on the counter. This would be a good practice in our home demonstration kitchen if it wouldn't bruise the head. Does it? — Joan Pyle, Home Economist

Try it. Not only does it do the job simply, but it will satisfy those who think you shouldn't use a knife on lettuce.

Media image of women talk spurs Juniors into late coffeeklatsch

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

It was past eleven, and most of the Mount Prospect Juniors had already returned home to their husbands and families after an unusually lengthy organizatonal meeting this week. But those who poured another cup of coffee and pulled up their chairs for a discussion of the evening's program were soon replacing kindergarten and new hairstyles with sexist car salesmen and suburban isolation, and the janitor had to issue a gentle reminder before they reluctantly headed home.

Speaker Barbara Lund, professor of women's literature at Harper College, had confessed she was a little apprehensive about the reception her feminist speech on media images of women would receive that evening. After all, most of the young women seemed solidly entrenched in the suburban role of wife and mother, and a minority worked outside the home — not exactly a gathering of radical feminists to shout "right on" after her quotations from Germaine Greer and Erica Jong.

But nods and laughter greeted most of Mrs. Lund's speech and slide presentation, and her contention that the media shows the fair sex consuming, trying to be beautiful, and giggling as they wipe a dirty stove seemed to be supported by her audience.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Lund, the wife makes 75 per cent of a family's buying decisions, and the Madison Avenue image of an attractive woman is the most effective selling point in the book. So by cultivating women as glossy-haired, wet-lipped and mindless, the media are portraying them to be full of "vivacity and idiot happiness . . . and if the veneer ever appears tousled, it's restored by a new washing powder or a bouillon cube," she said.

Quoting from several feminists and bolstering her arguments with the advertisements themselves, Mrs. Lund contended that today's young woman learns to view herself as a sex object with a hairless body and seductive mouth, but at the same time, she feels guilty and shameful because she knows that Marilyn Monroe image is unattainable.

"We've always been required to put the needs of our husband and children first," Mrs. Lund complained. "Lord help us if we're ever angry . . . then we're bitches," she added with a wry smile.

"We're expected to take care of that ring around the collar . . . why no one ever tells the husband, 'Why don't you wash your dirty neck?' I'll never know," she said.

PRETTY HEADY stuff for traditional women's club fare, but the the feminist movement has started to come out of the coffeehouses and into the split levels of suburbia.

The lively discussion topics ran the gamut from a car salesman's indifference to a mother-in-law's lack of identity after her seven children left home, and at the end one woman asked for some answers.

"It's been a disruptive evening," she said with a smile . . . "what do we do about it now?"

"That's the whole point," replied Mrs. Lund. "There are no answers, but at least you've got the questions. We're making progress."

This is the first fall meeting of the group, planned as an informal coffee. Interested women are invited and babysitting will be provided. The church is located at 605 W. Golf Rd., the phone 439-0950.

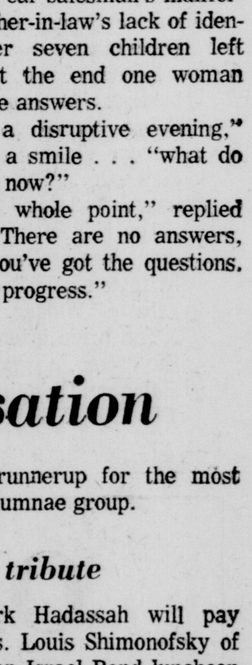

Kappa Kappa Gamma's Arlington Heights Alumnae open the year with two coffees next Wednesday, one at 10 a.m. and another at 8 p.m., both in the home of Mrs. James Gelhaar of Mount Prospect. A preview of the groups Oct. 23 gift boutique will highlight the get-togethers. All new alums in the area are invited and may contact Mrs. Charles Christie, 439-1128, or Mrs. Thomas Nelson, 991-3769, for information.

At the sorority's recent national convention, the local Kappas were named first runnerup for the most outstanding alumnae group.

Ask Andy

Weedkillers are highly selective

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to S. I. Hardesty, 14, of Hobart, Ind., for this question:

HOW DOES WEEDKILLER KILL WEEDS AND NOT GRASS?

Many weeds are quite beautiful in their own right, but some are downright ugly. Such weeds do nothing to enhance the beauty of a lawn and, if left unchecked, can multiply so rapidly that at season's end there is little lawn left.

There are countless varieties of weeds, as well as many kinds of chemical weedkillers. Some weedkillers kill all vegetation regardless of type. These are frequently used in parks, school grounds and other places where plant growth is so vigorous it threatens to overtake pathways, basketball courts and other paved areas. Other chemical weedkillers are highly selective, designed to snuff out perhaps just one or two specific weeds. In this case, only the particular weed is vulnerable to the substance, while other plants resist its effects.

In recent years selective hormone sprays, which are organic compounds, have been used with great success. Some upset the normal growing process in weeds, causing such varied reactions as withering, overgrowing or lack of blossom formation. Other hormone-type sprays affect the formation of chlorophyll within the plant.

Generally speaking, broad-leaved plants are sensitive to selective weedkillers, while many narrow-leaved plants, such as the grasses, are not seriously affected. Stubborn weeds like dandelion and oxalis are best controlled with weedkillers especially designed for them.

Weedkillers are potent substances and should always be kept in a place well out of the reach of children. Also, Also care should be taken to use nontoxic chemicals if you have pets or wildlife visitors in your yard. One more caution: be sure to follow the directions to the letter. Too much weedkiller can seriously damage a lawn or garden for quite a while.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

WIGGLY WEAVING

Pick two sheets of different colored construction paper. Cut across the short end of one sheet to make weft strips one-half to one-inch wide.

Draw a pencil line across the width of the other sheet. Make it about one inch from side A. Starting at side C, draw wiggly lines up to the pencil line. Make them about ¾ inch apart. Cut along the lines to make the warp strips.

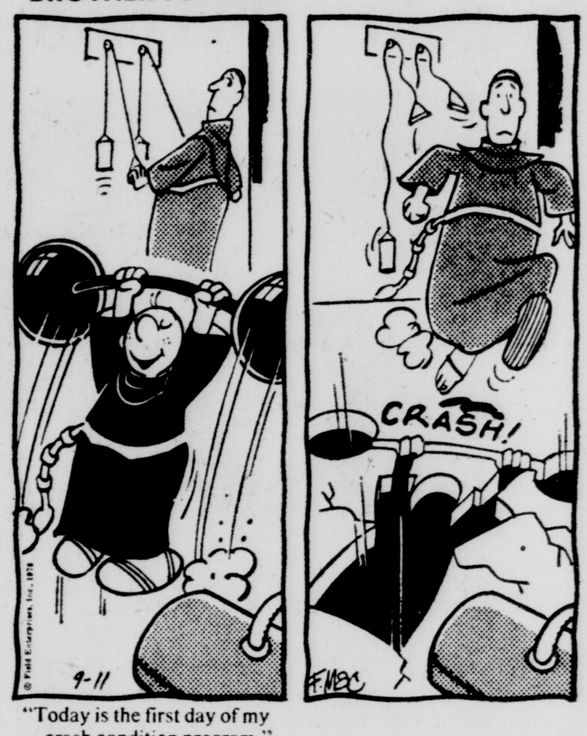

Take a strip of the other color. Starting at side B, weave over one, under one down to the bottom. Continue until the sheet is covered.

Next time you may want to change your design by 1) using patterned paper such as gift wrap or wallpaper, 2) making the short weft strips different widths or with wiggly edges, 3) weaving over two, under three or some other pattern.

Easy pickings for 'creepers'

Business offices—thief's delight

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — A man walked into a downtown Washington office recently, introduced himself as a building inspector and said he was worried about some drooping ceiling panels. While the staff looked on, he used a broom handle to prod the panels, then concluded with some alarm: "This ceiling is unsafe. I think it would be best if everyone left while I repair it. And don't slam the door.

The inspector turned out to be a thief. Within minutes he had looted every valuable he could carry.

Theft from business has become one of the most popular, and easy, of criminal occupations. Of the six million larcenies reported to the FBI annually, the guess is that 17 per cent of them are from office buildings. Astonishingly, many take place during office hours under the noses of unsuspecting employes by brash and often brilliantly innovative thieves whom law enforcement people call "creepers."

CREEPERS? THE term comes from the ability of the culprits to operate with a kind of visual stealth. Many creepers are kids in sneakers, posing as delivery boys, who leave much less than they take.

To illustrate: A lad enters a reception room carrying a box. He says it's for the Acme Manufacturing Co. The receptionist says the kid has made a mistake, that her firm is the Acme Produce Co. Oh, damn, the kid grumps, "well does anyone know where the other company is?" The receptionist offers to look it up in the phone directory and turns her back. At that moment the lad puts his box (false bottom) over the woman's purse, which she won't miss until it's too late.

But the tennis shoe analogy does not do total justice to the sly methods of operation which many creepers encorporate. There is nothing of the kid's stuff in a man who will pose as a fire marshal, or a custodian, in order to get his loot. In New York police say various businesses have been targeted by a fellow in a postman's uniform, complete with a mail pouch to carry out the goods.

Some creepers wear shoes by Pucci. They plan operations and hire lesser felons to carry the loads. Typically, a creeper with class will pose as a salesman to size up prospective office buildings. They diagram. They find out the lunch and coffee times when staffs are the thinnest. They check personnel for alertness. Then they send their squads in to rip off the most likely locations.

THE CARELESSLY available purse, moreover, is the least of the damage. Lt. Arif Mosrie, who heads the Office Theft unit of the Washington, D.C. Police Dept., says expensive machinery is coveted most by the creeper. How can an outsider nab a costly, bulky piece of office equipment? Because nobody suspects him. During the Democratic National Convention in New York, with hundreds of police and federal officers around, one newspaper lost three electric typewriters in two days. The thieves just picked them up and walked away, never being questioned.

Sometimes, says Mosrie, the creepers have inside accomplices who smooth the way. More depressing, he adds, is the fact that creepers are assisted on the outside by accomplices of a different feather: otherwise honest people who make work for the thugs by purchasing their boodle.

"If people wouldn't buy," says Mosrie, "thieves wouldn't steal. But unfortunately, many people can't turn down a good deal. If a thief peddles a stolen typewriter at half its original price, it's tempting. We've had an experience in Washington with one attorney who stocked his whole office this way."

Many police officers would like to see a national education campaign concerned with advising honest people how they often assist dishonest people. Lacking this, however, Mosrie says there are many less-involved steps office staffs can take to protect themselves from the creeper and his friends. "Use common sense, for one thing. Every stranger in an office should be suspect, and their identities checked." He suggests the best identity check is a quick phone call to the business employing the stranger. If he won't provide a phone number for that purpose, he should be escorted to the door.

Other precautions:

DO NOT allow the receptionist to leave her post, even briefly, without a replacement. Do not leave purses, or suit coats containing wallets, in unattended rooms. Keep all expensive items of small size, such as calculators, in drawers. Do not merely turn the safe combination dial to zero when unused, even a child can open it thus. If the office has a backdoor burglar alarm, do not disconnect it during the day. Engrave all office equipment with recorded identity numbers.

Perhaps the best protection is to ask the local police for advice on how staffs can defend the office turf. Then again, perhaps not. A St. Louis con tells of the time he received a call from a "businessman" who wanted to know exactly what to do to secure his office. "I told him everything I knew," says the con, "then a little while later we arrested this same guy. Turned out he was a creeper himself, and was just checking up on how to avoid our latest traps."

Stock market bounces back; Dow at 988.36

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, rebounding from early profit taking pressures, held on Friday to register small gains and cap a lackluster week in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than three points at the outset, snapped a two-day losing streak by gaining 1.49 points to 988.36. It lost 6.07 points Thursday and 0.75 for the week.

The NYSE common stock index added 0.14 to 55.86 and the average price of a common share increased nine cents. Advances topped declines, 779 to 591, among the 1,863 issues crossing the tape. The 493 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty.

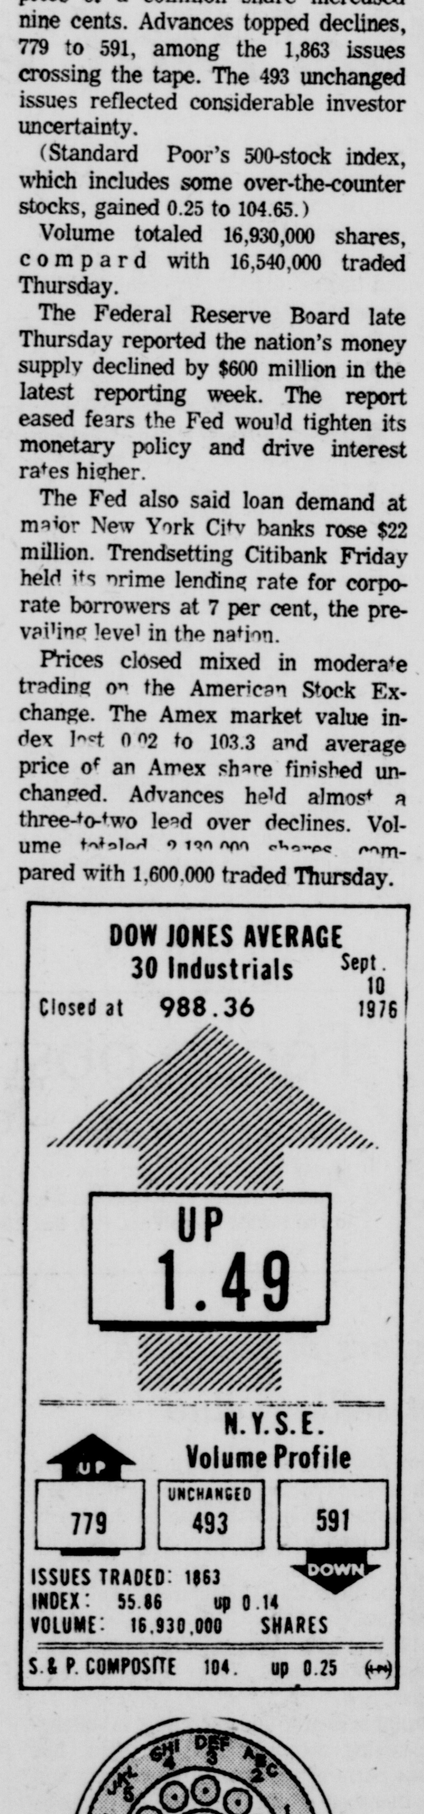

(Standard Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.25 to 104.65.)

Volume totaled 16,930,000 shares, compard with 16,540,000 traded Thursday.

The Federal Reserve Board late Thursday reported the nation's money supply declined by $600 million in the latest reporting week. The report eased fears the Fed would tighten its monetary policy and drive interest rates higher.

The Fed also said loan demand at maior New York City banks rose $22 million. Trendsetting Citibank Friday held its prime lending rate for corporate borrowers at 7 per cent, the prevailing level in the nation.

Prices closed mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index lost 0.02 to 103.3 and average price of an Amex share finished unchanged. Advances held almost a three-to-two lead over declines. Volume totaled 2,130,000 shares, compared with 1,600,000 traded Thursday.

Ford offers pay increase of 9%

Ford Motor Co. Friday offered its 170,000 hourly workers wage increases of nearly 9 per cent in a new three-year contract. But the United Auto Workers union said the firm's second package still might not offer enough to avoid a strike Tuesday.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock emerged from a two-hour bargaining session, the first in two days, and said he no longer was optimistic that a strike could be averted. Ford is the target firm that must establish a basic auto industry contract or face a strike. Faced with a rejection of its original offer Aug. 31, Ford proposed a "modified" contract package Friday.

The new offer drops most of Ford's demand for workers to pick up part of the cost for employe health insurance. But the No. 2 carmaker made no concessions in another field — the union's demand for more paid days off.

Postal Service subsidy approved

The House Friday gave final congressional approval of a $1 billion subsidy for the deficit-ridden U.S. Postal Service and included a ban until March 15, 1977, on rate increases or cuts in service. The measure, approved earlier by the Senate by voice vote, was passed 276-33 and sent to President Ford for his expected approval.

Backers of the measure said it was only a "stopgap" effort until a special commission created in the bill recommends by the March date a permanent solution to the postal problems, with the possibility the service would be returned to complete congressional control.

Congress gave up running the postal service in 1970, setting it up as a quasi-independent agency operated by a board of governors and a rate commission. The service incurred widespread congressional opposition when it proposed earlier this year the closing of small, rural post offices as an economy measure. It eventually dropped the plan.

Senate OKs $3.9 billion for jobs

The Senate Friday approved $3.9 billion for a public works program to create 300,000 jobs in cities hard-hit by unemployment. The Senate voted $500 million more than the House and the differences will have to be compromised in negotiations between the two chambers.

Of the total, $2 billion is for grants for various state and local public works projects; $1.2 for revenue sharing antirecession programs; and $700 million for additional waste treatment works construction grants. President Ford vetoed the $3.9 billion authorization for the jobs program but was overriden in the Senate 73-24 and in the House 310 to 96.

No hope seen for consumer bill

Sponsors said Friday the controversial Consumer Advocacy bill has virtually no chance of passage this year, conceding defeat to threats of filibuster and veto. The bill — backed by Ralph Nader — would establish an Office of Consumer Advocacy to represent consumer interests in federal agency proceedings, receive consumer complaints and research consumer problems. Besides the heavy legislative work load that faces Congress in the three weeks remaining to it, supporters of the bill said Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., was virtually certain to filibuster against the consumer bill if it came to debate. Allen has killed the measure before that way.

In addition, the supporters said there was a strong possibility President Ford would veto the bill anyway, and there is no possibility that veto could be overridden.

Alaskan pipeline to open on time

Disputing claims of sloppy work on the Alaska oil pipeline, the Transportation Dept. reported Friday the pipeline's builders are fixing substandard welds and the pipeline should open on time next year. Deputy Transportation Sec. John Barnum dismissed criticism by House investigators that his fact-finding team's pipeline evaluation was inadequate, and denied refusing to give the congressional team a copy of his report.

"We do not know of any problems that will keep the pipeline from being completed (on schedule) and oil from flowing through it by the end of (next) July," Barnum said.

Collective bargain in most jobs

Two of every five salaried professions in a nonmanagerial capacity are represented by collective bargaining agents, according to The Conference Board.

They include professionals in education, government service and nonprofit organizations as well as 16,000 doctors belonging to 26 organizations committed to collective bargaining.

The way we see it

Mao played an enormous role

He was tough. He was idealistic. He was a romantic. He was ruthless.

Mao Tse-tung was one of a half-dozen major revolutionaries who took their countries, and the world, through a period of unparalleled upheaval.

He survived the others by several decades to become, within China, a kind of modern-day Pharaoh.

Over the span of four decades, Mao was the political and spiritual leader of mainland China. And in the years before his death he was treated as a near god, his every utterance revered, his every thought recorded for deeper examination for the personal guidance of his followers.

His photograph smiled benevolently down on the streets and squares where his countrymen made their way through life, reminding them constantly of his influence over their existence.

There is no question that Mao improved the physical wellbeing of China's masses, who through the centuries have walked a cruel road between pestilence and famine. He ended the corruption that bent the back of China's peasants and offended their sense of right. And he tossed out the foreigners whose past role had offended China's nationhood.

He gave his countrymen unity and a spiritual uplift. Sometimes it was as simple as ordering a campaign against the flies that swarmed through China's cities.

He accomplished these things at great cost to his people. And once they were accomplished he continued to foment violence and unrest.

He took his nation to the threshhold of war with the United States. And when he perceived a greater threat to China's security in the Soviet Union he sought rapprochement with old Uncle Wicked.

Mao did not make China wealthy, but he made it less poor.

He did nothing to advance the freedom of his countrymen to think and live as they chose.

He was no Hitler, nor Stalin.

He was, in many ways, the embodiment of 20th Century China.

History will decide whether to remember him for the good he brought to China, or the evil.

Mao Tse-tung 1893-1976

It's time for...football!

The first day of the football season is a few hundred feet away.

With each step the low rumbling roar gets closer, louder, the chants more explicit with every step. There's a wisp of autumn in the air, a crisp freshness of another season.

It makes you tingle a bit, and you zip up your cotton jacket to the neck. A bright woolen blanket rides across one arm and a stadium seat under the other.

Inside, the crowd is bulging at concrete aisles. Besides the kids are the alumni and their friends. They seldom miss an opening game, smoking pipes, perusing the lineup, following the program, matching hometowns and number as a motorist with a road map.

They remember other years when the players were smaller, their shoulder pads a thin shell of today's suit of colorful armor.

There's a distinctive smell of coffee penetrating the evening air, the crackle of peanuts and steaming hot dogs.

The crowd is on its feet. It is kickoff time for another autumn of football. No wins, no losses. It's an optimistic time of promise, and for two hours the slate is clean.

The answer man returns

Here's the real election scoop

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Campaign Answer Man, back from a post-convention rest near Ho-Ho-Kus, N.J., is with us today with some early observations on the presidential race.

Question: Well, sir, now that President Ford has the Republican nomination to run against Democrat Jimmy Carter, what kind of campaign should we look for?

Answer Man: Hell-for-leather and all guns blazing, my boy. A ding-dong battle. A knock-down, drag-out fight. A Pier 6 brawl. A four-alarm fire. A head-to-head slugfest.

Question: Do you mean this is going to be a rough and nasty campaign?

Answer Man: Only when the candidates get eyeball to eyeball and push comes to shove. Until then, I expect them to feel each other out, probe for weak spots and dance around the issue.

Question: How do you think the debates will affect the campaign:

Answer Man: I predict the debates will be the salvation of the new television season. After three or four exposures of an hour or or more to Ford and Carter, the viewing public will be grateful for police dog sagas and 1913 high school nostalgia shows.

Question: But will the debates be crucial to the outcome of the election?

Answer Man: Only if one of the candidates neglects to shave closely or apply an effective antiperspirant before going to the studio.

Question: Well, what about campaign strategy? Is the President going to write off the South?

Answer Man: No way. The President is giving up English muffins for the duration and will be seen at all functions before noon eating grits.

Question: And Gov. Carter? How will he smooth over his relations with the Catholic church?

Answer Man: The governor will announce that while he personally does not favor becoming a Catholic himself, he will vigorously oppose any constitutional amendment that would forbid him to do so.

Question: The President's campaign organization has undergone another shuffle. Will Mr. Baker, the new chairman, last the course?

Answer Man: No. I predict that by the end of September Mr. Baker will be appointed chairman of a new committee formed to oversee the activties of the new committee Mr. Morton was appointed to head when he was replaced by Mr. Baker.

Mr. Baker will be replaced by Secretary Kissinger, who will attempt to apply the principles of winning soccer to the campaign. By mid-October, Mr. Kissinger will threaten to resign unless the President stops coaching from the sidelines. Kissinger then will be named head of a new committee to oversee the rental of office space for the President's campaign committees. At that point, Jack Ford will take over direction of the campaign.

Question: President Ford made a remarkable gain in the polls after the Republican national convention. Will he be able to close the gap?

Answer Man: That is the nub of the President's strategy. As soon as he gets within 10 points of Carter, he will reconvene the Republican National Convention, win the nomination again and go ahead of his opponent.

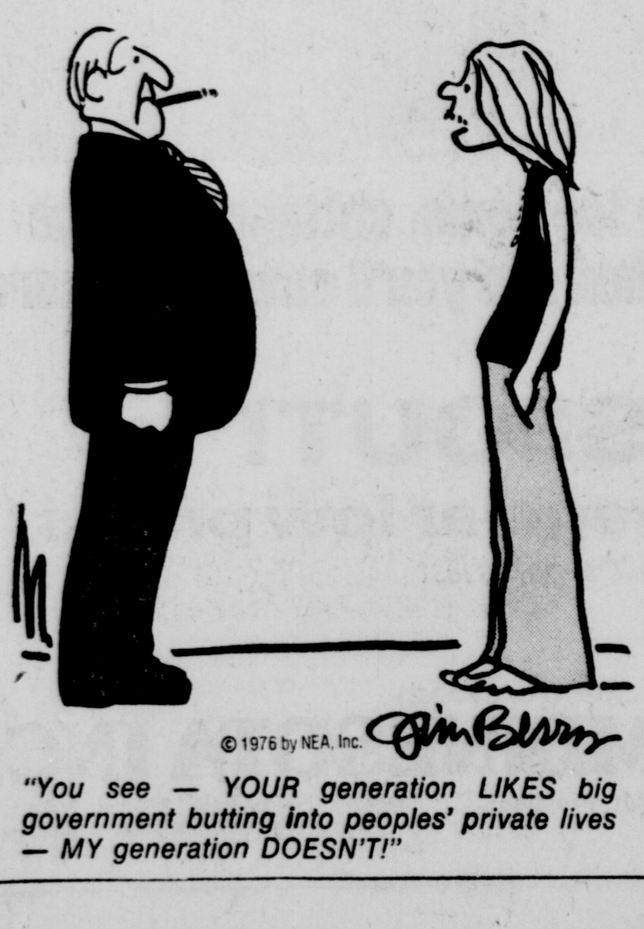

Question: What will Gov. Carter do to counter such a move?

Answer Man: He is prepared for it. Ht will fire his campaign manager and appoint John Sears. Sears in turn will challenge Ford to meet Carter in a softball throwing, running and batting competition.

Question: And who do you think will win?

Answer Man: The President has a better arm, but Carter is faster off the mark. The outcome of the election will then come down to which candidate can hit a curve ball.

Beer Can Collectors of America is a trading, not selling, club

On the front page of your Aug. 26 Schaumburg Herald, you pictured Jim Alterio selling beer cans at the Schaumburg Jaycee's 4th Annual Garage Sale/Flea Market. You further stated that he is a professional beer can collector and a member of the Beer Can Collectors Assn.

Jim Alterio is a member of the Beer Can Collectors of America, with a membership number of 8,566.

The BCCA was founded in 1970 by seven people in St. Louis, Mo., to promote the hobby of collecting beer cans. Today it has a membership of over 12,000 members.

The BCCA is a non-profit organization to aid members in enlarging beer can collections by having not only local functions, but helping collectors from various parts of the country to contact and trade with one another. No member of the BCCA ever receives money for their duties.

Buying and selling of any beer can or non-official club items at any BCCA club function is strictly prohibited. Buying and selling cans at non-club functions is strongly discouraged.

The BCCA is a trading club for those who enjoy can collection as a hobby on the principle of fun so that all people of all ages and income may particiate on an equal basis.

Worthy of note

I would like to comment about someone who we know very well, an individual who has taken upon himself to serve our community with all his knowledge and energies to make it a better place to live. That person is Marty Cawley, who has spent many, many hours of his time at numerous meetings.

He has been instrumental in organizing the drive to get the Army to donate land at the Nike site to the Arlington Heights Park District for a golf course. His contribution to our community will benefit everyone in Arlington Heights. We hope he will continue to serve our community as he has done in the past.

Finally, the special contributions of two other persons to this drive should also be recognized. They are Vic Johnson and Tom McDonnell, whose help played a significant role in the success of this community effort.

All swimmers deserved recognition

After reading two articles in The Herald and seeing televised once on what a great job the Elk Grove life guards did for the Heart Association "Swim for Heart" by swimming 400 miles and collecting over $400, it inspired me to write this letter.

I realize there is not enough space in the newspaper to print information about all 65 pools which participated in the "Swim for Heart," but for all the kids who swam for one hour and the pool managers who gave their time, I believe they deserve a little recognition.

I know more than $500 was collected thru sponsors from two out of the 15 who swam for Mount Prospect. These two children swam 531 twenty-five yard laps in only one hour for the Heart Association. I congratulate all the children who swam for a "cause," not for a record.

It's a small world after all

You can imagine our surprise when there, on Page 3 of the Sept. 7 issue of The Herald, was a picture of our old scooner, the "Adventure."

We thought you might be interested in knowing that we owned and sailed "Adventure" for 11 years. She was the last dory fisherman in operation in the United States when we bought and converted her from "fish" to "people."

Although we now live in Palatine, we have fond memories of those years when we sailed "Adventure" along the Maine coast.

Politics jeopardizing crime-fighting units

Watch on Washington

by Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Ford administration is cutting the guts out of the fight against organized crime through systematic cutting back on the 17 organized crime strike forces that have been effective front-line fighters against political-racketeering alliances.

While the moves are being made quietly and unobtrusively by Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard L. Thornburgh, head of the criminal division, information on the Ford administration's activity is being furnished just as quietly to advisers of Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter.

The precise role of President Ford and Atty. Gen. Edward Levi is difficult for strike-force personnel to determine, but former top strike-force prosecutors are preparing detailed position papers on Thornburgh's moves, his background and how he is hobbling the war against crime.

AS A Nixon-appointed U.S. attorney in Pittsburgh, Thornburgh resented the independence of the strike-force chief who was empowered to investigate and prosecute organized crime without regard for the views of the politically appointed U.S. attorney.

As a U.S. attorney in western Pennsylvania, Thornburgh headed a subcommittee of the U.S. attorneys' advisory committee to the attorney general. His subcommittee recommended that the independent strike-force concept be abandoned and the strike force be brought under the U.S. attorney in some areas.

It was obvious that Thornburgh's friction with the strike-force chief in Pittsburgh had soured him on the idea of a prosecution arm in his area that took orders only from William Lynch, chief of the organized crime and racketeering section in Washington. Thornburgh and many other politically appointed U.S. attorneys resented the outside prosecutor who was insulated from the local political pressures.

Thornburgh's subcommittee's recommendation for a phaseout of many of the strike forces was made in April 1974, when Nixon was President. A few months after Gerald Ford assumed the presidency, he accepted the recommendation from his old friend, Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., to nominate Thornburgh as assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division.

ALTHOUGH THERE was some minor question raised about whether Thornburgh could be an objective prosecutor on pending investigation involving Scott and other Pennsylvania Republican figures, the Senate Judiciary Committee, on which Scott is a high-ranking member, gave its approval and he was confirmed.

The federal grand jury investigation of Scott that deals with allegations he received $100,000 in payments from executives of Gulf Oil Corp. is being pushed forward by special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff, whose status is even more independent than that of the strike-force chiefs. There is no indication that Thornburgh has made an effort to influence the investigations or decisions of special prosecutor Ruff.

However, Thornburgh has continued his feud with the Pittsburgh strike force, and is in the process of phasing it out against the initial opposition of Lynch.

Prior to Thornburgh's ascendancy, Lynch had a pretty free hand in the assignment of strike-force investigators and prosecutors. Lynch also kept in mind the idea that local political influences were neutralized or eliminated by bringing outside professional crime fighters into the big city areas where political machine influence has corrupted law enforcement for years.

LYNCH NO longer has a free hand, for Thornburgh and his top assistant, Jay Waldman, a former assistant U.S. attorney from Pittsburgh, are calling the shots.

The shots they are calling spell the end of the strike-force office in Pittsburgh. The staff there has been slashed and operations are under an acting strike-force chief who has been a politically-appointed assistant U.S. attorney.

An assistant U.S. attorney has been placed in charge of the strike force in racket-ridden New Jersey, and some of the most experienced and independent strike-force lawyers are being transferred to other posts.

In many instances the experienced strike-force personnel do not want to make the move, and there has been a large number of resignations of lawyers and investigators who were regarded by former strike-force officials in Washington "as some of our best people."

"THOSE WHO resign are just not replaced, and the word is getting around among strike-force lawyers that they had better look for other jobs because the strike forces will be wiped out if Ford is elected," according to a knowledgeable former strike-force lawyer.

Some of those who for years have been deeply involved in fighting the organized crime-political alliances are shocked at the manner in which Thornburgh has ignored months of protests and is pressing forward with steps to bring the strike force under political control or abolish them.

"No announcement has been made that the strike forces will be abolished, but they are being starved for funds, stripped of effective courageous personnel, while arguments are made that they have outlived their usefulness," the head of a large citizens' crime commission commented.

"This alone would be reason enough for me to vote for Jimmy Carter in November," one former strike-force official said. "If he doesn't know what Thornburgh is doing to the strike force he should know it."

Hail, bus drivers, women plebes

Dorothy Meyer's column

With more and more women getting into more and more previously male-dominated fields of endeavor, I was not surprised to read this week about women who had enrolled in the U.S. Military Academy.

However, the feature I noticed was cheek-by-jowl with one about training for the job of school bus driver and in a hasty reading I assumed the two articles were related.

"Hmmmm," I thought, "the tough training at the Academy would indeed stand a school bus driver in good stead, but four years at West Point seems a mite expensive and time consuming."

As I continued reading, though, I changed my mind. "Learning to take it and keep your mouth shut certainly takes a lot of guts," I said to myself, "and a lot of guts is certainly what bus drivers need. Perhaps four years at the Academy is not too much at all."

NEXT I NOTED the severe punishment inflicted upon the plebes if they dared to raise a hand in anger or even in self-defense.

"That must really be tough," I thought, "learning to not raise a hand except to shift gears when you have a busload of kids, most of whom would benefit from a swift clip in the lip. What true grit it must take to pass from plebe to upperclassman or upperclassperson at the Academy."

Then I noted that Academy requirements are bent a little to allow for the difference in male and female. . . uh, for different. . . uh, for basic physical differences. Some training exercises are amended because women are fatter around the hips, and others are changed because women have. . . uh, because they. . . uh, because women are built differently.

"What," I wondered, "does that have to do with a woman's ability to drive a school bus."

READING ON I realized that allowing Academy women to do "flexed arm hangs" instead of chinups, for instance, probably was a good idea. So a male bus driver can do 47 chinups. Big deal. What bus driver, male or female, has the time, inclination or opportunity to do a chinup while driving a bus?

If I were a school bus driver, I'd much rather be prepared to demonstrate a "flexed arm hang," which sounds to me like something that's ready to hit. Even though hitting is against the law, a flexed arm certainly would be more of a deterrent than a chinup would be, especially among children too young to read the law but old enough to terrorize a bus driver.

Throughout my years of motherhood I've always felt that teachers of children, be they in the classroom or the bus, should have an express ticket to heaven regardless of their mortal sins.

Since reading the Academy story, I'm sure of it.

PASTOR C. SISCO

You will find at Village Baptist a church with a heart-beat for the whole family. We are living in a changing world; moral standards have changed; communities have changed - but the basic needs of people have not changed. At Village Baptist the Bible, which is the unchanging Word of God, is the only rule for our Faith and Practice. The Bible is the answer for our needs today. You need the help of the church to raise your family in times like these. Yes, it is time for America to pray and it's time for the family to gather together around the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. Why don't you come and try a church that cares for you and your whole family.

My primary ministry at Village Baptist Church is with young people. Our Sunday School is fully departmentalized for each age-group "from the cradle to the grave." Besides the Sunday School ministry for young people, a full Children's Church Program is provided for pre-school, kindergarten, and grades 1-3. On Tuesday evenings, from 6:30-8:15, our Awana Club meets for boys and girls, grades 3-8. This program provides a ministry to the community boys and girls as well as our church family. On Wednesday, Youth Groups meet for grades 1-2, 7-8 and 9-12. These youth groups provide a time of intense training in the truths of God's word. Recreational activities are provided for the Junior High and High School youth during each month. These recreational activities also provide further contact with teens from the community.

The Village Baptist Church began in the home of Ron Evans, on Rosewood in Buffalo Grove in 1960. May 17, 1961 it was organized as an independent Baptist Church under Rev. Gerald Titus, who became their first pastor. Later they moved into the Alcott school and then to the Joyce Kilmer school. In November 1962 Rev. Philip Peterson became their pastor. The church purchased their present property in 1964 and had a ground-breaking service for their first building in 1968. First service in their new building was March 2, 1969. Rev. Raymond Dunn assumed the responsibilities of pastor in August, 1970. September 7, 1975 was the ground breaking for our new sanctuary. The first service in this present building was in June, 1976.

Builder seeks delivery accuracy

One of the big unknowns a person faces in buying a house yet to be built is trying to determine when the house will be ready for occupancy. Until that's known, he can't make precise arrangements for moving out of his present home.

Hoffman Homes division of The Hoffman Group, a major Chicago area community developer, is managing to whittle this uncertainty to a minimum. Morton E. Silfen, sales vice president, said "We have been setting delivery dates 30 to 45 days before the actual completion date and have been meeting those dates 100 per cent of the time."

At present, it takes 90 days to build and deliver a new home, including the time needed to install the foundation, erect the superstructure, and complete the interior. When the customer signs the purchase contract that signals the start of construction, Hoffman Homes can advise him then of the probable delivery date with a two-week margin for error, Silfen said. Thirty to 45 days before completion, the occupancy date can be pinpointed.

"IT'S IMPOSSIBLE to give a delivery date with absolute certainty 90 days ahead of time," Silfen said. "There are a number of factors beyond a builder's control, such as bad weather and sudden shortages of material from suppliers. Strikes can also wreck a schedule. However, since we do all of our basic building work with our own crews, we have a firm command of the bulk of the process, and so we have a good record of on-time delivery."

Knowing when his new home will be ready, the buyer can fix a firm date for moving out of his apartment or selling his present home. He can also set a date with the moving company and begin notifying people of his change of address. These are important elements in making the move as smooth as possible.

"It's important from our standpoint, too, that we have a firm delivery date," Silfen said, "because this ties in with the signing of the final mortgage papers, known as the closing. Until this is done, the buyer can't take possession of the house, so we must coordinate the two."

THE MOST important factor in being able to guarantee delivery is the builder's control of the building process. If the builder has trade professionals on his own payroll, he is more apt to have control than if he relies wholly on subcontractors, who have other builders to serve as well.

"In our case, we have our own crews do the land improvements, such as excavating and grading," Silfen said. "We also have our own shop that makes roof, floor, and wall sections that are delivered to the site in the proper sequence, and our own carpenters put them up. This accounts for most of the building time. The subcontractors we use are the plumbers, heating men, electricians, and painters, who come into the act when the house is practically finished."

Silfen said the on-time delivery performance is available on all homes built by the company.

RUGGED APPEAL is the fashion message comes through in home furnishings as well as apparel. This plaid flooring is by Armstrong, and it comes in 12-inch tiles — a nice project for home-improvement buffs.

Fabrics, floor covers take sturdy look, earthy colors

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

Social observers say that home furnishings fashions follow clothing fashions. And there seems to be justification for the theory.

This fall, for example, the big fashion news is going to be a return to rugged clothes. Comfort is the key along with wool plaids and all-wool and all-cotton fabrics.

And behold, there's already a smattering of that sturdy, gutsy look in upholstery fabrics and floor coverings. The new colors have a deep earthy quality, many lines feature henna tones, black, russet, gold and a winter-sky blue. Salmon tones, rather than flashy orange, are also a change in hue.

Not all is muted however. The primary colors are still available and popular.

INTERIOR designers are still enjoying the lighter woods, but often play them against henna or dark brown walls. Wood floors are frequently bleached or given a clear finish. And when pattern is needed it sometimes winds up on the floors as in the family room shown today.

Here a plaid makes the scene. Called Cromwell, it's part of Armstrong's Custom Excelon group. And while it has the clean-sweep look of expensive wall-to-wall sheet flooring, it is actually a do-it-yourself type material that comes in 12-inch-square tiles.

The Armstrong designers feel that Scottish plaids are emerging as one of the year's fun trends, so they have also issued a plaid pattern in their Solarian no-wax sheet flooring and have introduced a new plaid carpeting.

The latter is called Duncannon and has a masculine, rugged look that comes from a dense nylon-plush construction that's resistant to tough treatment.

Generally plaid is a good classic motif for decorating. There are plaid patterns in wall coverings that would work well with such a sporting look. Even a traditional kitchen seems more cheerful when a plaid wall covering is used on the ceiling or on one wall. So no matter what the surface texture — smooth or rough — plaids have a place in today's interiors.

Palatine shades Hoffman; Meadows rolls

Last-second pass misses for visitors

by ART MUGALIAN

Alan Knotek leaped high to bat away a John Staback pass in the end zone as time ran out on Palatine's 7-6, defense-dominated victory over a small but rugged Hoffman Estates squad in the opening football game for both teams at Palatine Friday night.

Staback's pass was intended for 5-foot-7 flanker Bill Strawn, who had streaked down the right sideline before cutting toward the goal post. The little Hawk receiver was open for an instant, but Knotek came flying across from the right side to deflect the ball and preserve the Pirates' hard-fought win.

"That was a great play by Knotek," said Palatine coach Arv Herstedt. "He went as high as the top cross bars."

The defensive stand by the Pirates came at the end of a long night of defense for both teams. Both of the game's touchdowns were scored in the first half after fumbles had afforded excellent field position.

But Hoffman's last-minute drive — the only sustained march of the game by either team — just barely failed to pull out the victory. The Hawks, led by senior quarterback Staback, moved from their own 10 to the 21 of Palatine in the final 2:55.

A 10-yard run by Bob Kearley and a nine-yard pass from Staback to Tresy Todd got the Hawks out of the hole, and a pass interference penalty and a 16-yard option run by Staback moved the ball inside the Pirate 22 with six seconds left.

Then, after a procedure penalty moved Hoffman out of Kris Hanssen's field-goal range, Staback tried his last, desperation pass to Strawn.

"The kids showed they can win tonight," said Herstedt, who breathed a little easier after the final excitement had died down. "They showed that they want to win. This win was for them."

Herstedt was less than pleased with his team's offense, which gained just six first downs and had only 129 yards total. Palatine scored with just 43 seconds left in the first half after Gary Batke recovered a Hoffman fumble at the Hawk 12-yard line.

And the touchdown wasn't exactly a picture-book play, either. Quarterback Jeff Mosley, starting his first varsity game, dropped back to pass on second down and then scrambled into the end zone when he found no one to throw to.

Mike Mikulan's extra-point kick with Knotek holding proved to be the winning margin.

Hoffman Estates had scored the second time they had the ball after taking advantage of a similar mistake. Palatine's first possession resulted in a punting situation after three downs, but the snap sailed over the head of the Pirate punter, Knotek. Kearley and Terry Sopkin eventually tackled Knotek on the Pirate five, turning the ball over to the Hawks.

On the first play, Kearley ripped through the grasp of two Palatine defenders for the touchdown.

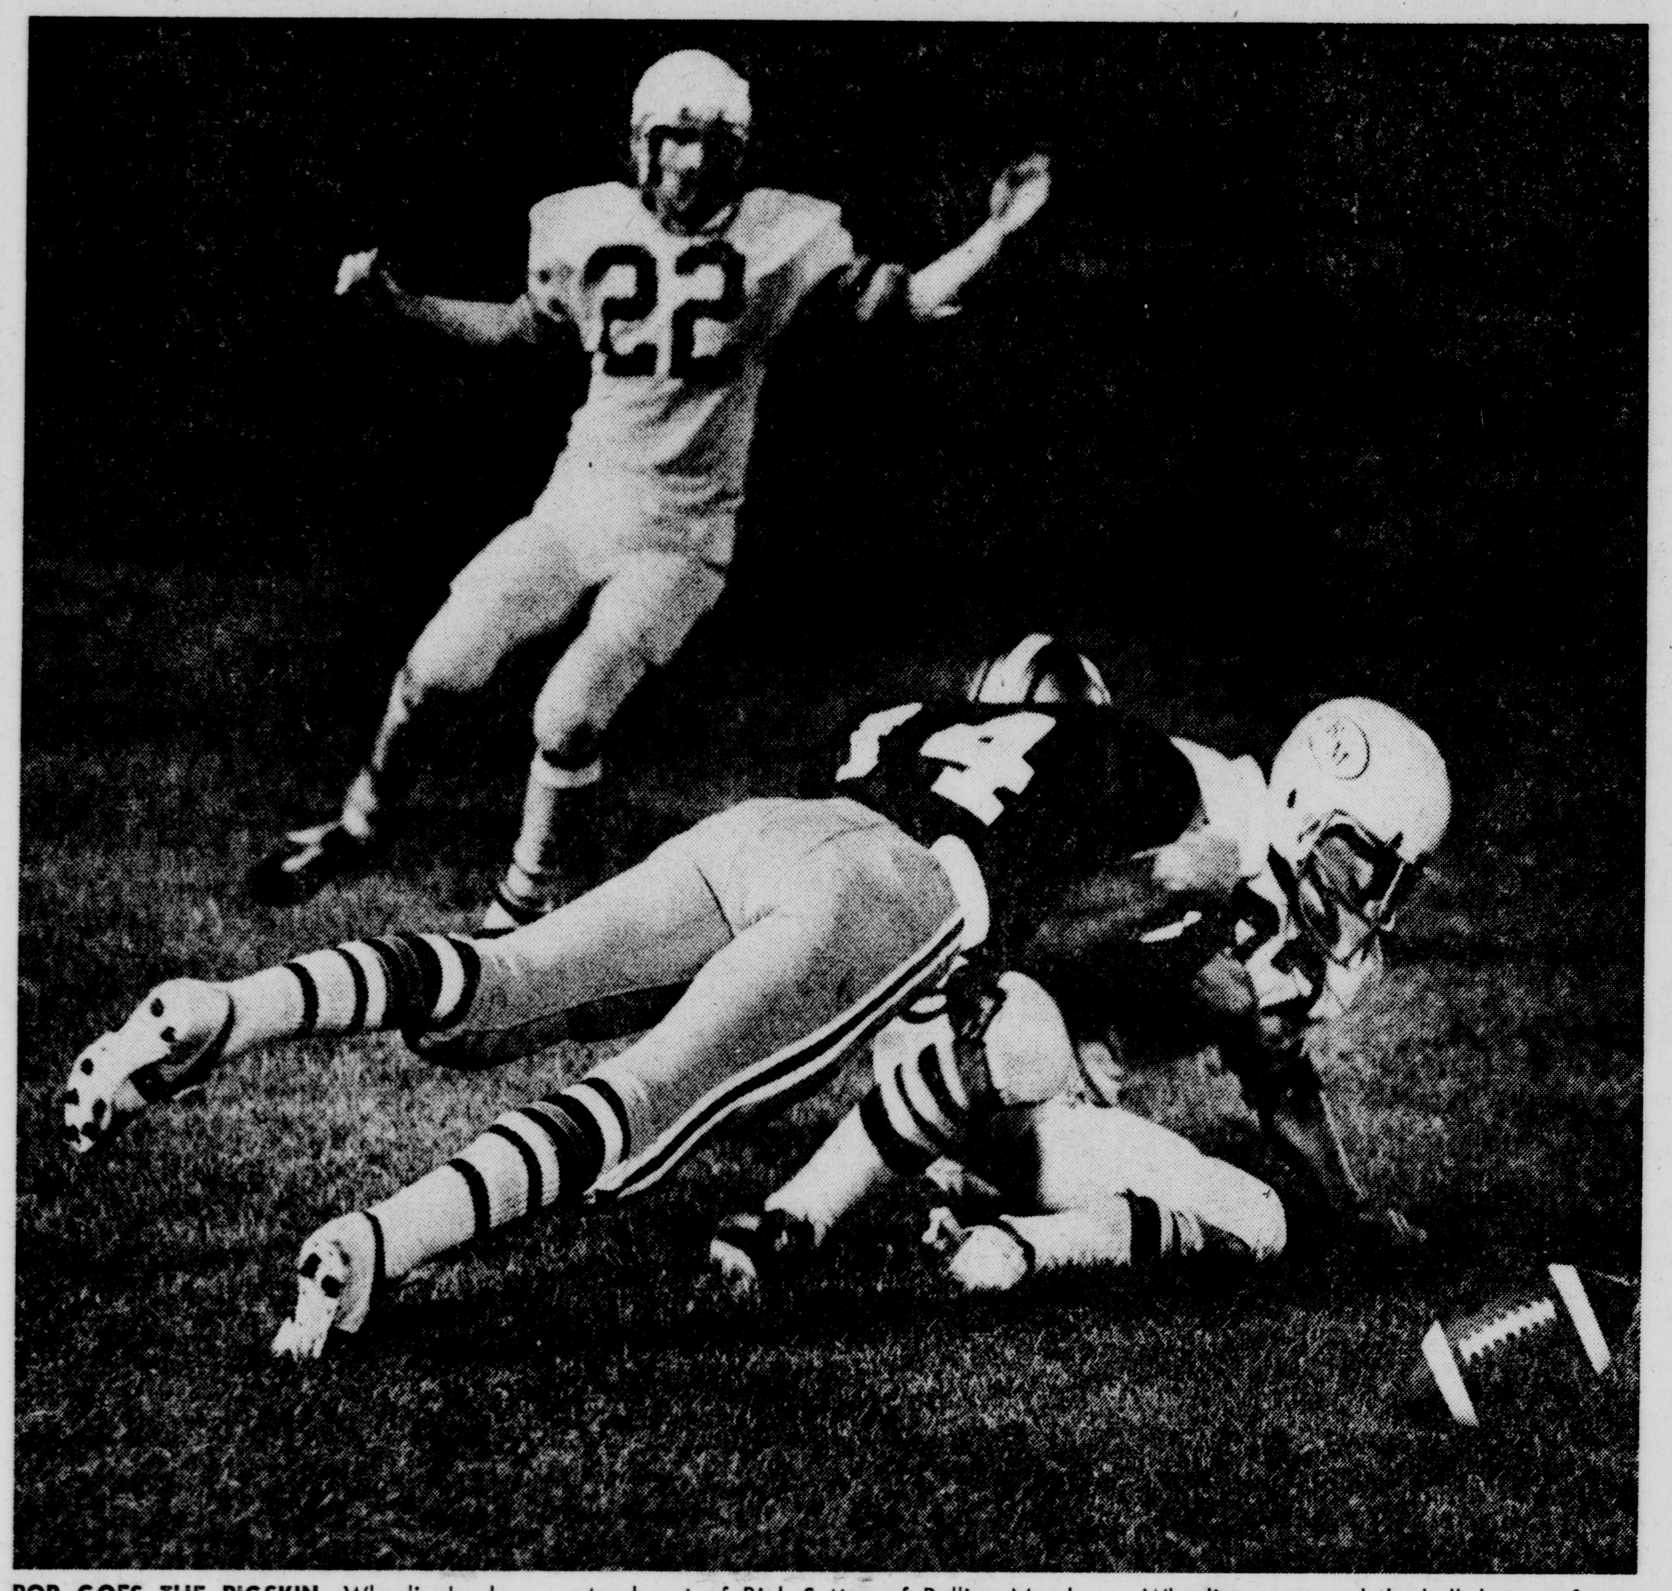

Hoffman Estates coach Bill Gourley elected to go for two points on a fake-pass play and the maneuver failed.

Except for their touchdown, the Hawks never really threatened the Palatine goal until the final minutes. Kearley was the game's leading ground-gainer with 89 hard-driving yards, 69 of them in the first half. The Hoffman offense showed just 144 yards for the game.

"Our defense did a good job on them," said Herstedt. "Hoffman is a scrappy, aggressive, feisty, fiery team, but they couldn't move the ball on us. The TD they got, we gave to them."

Leading the Palatine defense were Phil Unterreiner, Chuck Roegge, John Stauner, Dan McSweeney, and Bouwman. And, oh yes, Alan Knotek.

POP GOES THE PIGSKIN. Wheeling's defensive back Tim Miller takes some of the starch out of Rick Sutton of Rolling Meadows with crisp hit that forced a fumble. Wheeling recovered the ball, but not from a flashy Mustang attack that prevailed, 29-6.

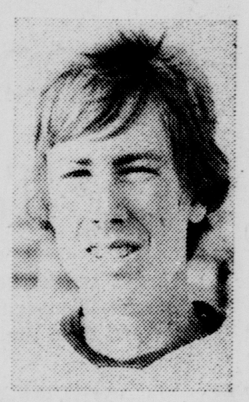

Collis keys success in Klein debut

by JIM COOK

Backup quarterback Bill Collis passed for two touchdowns and ran for another as Rolling Meadows made Art Klein's head coaching debut a success by ripping Wheeling, 29-6 Friday night.

Collis, a baby-faced junior who was thrust into a starting assignment when regular quarterback Dennis Drolet failed a practice requirement, flashed the tools of a seasoned veteran and ostensibly created a competitive atmosphere at the signal-calling position.

Executing flawlessly from a drop back or a sprint out, Collis clicked on six of 11 passes and touchdowns of 19 and eight yards.

The figures impressed everyone, including Drolet who served as a plain-clothes statistician along the sidelines.

"Not bad for our number two quarterback," Klein chuckled, savoring his first triumph at the Mustang helm. "He's never started before at quarterback, even at the lower levels, and now people are gonna start asking why not."

"He really seemed poised back there," Klein continued. "His throwing reminds me of Scott Topczewski (former Hersey star quarterback)."

The Mustangs created momentum on their opening drive of the evening as Collis called on his backfield of Gary Adams, Steve Stiert and Rick Sutton.

Sutton, a double conference sprint champion, proved why when he took a pitchout from Collis and scorched a 42-yard path into the end zone with less than two and one-half minutes gone.

Meadows ran the count to 15-0 on the first play of the second period as Collis fired an eight-yard strike to Adams after shaking the Wheeling pass rush with an effective bootleg.

Although the Wildcats were their own worst enemies with seven turnovers, they were still in the hunt late in the third quarter.

Wheeling's fifth fumble of the night cost a scoring opportunity at the Meadows 12 yard line, but the Mustangs returned the favor and the Wildcats took advantage.

Punishing Wildcat runner Jeff Starke scooted nine years to Meadows' 13 yard line and John Piff capped the two-play drive with a dash to the endzone to bring Wheeling with 15-6.

Meadows quickly countered, though, with Stiert making a circus, wrong-shoulder catch of Collis' 19-yard pass for a 22-6 bulge and young Mr. Collis put the finishing touches on the scoring with a one-yard sneak.

"My only concern is our killer instinct," Klein mentioned. "We had a chance early to put them away, but we didn't and they just kept coming after us."

Some of the Wildcats who kept coming were Piff who rushed for 70 yards on 20 carries, quarterback Steve Majkowski and guard Tom Gable who had to be carried off on a stretcher before he quit.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the field, Drolet was wondering if the competition at the nationals of the American Legion World Series will be stiffer than back home in football practice.

Prospect impressive, 21-0

Reed's dashes sink West

by BOB GALLAS

The Prospect Knights opened their 1976 campaign with a win for new coach Gary Grouwinkel by drubbing an outmanned Maine West, 21-0 at Prospect Friday night.

The Knights unveiled a machine-like ground attack in the first half, grinding out 187 yards by foot behind senior back Terry Reed, who rushed for 134 first half yards.

The Knights played ball control in the opening half, holding onto the football for 19 of the 24 minutes of play and took a 14-0 lead to the lockerroom at intermission on two late scores.

Reed bulled in from the one yard line with 3:36 left in the second quarter to put the Knights ahead 6-0. The attempt for the two-point conversion failed.

Prospect quickly killed a Maine West drive and scored again with only 27 seconds left in the half on a brilliant run by Reed, who broke a half-dozen tackles and scampered for a 65-yard scoring run.

A two-point conversion pass from quarterback Andy Loos to end Erik Wilkins made it 14-0 at the midway mark.

Prospect added a touchdown early in the final quarter to ice the contest with a three-yard plunge by fullback Pat Murphy. Mike Frushour's kick made it 21-0.

Underdogs going into the contest, Grouwinkle praised his team for their consistency.

"The kids really played with a lot of poise. We never left our game plan," said Grouwinkel. "The passing game still needs work. I still think that passing will be part of our game."

The Knights were pretty well stifled when they tried to put the ball in the air. Loos, who went virtually all the way at quarterback, completed just four of 12 passes for 49 yards.

Tom Franson, who Grouwinkel says still is in line for a shot at the starting quarterbacking job, didn't complete a pass in one attempt during his brief time at the controls.

"Still, we made the key passes," Grouwinkel added. Loos hit end Brad Millar for a 17-yarder that keyed the Knights' first touchdown drive. A 10-yard Loos to Reed toss coupled with a 15-yard facemask violation by West was a key part of the Knights' final score.

The Warriors handled Reed pretty well in the final half, limiting him to just 13 yards before Grouwinkel pulled the 5-9, 175-pound running back early in the final period.

Maine West came out hitting hard in the second half but quarterback Bob Zuccarini and his corps of receivers, who had trouble holding onto the ball, couldn't muster much of a passing game.

The veteran Zuccarini, starting his third year at the reigns of the Warriors, completed only 4 of 18 passes in the final half for 69 yards, 40 of which came on a toss to Jim Winiecki.

The Knights limited the Warriors' aerial game to just 83 yards. Zuccarini completed a total of five passes in 24 attempts.

On the ground, things didn't go much better for West, which mustered a total of 22 yards rushing.

Bolstered by Reed's ground gaining, the Knights rushed for a total of 226 yards and chalked up 14 first downs, while holding the Warriors to just seven first downs.

Rob Earhart gained 21 yards in five carries and Dave Jackson netted 25 yards in six carries for the Warriors.

Falcons hold on for 20-16 victory

by KEITH REINHARD

The name of the game was a fired-up Forest View defense.

Well . . . almost . . .

Burly St. Viator fullback John Gillen shattered any Falcon illusions of invincibility. His offensive handiwork turned out to be too little, too late, however, to thwart an upset 20-16 triumph by hosting Forest View Friday night.

With just five minutes remaining in the game, Coach Fred Lussow's inspired Falcon charges were basking in a comfortable 20-0 lead. It had been accomplished primarily through the efforts of their gritty defensive unit: scoring on one blocked punt and setting up a TD on another, recovering a trio of fumbles and intercepting a pass.

"We really didn't have to show much offense tonight," grinned Lussow afterwards. "Our defense did it all. It provided us with some great momentum early and that was enough to carry us through."

Lussow was confident enough in his more-experienced defensive alignment to elect to kickoff even after winning the pre-game coin toss. That move paid off indirectly six plays into the contest.

The Lions were held in on their first series and punted. Forest View lost a fumble on its first play with Viator's Jeff O'Connor recovering deep in enemy territory. But the Falcon defense — namely Jim Brown — recovered a Lion fumble seconds later.

Forest View's defense held a third time too before Bill Payne directed the offense on a 76-yard scoring drive. He culminated the advance with a 31-yard touchdown fling to Joe Forssander and Lonnie Reitz booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

At the end of the first period Jim Peterson blocked a Lion punt attempt and Jim Curley ran the ball down in the end zone. A Reitz PAT kick rang true again and the Falcons were up 14-0.

Forest View's defense scooped up two more Viator miscues in period two. Steve Chromick pounced on the second one to abruptly halt a 59-yard march by the guests at his own 10.

In the third stanza, the Falcons picked right up where they lef of picked right up where they left off, blocking a Lion punt after stopping on three plays. Mike Murray grabbed the loose ball this time and his teammate Payne wasted little time finding Tim Dixon in the end zone for a 22-yard score.

The score then stayed at 20-0 through the rest of the third quarter and into the fourth, with both defenses digging in. Viator quarterback John Josten eventually started going to the air, connecting on short passes to Gillen, Gene Lopez and Jon Bobruk while moving his club from the midfield stripe down to the 12.

With 4:50 to go in the game, Gillen found a hole off left tackle and bulled his way in to score. He followed the same route to add a two-point conversion.

Forest View kept the ball on the ground afterwards and managed to gobble up everything on the clock except the last 25 seconds.

Josten came back in and promptly hit Gillen with a screen pass about 20 yards up field. Gillen dashed down the left sidelines nearly 40 more yards on his own to score again. He added the extra points once more.

The onside kick was covered by Lane LeBrun to insure the triumph for Forest View.

'New look' Bears to debut Sunday

Jack Pardee plans a new look for Chicago pro football fans Sunday when his second Bear squad opens its 57th season of professional football playing hostile hosts to their NFC Central Division rival Detroit Lions at 1:05 p.m.

Coming off their best pre-season in 16 years on the strength of a 9-7 ambush in RFK Stadium of the Washington Redskins last week, the Bears began to resemble a sound football team in the six-game pre-season schedule. Most of the Bears were still in elementary school in '59 when the team was good enough to win five of six pre-season games. Detroit finished 3-4.

Sunday they don new uniforms with larger lettering, numerals and trim in search of their first winning season since 1967 when they were 7-6-1 for George Halas' last coaching season.

Since 2,997 tickets were still available 72 hours before the game, the contest won't be televised locally. WGN (720) radio will carry the game. Ticketron outlets at 60 Chicagoland area locations as well as the Bears' Loop box office (55 E. Jackson) will have tickets on sale today.

The Chicago first line defense enters the Detroit game having allowed just five touchdowns and none in the last two weeks in victories over Washington (9-7) and Tampa Bay (10-7).

Operating first without its top two receivers Ron Shanklin and Bo Rather against Tampa Bay and then without number one rusher Walter Payton against the Redskins, the Chicago offense has sputtered of late.

Pardee will pull every offensive trick from his bag hoping to shift the Bears into high gear Sunday. He would like to have his line dominating the Lions as it did Denver, Seattle and Baltimore in the pre-season running 227 plays as compared to 153 for that trio.

"We haven't played well the last few weeks but actually we were just a fumble from an unbeaten pre-season," said Pardee. "We've made progress all through the pre-season. We're better than we were a year ago and now Ii hope our record will show that."

The Bears will open with four new starters, but no rookies, against Detroit from their season ending lineups — Shanklin (injured reserve), RG Revie Sorey (back up), DE Royce Berry (Cincinnati), and MLB Don Rives (injured reserve).

Big Ten kicks off

Upsets are unlikely this afternoon when the Big Ten opens its 81st football season with two of the top teams in the nation, Michigan and Ohio State, against conference rivals with little chance for victory.

The Wolverines will be at home before more than 100,000 fans against youthful Wisconsin, and Ohio State will have another sell-out crowd for its debut against Michigan State, a team weakened by the loss of six potential starters who are ineligible.

Three other league games are Iowa at Illinois, Indiana at Minnesota and Northwestern at Purdue.

Michigan was a preseason choice to win the Big Ten title with Ohio State close behind in another "Big Two" season. Both were regarded as potential national champions.

Iowa's strength, its offense headed by Dave Schick and Butch Caldwell, will be pitted against Illinois' strength, its defense sparked by Scott Studwell, Dean March, John Difelicianto, and John Sullivan. Illinois' offense headed by quarterback Kurt Steger and running backs Chubby Phillips and Jim Coleman could make headway against the inexperienced Hawkeye defense, which will start five sophomores.

Purdue will be looking to avenge last season's opening game loss to Northwestern, and the Boilermakers should be slight favorites on the strength of veterans at hand plus running back Scott Dierking and quarterback Mark Vitali. Northwestern, though, has the No. 2 passer from last year, Randy Dean, a stellar running back in Greg Boykin, and good experience on both the offensive and defensive units.

Evert wins 100th on clay

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Chris Evert was presented with a huge green cake Friday to mark her 100th consecutive clay-court victory as she and Evonne Goolagong, her arch-rival of the last two years, qualified for the women's singles finals at the $416,600 U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Evert, 21, defeated Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, 6-3, 6-1, and Goolagong beat her Australian countrywoman, Dianne Fromholtz, 7-6, 6-0, to set up a replay of last year's final which Chris won in three tense sets.

In the men's semifinals this afternoon, Jimmy Connors meets Guillermo Vilas in the first match, then Bjorn Borg takes on Ilie Nastase. The women's final follows.

Because of a downpour which hit the West Side Tennis Club, the Evert match took 6 hours, 52 minutes to complete with an actual playing time of 69 minutes.

Archibald goes to Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Nate Archibald, the National Basketball Assn.'s highest paid player, was granted his wish Friday when the Kansas City Kings completed a trade with the New York Nets that sent the All-Star guard back home for Brian Taylor, Jim Eakins and first round draft picks in 1977 and 1978.

Archibald has long expressed his desire to return to his native New York, either with the Knicks or Nets, but put his feelings more in the form of a demand this summer. Archibald has four more years left on his $400,000 a year contract, which will remain the same with the Nets.

It marked the second big-name player to go to a New York team in two days. Jim McMillian went to the Knicks from Buffalo for an undisclosed price.

Nicklaus fails to make cut

PINEHURST, N.C. — Rookie George Burns fired a 3-under-par 68 Friday to maintain his lead of the World Open golf tournament after the second round and Jack Nicklaus, knocking one of his approach shots into a lady's purse, failed to make the cut for the first time in 105 tournaments.

Burns had his second day of solid putting on the way to a two-stroke lead over Hale Irvin and a second-round total of 133, but Nicklaus, who last week won golf's richest purse in the World Series of Golf, was the big surprise.

...And in other sports news

JANE BLALOCK, the only player able to take advantage of near perfect playing conditions, equaled the course record five-under-par 67 Friday and grabbed a four-shot lead after the first round of the $50,000 Dallas Civitan Women's Open . . .

CHARLES O. FINLEY, owner of the Oakland A's, says he's going to go to the plate for his team as a designated hitter. "Since BILL VEECK has seen fit to activate MINNIE MINOSO at 53, I certainly feel I can swing for the A's at 58," Finley said. . .

SAL BANDO, team captain of the Oakland A's, was given a two-day suspension and fined an undisclosed amount by American League President LEE MacPHAIL . . .

Ryan fans 18 to dazzle Sox; Minnie to play

Minnie Minoso, a coach on the Chicago White Sox all season, was activated as a player Friday and this afternoon he should become the third oldest man ever to play in a major league game as well as the fifth player whose major league career spans four decades.

In Friday night's game, California's Nolan Ryan dazzled the Sox batters, striking out 18 and allowing only three hits en route to a 3-2 victory. He walked nine but his strikeout total was only one short of the major league record for nine innings which he shares. It marked the fourth time in his career that Ryan has struck out at least 18 batters in a game.

Bruce Bochte, who hit his second homer of the season in the second inning, drove in the winning run in the sixth when he doubled after a triple by Rusty Torres.

Minoso, a spry 53, made his first big league appearance in 1949 with Cleveland. His appearance will be his first since July 5, 1964, when he was a pinch hitter. He has been a player-manager in Mexico for the last 12 years.

"It will be emotional for me, batting in Chicago with the memory of the years past, but Bill Veeck brought me back to Chicago and it was my salvation," said Minoso.

Reuschel, Cubs top Phils

PHILADELPHIA — Rick Reuschel, who always seems to be at his best against Philadelphia, beat the Phillies for the ninth time in 10 career decisions Friday night when he tossed a six-hitter and pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory.

The loss was the Phillies' 12th in their last 14 games and left them still five games ahead of Pittsburgh, which lost at Montreal, 4-2.

Chicago snapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth when Joe Wallis singled, advanced on Mick Kelleher's ground out and scored on Rick Monday's single. Bill Madlock slammed his 15th home run of the year in the eighth for what proved to be the winning run.

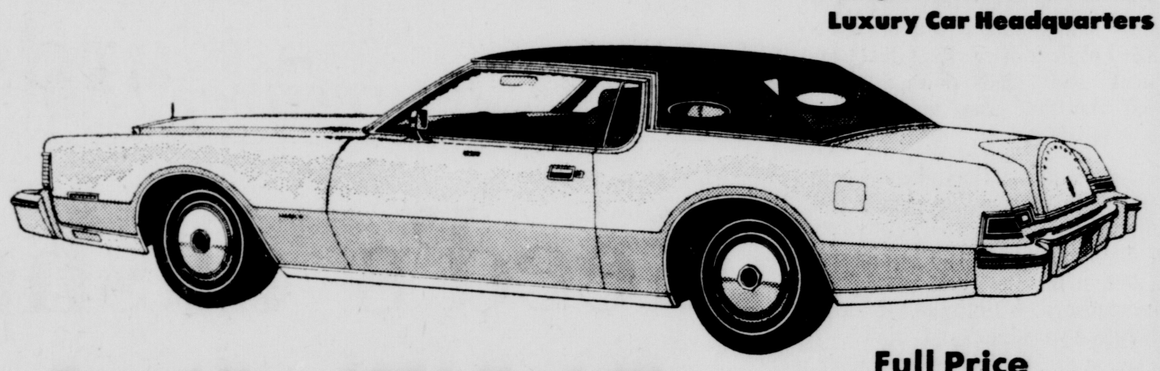

Philadelphia scored in the eighth when pinch-hitter Tim McCarver walked, took second on Dave Cash's single, moved to third on Larry Bowa's sacrifice and scored on Mike Schmidt's sacrifice fly.

The Phillies used a single by Bowa and Schmidt's double to take a 1-0 lead in the first, but the Cubs got even in the second when George Mitterwald singled, moved to second on Manny Trillo's groundout and scored on a single by Wallis.

Jim Kaat pitched eight innings for the Phillies and took his 12th loss in 23 decisions.

Lake Forest's punishing ground game socks Cards

by MIKE KLEIN

Little mystery existed in Lake Forest's offensive theory. Give the football to a running back. Then let him run in nearly any direction . . . left, right or up the middle.

It made little difference who carried the ball for Lake Forest Friday evening at Arlington. The Scouts displayed yards and points in great abundance.

Three second half touchdowns, one apiece from Bill Teskoski, Mike Wagner and Tom Trkla, helped complete a 339-yard ground game as Lake Forest won, 34-18, after leading by just two points at halftime.

Al Bussone led the Scouts with 117 yards rushing. Teskoski followed with 113 and Wagner totalled 81.

The entire Arlington team, in comparison, rushed just 81 yards and was forced to rely upon untested junior quarterback Chuck Klein's throwing arm.

Klein, who performed well under obvious pressure, completed 12 of 28 passes for 196 yards. He hit on scoring strikes of 20 yards to Glen Eisenhuth and 51 yards to Tom North, who caught seven passes or 94 yards.

But in the final analysis, it was Lake Forest's unnerving ground game which undid the Cardinals. All five Scout touchdowns were scored rushing. And quarterback Trkla did not even bother to throw one pass after halftime.

One of the evening's most unspectacular plays very likely sealed Arlington's unfortunate fate. It was the last period's opening play.

Lake Forest led just 22-18 as the final period began. Trkla faced fourth down and three on Arlington's 16-yard line. On a short left bootleg, Trkla got those three yards.

The drive was completed when Wagner ran in from one yard for a 28-18 lead. Trkla added another fourth period touchdown, on a 10-yard run, for the 34-18 difference.

"They ran us well," admitted Arlington coach Chuck Haines. "If you don't stop the fullback, the first man through, they're going to keep getting three or four yards."

Lake Forest came at Arlington with three-man backfield in the wishbone formation. "They had some of the best blocking backs I've seen in a long time," Haines said.

Arlington played without two young men, Gary Kempton and Rick Godwin, who probably will be the starting defensive halfbacks in upcoming weeks.

Kempton has not completed enough practices to be eligible and Godwin is injured.

Lake Forest just had too much backfield blocking, and too much from line-to-line.

"People were just not reacting (in the line)," Haines said. "They had assignments. They just didn't react. We were standing around and waiting."

Lake Forest led 6-0 after its first possession, Bussone ending a 73-yard drive with his 4-yard run. Arlington tied the game at 4:26 before intermission when Jeff Richert, the Cards' leading rusher with 60 yards, ended a 76-yard drive with his 2-yard run. Neither team managed to convert kick attempts.

An even minute showed before intermission when Teskoski ran nine yards for Lake Forest's second TD. Mark Newman passed to Dick Turelli for a 14-6 lead that appeared safe.

But Arlington quarterback Klein, who operated with class despite the pressure of always trailing, would not give up to anyone.

Klein passed seven and 25 yards to North, who was All-Everything for Arlington. Then Klein found Glen Eisenhuth with a 20-yard touchdown pass. But he overthrew North for the two-point conversion attempt.

Teskoski's three-yard run plus Bussone's conversion run gave Lake Forest a 22-12 bulge with 6:11 remaining in the third period.

Arlington's final points came on Klein's 51-yard TD play to North. The play was largely made by North who wrestled the ball from Ed Nolan. As Nolan fell, North ran.

That brought the Cardinals to a 22-18 deficit. But they were not to get any closer.

Larkin stops Elk Grove

by J. ANDREW KEHE

ELGIN — Two Elk Grove defensive mistakes and a bad break on offense enabled the Royals of Elgin Larkin to escape with a 19-17 victory here Friday night. That marks the second straight year the Grenadiers have come out on the short end of the season opener with the Royals.

The lead changed hands four times during the course of the game with Elk Grove crossing paydirt first on a 14-yard scamper by junior tailback Jim Meyer midway through the opening period.

The touchdown followed a sustained drive with senior runningback Sean Murphy picking up key yardage play after play.

Entering the second period, the Royals sustained a drive of 62 yards in eight plays, with senior halfback Joe Garringer taking a pitch from quarterback Duffy Stump and romping nine yards for the score.

Larkin ran the option play beautifully during the entire drive and with Jeff Reuter's kick the Royals tied the score at 7-7.

Following an exchange of fumbles, Elgin Larkin took the lead on a picture-book play. Quarterback Stump, rolling right, let go a perfectly-placed bomb to Phil Green who never broke stride and sprinted 72 yards to give Larkin a 13-7 halftime lead.

The Grenadiers of Coach Don Schnake went to power football on their next drive after gaining good field position following a poor Royal punt. Senior quarterback Dave Champa called on senior fullback Tim Roberts for the tough yards, and, finally, Roberts pushed it over from one yard out to cap a 40-yard drive in 13 plays.

Champa's kick regained the lead for Elk Grove at 14-13 midway in the third period.

The Grens had to settle for a 24-yard field goal after recovering a fumble deep in Royal territory to start the fourth quarter. The drive bogged down inside the 10 and Champa's field goal made it 17-13.

Elk Grove couldn't sustain a drive midway through the fourth period and a short punt gave Elgin the ball at the Grenadier 47. Jeff Huxtable and Scott Connell came up with tough yardage when it was needed and then Green got behind the secondary and Stump hit him on the numbers for a 25-yard touchdown to put the Royals back on top to stay 19-17.

A late Royal interception spoiled any hopes of the Grenadiers to pull it out, and the hosts ran out the clock at midfield while Elk Grove could do nothing but watch.

Hersey takes care of Elgin, 17-6

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

A junior quarterback who had thrown seven straight incomplete passes might have been forgiven for missing an eighth.

Hersey's Dan Vucovich, who was throwing strong spirals all night behind flawless protection, was in such a situation Friday night when the Huskies' opened their 1976 season against the Elgin Maroons.

But that eighth pass was a beauty, hitting running back Wally Hommerding cutting across the field for a 17-yard touchdown that sealed the Huskies' 17-6 win.

"The coaches told me not to get down on myself," Vucovich said. "I had excellent protection, everyone was blocking great, and I just kept throwing."

Although his completion record was nothing to get out the record books about (six of 23 for 95 yards) Vucovich threw another touchdown pass of one yard to Brian Robertson and convinced the Hersey coaching staff they had made the right choice last year when Vucovich was picked as the successor to Scott Topczewski.

"Dan did something that we've practiced on extensively," said Hersey head coach Joe Gliwa. "He ran the offense with time running out and got a score. That's exactly what we wanted to do."

Vucovich hit the first pass he threw of the game, a 38-yarder of Robertson that put the Huskies on Elgin's three yard line.

Hersey had to settle for a 25-yard field goal by Bob Schackner and in the second quarter Elgin took a 6-3 lead when halfback Richard Hersey shook loose on a counter play for a 23-yard touchdown.

The defense slugged it out until Hersey got the ball with time running out in the second quarter.

Vucovich threw incomplete twice then connected on a five-yarder to Tony Becker before flipping the one-yard scoring pass to Robertson with 21 seconds left.

The Huskies unlimbered their ground game in the second half as the offensive line started getting off the ball and whipping Elgin to free Becker and Hommerding.

"There's no question we're counting on those two," said Hersey backfield coach Bruce Glover. "Tony's gotta do the heavy work. Wally's not the fastest guy in the world but he has tremendous balance and he can just tightrope that sideline."

Becker finished the game with 93 yards rushing on 17 carries.

Hommerding simply would not be brought down, unless it was absolutely necessary, in the second half as he carried seven times for 52 yards to amass 82 yards on 12 trips for the night.

Vucovich knew which play was working and he went to it repeatedly in the Huskies' final touchdown drive.

"We were running over (Sandy) Dameron in the second half because he owned his man," Vucovich said. "The quick pitch to Wally was working beautifully."

Hommerding danced 30 yards down the sideline to open the series, Becker went for five and then Vucovich pitched to Hommerding again and the senior halfback pinballed through the Elgin defenders for 17 yards.

Two plays later Vucovich hit Hommerding for the touchdown.

"We wanted to see what the defense could do against speed," Gliwa said. "They hit well, as good as ever."

Mark Bassie, the Huskies' nose guard, symbolized the rabid Hersey defense on a single play in the second half.

Running with the snap, Bassie sprinted through the Elgin line absolutely alone and buried quarterback Jerry Powers for a 16 yard loss.

Gliwa was hoarse and delighted afterwards.

"Hey, we won the game. We're off to a good start."

WOTTA KNIGHT. Prospect's Terry Reed (10) hits the hole for a gain in Prospect's 21-0 whitewashing of Maine West Friday night. Reed scored two touchdowns and rushed for 147 yards to lead Prospect to a win for new head coach Gary Grouwinkel.

Northwestern brings JV team

Harper opens with Big 10 school

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

John Eliasik is understandably concerned about the Northwestern University junior varsity.

And his concern extends beyond the Harper Hawks' opener against the Wildcats Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

"With the kind of size they have," Eliasik said, "I just hope they don't hurt us for the rest of the season."

Harper has a full dance card of North Central Community College Conference partners to worry about, beginning next week at Illinois Valley, but the Northwestern team that comes to Harper tomorrow will be the Hawks' toughest test of the season.

Not only would a Big 10 school rather forfeit its recruiting budget than get beat by a junior college, Eliasik points out, "All those kids are going to be fighting for a chance to dress for their home opener next week."

The kids the Wildcats dress for their date with Harper are big. Extremely.

The defensive line reads like this: Bruce Robinett (6-5, 240) at middle guard, Bill Greer (6-4, 235) and Norman Wells (6-5, 250) at tackle and Ward Schell (6-2, 200) and Tom Ahern (6-4, 230) at end.

The offensive line is just as small with Phil Reitz (6-3, 235) at center, John Hayden (6-1, 225) and Bill Schmidt (6-3, 225) at guard and John Sachanda (6-4, 255) and John Schober (6-6, 240) at tackle.

The Wildcats also start four juniors with Andy Liscow (6-0, 187) at linebacker, Dave Martini (6-0, 175) at cornerback, Jack Gavin (6-2, 196) at strong safety and Sachanda at tackle.

"I didn't expect them to start four juniors," Eliasik said. "And I didn't expect this kind of size."

The Wildcats' beef will wear away at Harper's one glaring weakness: their lack of depth.

"We'll have four players out with injuries for this game," the Harper coach said. "We just lost (Ted) Tyk this week with a twisted ankle."

The injury to Tyk, who had been penciled in as a starter at linebacker, will force Eliasik to move Kevin Kristick out of the backfield back to linebacker.

Eliasik will go with Dennis Drinan as his starting quarterback Sunday. Butch Allen and Joe Litwin will also start in the backfield.

Northwestern's offense will revolve around quarterback John Kenney, a 5-11, 175-pound walk-on from Oak Park.

Kenney's choice of receivers will include split end Sam Poulos, a 6-2, 204-pound sophomore who starred on Glenbrook North's 1974 state championship football team.

"There's no chance these kids will overlook Harper," said Northwestern junior varsity coach Mick Ewing. "This past week they were disappointed because they had to help the varsity prepare for Purdue and they kept wanting to get ready for Harper.

"Basically, they are out to prove they belong at Northwestern and the kids at Harper don't."

Eliasik said, "We'll get after them and do a good job but I just hope we're in one piece when this thing is over."

4 more Mid-Suburban teams launch schedules

The remainder of the Mid-Suburban League football teams will reveal their various strengths and weaknesses today at 2:00 as North Division power Buffalo Grove hosts a rebuilding Conant Cougar outfit and defending South Division champion Schaumburg entertains the Fremd Vikings.

Each of the four teams has something to prove.

Conant, winless in John Ayres' first year at the controls in 1975, is looking for considerable improvement over their 0-9 record.

Buffalo Grove, 5-4 last year, is an early line favorite to win the North Division title with an experienced backfield.

Fremd will also open with a veteran backfield, starting four seniors, as they look to improve on last year's 1-6 campaign in the MSL.

Schaumburg has questions at quarterback, where Russ Zonca graduated after leading the Saxons to two South Division titles.

Schaumburg coach Bob Ferguson has settled on Steve Conrad, who was Zonca's understudy last year, to run the Saxons' wishbone offense.

"This is a big test for us," Ferguson said. "I'll be interested to see where we stand."

Steve Knudson and Mark Emrich will be the halfbacks and Mike Christy will start at fullback.

Fremd's offense will counter with Tom Moffett, a transfer from New Jersey who started for two years at his old school, at quarterback.

Moffett edged out 6-2, 190-pound Dale Hallberg, the team's second leading scorer and total offense leader last year.

"We're faced with an awfully tough schedule right at the start," Conant's Ayres said, "Buffalo Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine.

"But the kids are ready. They're looking forward to playing Buffalo Grove."

Ayres' search for a ball control offense will rest with 6-0, 192-pound fullback Jeff Johnson, who was an all-conference linebacker last year, and quarterback Scott Schafer.

Buffalo Grove has an astounding set of running backs.

Ben Orcutt and John MacIsaac totaled more than 1,000 yards rushing last year and quarterback Scott Groot piled up more than 300 yards of offense in a reserve role.

"We beat Conant by a pretty good margin last year," said Bison coach Grunt Blaney. "But I'm not anticipating a cakewalk this year."

Fremd runners in debut; West hosts Center Meet

by ART MUGALIAN

Fremd is the defending Mid-Suburban League cross country champion, but that in itself is not earthshaking. Coach Ron Menely's Vikings have won four straight MSL titles.

And no one can really be surprised to learn that the Vikings are favorites again this year — not only in the conference battle but in the scramble for IHSA state honors too.

The amazing thing is that Fremd's early-season recognition is based on a team that features two sophomores and two juniors in the top six. Those four Vikings — Dan Inbody, Matt Filosa, Tom Ross and Bob Ratcliffe — have little varsity running experience.

But, according to Menely, his Vikings will be ready to take on the world when they open their season in the 10-team Crystal Lake Invite today at 9:30 a.m. Arlington will also run in the meet.

"These kids are ready to go," said Menely. "They have the great attitude. They can't wait to get going."

Fremd will face another powerful state contender today in Deerfield, led by the McAllister twins. Menely figures his team has a decent chance of whipping Deerfield and the rest of the opposition even though Inbody will be on the sidelines with a minor injury.

"The kids can't wait to run Deerfield," the coach said. "They really want them."

The Vikes are led by senior John Filosa, a two-time veteran of the state meet who was 11th in Peoria as a sophomore. Dan Tischler and Pete Albrecht are the only other seniors in Fremd's top seven. Filosa is the defending league champion and Tischler ran fifth in the MSL meet.

Ross and Filosa's brother, Matt, spent most of last season running on the freshman level. Ross was MSL frosh champ.

Ratcliffe and Inbody ran on the sophomore level for much of the 1975 season, but both were elevated to the varsity in time for the conference meet where they were key factors in the Vikes' victory.

The other main attraction today is the Maine West Center meet at 10 a.m. The host Warriors will try to defend their 1975 title against all comers, including MSL challengers Hersey, Prospect, Conant, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows.

The meet is one of the biggest in the state with 23 teams competing on five levels. A total of more than 700 runners will flood the Maine West campus.

In other meets today, Wheeling is at the Luther North Invite, St. Viator runs at the Notre Dame Invite, and Hoffman Estates visits Maine East.

OPENING THE DOOR to Kishwaukee Valley Sportsmens Club is officer Bill Wells. The shooting preserve is located just west of Marengo with hunting conducted from Oct. 1 through March 31.

Kishwaukee joins membership ranks

Hunters flock to clubs

The fall-like weather this weekend has stimulated hunter's interests in the approaching upland game and waterfowl seasons.

Although shooting isn't scheduled to begin until the middle of November, many hunters will have already enjoyed a pheasant or duck dinner.

These gunners represent a growing legion of enthusiasts who take advantage of six-month season offered by shooting preserves.

With the latest addition of the Kishwaukee Valley Sportsmens Club in Marengo, local hunters now have a choice of at least four preserves within a one hour drive from the northwest suburbs.

If you're a duck hunter, you can engage in some fast pass shooting at a flight of mallards tearing past your blind.

Or if big, brassy ringnecks are your bag, there are plenty of those, too. Or maybe you relish a golden afternoon in the grassy fields and clipped stubble watching a good bird dog casting ahead for chukar partridge or bobwhite quail.

Most of these targets are available at one or more of these shooting preserves with their tailor-made cover and well-trained gun dogs.

The typical season for shooting preserves runs from Oct. 1 through March 31. The rates on a daily fee shooting preserve may be more reasonable than you might think.

Some preserves charge for birds bagged, others for birds released and still others just for the sporting chance of being in the right place at the right time.

KISHWAUKEE VALLEY SPORTSMENS CLUB

This 700-acre area is the newest preserve offered to local gunners. The club is locate approximately 14 miles west of the Marengo exit off the Northwest Tollway on County Line Rd.

The membership will be limited, according to club officer Ken Lancaster. "We're looking for about 70 serious pheasant hunters," he explained. "We offer 30 birds for $300 with additional birds for $10."

In addition to pheasant, Kishwaukee Valley Sportsmens Club also offers a shot at stocked mallards, quail and Hungarian partridge, with the majority of shooting along the Kishwaukee River.

For further information, call president Bob Witt at 312-454-9081 during the day or 815-648-4270 after 7 p.m.

RICHMOND HUNTING CLUB, INC.

Field manager Bill Rasinskis has already ordered 14,500 birds for Richmond's 900-acres of prime shooting territory. Although the majority will be ringnecks, Richmond also offers hunting for chukar and Hungarian partridge, quail and wild turkeys.

Beginning Sept. 11, duck pass shooting will begin with about 1,500 mallards taking wing. Reservations are required for waterfowl shooting.

A face-lift at Richmond Hunting Club includes the draining of several sloughs and the planting of sorghum. As Rasinskis explained, "We found the birds were running out of the corn as soon as they were released. Sorghum provides excellent cover."

Four different plans are available for hunters who are able to secure one of the 200 memberships. For more details, call Rasinskis at 815-678-3271.

BARRINGTON SPORTSMEN'S CLUB UNLIMITED, INC.

Club president Ed Buehman announced that two types of memberships are now available in the private organization located on the 470-acre Thunderbird Lake property on Ames Rd. east of Rte. 31 in Crystal Lake.

Hunters may apply for a regular membership at $360 which includes a one-time initiation fee of $200 plus all hunting, use of a 70-acre lake, trout ponds, skeet and trap shooting, picnic areas, boating, etc.

A hunting-only membership is $275 per year and includes the hunter's first 10 pheasants.

A special package for $52.50 entitles the hunter to 10 pheasants and is open to regular members of the club. All pheasants cost $7.50 each.

Interested hunters are asked to contact Buehlman at 312-231-2276 or manager Danny Helios at 815-459-9626.

HUNTLEY GAME FARM

Managed by Herb Zerbel, the limited-membership club offers 40 birds for $450 with just a few openings still available.

The pheasant-only preserve also offers daily fee shooting in a different dimension. Three pheasants are released for $35 and it is up to the hunter and his dogs to track the birds.

Zerbel says that dogs are available on a rental basis for $5 and are trained to hunt with anyone. The club is open every day of the week, except Christmas, New Years Day and Thanksgiving, but shooting gets a belated Nov. 1 start.

Bullrushes in the slough, millet strips and standing corn provide excellent cover for the birds. Once the lakes and ponds freeze over, the hunting area is expanded from its 400 acres.

The farm is located between Huntley and Algonquin on Huntley-Crystal Lake Rd. For more information, call 312-669-5600.

Power squadrons offering free classes for boaters

Safe handling of all types of boats, especially the small outboard, is emphasized in the free boating instruction being offered by the Chain-O-Lakes Power Squadron.

A 10-week course will begin Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 8 p.m. in Fox Lake at the Grant High School. Registration open to interested men, women, and older teens, will take place opening night. It is not necessary to be a boat owner.

The classes cover such subjects as boat handling under normal and adverse conditions, seamanship and common emergencies, rules of the road, aids to navigation, compass and chart familiarization, running lights and equipment, boat trailering and river boating.

Frank B. Antonou, Commander of Chain-O-Lakes Power Squadron comments, "Any skipper who takes a boat out on the water is responsible for the safety of himself and passengers, and with the information he may gain from this free instruction, he can have his boat properly equipped and be able to cope with the many situations he may face on the water."

The Chain-O-Lakes Power Squadron is a unit of the United States Power Squadrons, largest volunteer educational organization for boatmen in the world. Its members are men dedicated to promote safety in boating through education and donate their time to this service. There are more than 400 squadrons in the United States, with a membership approaching 100,000.

The Skokie Valley Power Squadron, a unit of the U.S. Power Squadron, will offer for its 16th year, 12 weekly classes on boating safety and procedures at Prospect High School, 801 Kensington in Mount Prospect.

The courses begin Wednesday, Sept. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 206. Both men and women are invited to attend the courses offered as well as youngsters from 12 and up. Certificates are awarded to those who successfully complete the course.

For additional details and information on classes now forming, call the toll free number 800-243-6000.

Still another boating safety course is being offered by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary in a six-lesson program at Schaumburg Township Library, 32 Library Ln. in Schaumburg.

The Boating Skills and Seamanship (power only) class begins Tuesday, Oct. 12 while a seven-lesson Principles of Safe Sailing starts Friday, Oct. 1.

There will be a small fee for class materials. For additional information, call Hoffman Estates Park District at 885-7500.

Open teal season today

A special nine-day teal season will be held today through Sept. 19. Blue-winged, green-winged and cinnamon teal may be taken between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily, with a bag limit of four per day and eight in possession after opening day.

Teal are early migrating waterfowl and large numbers move through Illinois in September on their way to wintering grounds in Central and South America.

The majority of the birds will have passed through the state by the time the regular waterfowl season begins, and the special season provides additional hunting opportunities to waterfowlers.

Every hunter not exempt by law must have state and federal migratory waterfowl hunting stamps as well as a valid hunting license.

Hunters are cautioned to make sure they can identify teal before the season begins. The wood duck population will be high during September and these birds often are mistaken for teal by inexperienced hunters.

Conservation police officers will intensively patrol teal hunting areas and mistaken identification will not be a valid excuse for killing a wood duck out of season.

Area anglers catching trophies

It's time to catch up with the fishing success enjoyed by area anglers.

It was quite a day for the Kurowski and Bourseau families of Palatine who spent a memorable day aboard the "Lucky Sue" charter boat captained by Jeff Heintz.

The two crews spent the better part of six hours enjoying the thrills of putting seven monster coho and chinook salmon into the cooler.

But during the time spent pulling rods with thoughts of returning to Waukegan, 12-year-old Karen Kurowski grabbed a pole whose reel was screaming with the duress of a lunker chinook at the other end.

Heintz suggested she transfer the rod to someone stronger, but her obstinance during an ensuing 30-minute struggle produced a 25-pound king salmon.

Nancy Stygar of 127 E. Norman Dr. in Palatine bagged a hefty 16-pound, 8-ounce northern pike while vacationing at Totem Lodge in Sioux Narrows, Ontario on Lake of the Woods.

Schaumburg's Jeff Victor boated a 41½-inch, 18-pound muskie in Wild Rice Lake in Vilas County and Rolling Meadows teacher Ken Arneson used a black plastic worm to lure a 21-inch, 4¾ pound largemouth bass.

Arneson's effort was worth a Fenwick casting rod, compliments of a local fishing contest near his cottage in Hazelhurst, Wis.

Area fishermen are leaving their mark in the 1976 ChainO' Lakes Fishing Derby that will conclude Sept. 6.

Mark Brandt of 323 Wellington in Elk Grove rose to the top of the second-week striped bass category while entering his catch at Rudy's Resort on Lake Marie.

Sweeptstakes winners included David Mack of 2515 N. Ridge in Arlington Heights, Stuart Bednar of 211 Lee St. in Mount Prospect and Ed Russell of 120 Bonniebra, also of Mount Prospect.

Brown trout stocked at Belmont, Burnham

The stocking of 50,000 brown trout yearlings at Belmont and Burnham harbors in Chicago should prove a boon to next summer's shore fisherman. The fish arrive at Belmont harbor via tank truck from Manchester, Iowa, where they were raised by the Iowa Fish and Game Commission.

The four-inch long yearlings should be catchable size by next summer, according to Illinois Dept. of Conservation fishery biologist Harry Wight. Most brown trout are taken by shore fishermen, Wight explained, because they prefer depths between 10 and 40 feet.

Like their salmon cousins, brown trout make a fall spawning run back to their place of entry in the lake. Unlike the salmon, however, browns do not die at the end of the run and are not legally taken by snagging. Snagging is not allowed at Belmont or Burnham harbors.

Another 50,000 brown trout are to be stocked in the Waukegan area this month.

Obey snagging regulations

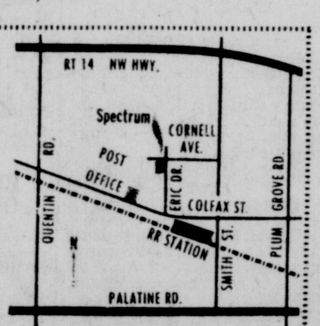

From Sept. 16 to Dec. 31, snagging for salmon only is permitted from the shoreline in Diversey Harbor, but only from a point 250 feet north of Fullerton Ave. to the south end of Lincoln Park Lagoon; inner and outer harbors at Jackson Park; Waukegan Harbor; discharge channel and bay area formed by the landfill at Northwestern University in Evanston, but not in the lagoon; Winnetka Power Plant discharge area and the Waukegan Power Plant discharge area.

No snagging is allowed at any time within 200 feet of a moored watercraft or as otherwise posted.

Anglers are permitted one pole and line with not more than two hooks attached. Hooks shall measure at least ½-inch from point to shank. The limit is five salmon, minimum length 10 inches.

A fishing license and salmon stamp is required, except those persons under 16 years of age, residents of Illinois 65 and over, disabled persons, and military personnel on active duty who entered the service from Illinois, who were at that time residents of Illinois and are on ordinary leave from the armed forces.

A shocking expenditure: Munson

$90,000 to dredge Harper lake

Harper College will spend between $90,000 and $108,000 to dredge the man-made lake on its Palatine campus.

The Harper Board of Trustees approved the dredging operation Thursday after being informed that a $64,000 estimate made last spring did not include a profit figure and miscalculated the amount of dirt to be removed from the lake.

The dredging, to be done by Doetsch Bros. of Wheeling, will begin as soon as possible, said Robert Hughes, director of Harper's physical plant.

DOETSCH, THE lowest bidder, bid $90,911 plus $16,443 to cover costs of removing peat from the dredged areas and replacing it with soil, Hughes said. There are peat beds under the eastern portion of the lake, Hughes said.

A creek which empties into the lake has been depositing silt in the lake, thus necessitating dredging.

The dredging operation will lower the depth of the lake from four to nine feet, thus increasing the lake's capacity from 9 million gallons to 18 million, Hughes told the board Thursday.

Board Pres. Shirley Munson termed the dredging cost "a shocking expenditure you didn't expect," referring to the fact that the board was informed last spring the project would cost $64,000.

HUGHES SAID college planners knew in 1965 that the lake, which allows Harper to retain stormwater as required by law, would have to be dredged in the future and that a smaller dredging project had taken place three years ago.

Frank Carroll, a spokesman for Caudill, Rowlett and Scott, the college's architectural firm which made the $64,000 estimate, said that figure did not include a profit margin and the cost of hauling the dirt away. He termed the estimate "a very bad mistake."

In other action, the board agreed that trustees should visit three community colleges in the San Francisco area to see how those schools have handled development of a second campus.

Harper has purchased land in Arlington Heights for a possible second campus.

Harper Pres. Robert Lahti said the visit would allow board members to see how colleges with social, economic and growth patterns similar to Harper have dealt with various stages of developing a second campus.

No decision was reached on how many board members will travel west Sept. 27 and 28 to visit the three colleges, which are within an hour's driving time of each other.

2 Tarzans give body-building trophy to Beame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tarzan forsook his swinging vine and Flash Gordon left his spaceship and went on foot Friday to proclaim 5-foot-2-inch Mayor Abraham Beame an honorary Mr. America.

"You Tarzan, me Abe," said the mayor to 72-year-old Johnny Weissmuller, the most famous of Cheetah's movie friends.

Weissmuller responded with one of the bone-rattling ape calls with which he alternately scared elephants and wooed Jane.

Weissmuller and Buster Crabbe, 68, who also played Tarzan in addition to Flash Gordon in movie serials, stopped by to promote a body-building show scheduled for the weekend at a New York theater.

THE TWO former Olympic swimming champions gave an "Official Mr. America 1976" trophy from the World Body-Building Guild to the 70-year-old Beame, who was told he'd have to return it if he didn't do a pushup every morning.

"I'll send it back tomorrow," the mayor said.

Crabbe, who looked as though he still could throttle Emperor Ming the Merciless of the planet Mongo with one hand while taking on the clay men with the other, also got in a plug for his fitness book, "Energistics," which he described as "an exercise book for old geezers like me."

Science explores unexplained phenomena

by Clarisse Ritter

Date: Aug. 12, 1976.

Time: 11 p.m., 2 hours and 59 minutes after sundown.

Location: Jarvis and Damen in Chicago.

Seven bobbing lights arranged in a "V" formation were sighted. Pointing to the ground, the vertical lights made no sound and traveled west into an 8 m.p.h. wind blowing from the west-southwest. The person sighting the lights watched them for 1 minute and 30 seconds.

Date: Aug. 10, 1976.

Time: 9:05 p.m., 1 hour and 1 minute after sunset.

Location: Isabella and Ridge in Evanston.

Two women from Glencoe spotted a dark elliptical shaped object with lights outlining its circumference. The object appeared bigger than the full moon. For 5 minutes the duo watched it hover and move slowly to the south.

Sound like the opening scene of a low-budget black and white film carrying the dubious title of "The Lights that Gobbled up the Loop?"

Reconsider your skepticism. Those are two of thousands of classified and documented cases of unidentified objects under investigation at the Center for UFO Studies, 924 Chicago in Evanston.

The Center, world headquarters for such study, receives about four reports of sightings each day. Some come from the Chicago metropolitan area. Others come from across the nation and still others are filed from the other side of the globe.

Not all sightings remain unidentified. Allan Hendry, staff member at the Center, is quick to explain that approximately 77 per cent of all sightings are, in fact, IFOs — identified flying objects — and a mystery only to the layman who does not recognize the planet Venus or the Goodyear blimp at night.

Only after the reports are studied and scientific explanations applied and rejected are sightings stamped "UNIDENTIFIED."

"Because of the proximity of O'Hare Airport, cases of UFOs are rarely found locally," Hendry said. In the Metropolitan Chicago area there are always many possible explanations to sightings and UFO reports often become IFO cases, Hendry said.

The cases in Chicago and Evanston reported last month were investigated by Hendry who admitted he was skeptical when they were filed.

"I called the Goodyear blimp flight crew," Hendry said of the Aug. 10 sighting in Evanston. "They were not flying in the Chicago area that night because winds were inappropriate for blimps," he said adding that winds inappropriate for Goodyear's blimp would be inappropriate for other blimps as well.

Hendry then called Aerial Advertising in Highwood but learned that they did not use any illuminated planes on Aug. 10. He Checked with the Lakefront Festival headquarters and they, too, had used no aerial advertising on that date. The logical explanations were exhausted. He had checked with the two women and was convinced they saw something. The case was stamped unidentified.

Using the same method, Hendry checked out the Aug. 12 sighting. The Goodyear blimp was anchored, there had been no aerial advertising with illuminated planes, O'Hare and the Federal Aviation Administration had nothing on their logs, police had seen nothing and had no reports, and Midway Airport's weather balloons were launched at 6:30 a.m. — but were anchored by 7:15 a.m. Another unidentified case was put on file.

Checking the obvious, following up on any possible or probable answers, is all in a day's work for UFO investigators in this country and around the world. A recording device intercepts nocturnal calls to the Center where each day breaks with mystery.

The data compiled by 100 UFO investigators in this country and abroad carry similar characteristics — enough characteristics to make the skeptic sit back and listen.

Most sightings occur at night, usually in isolated areas. Peak times fall at about 10:30 p.m. and again right before dawn. The majority of sightings last between 5 and 20 minutes. In at least half of the reports, witnesses say they were within a mile of the object, sometimes closer.

The greatest number of sightings occur in October. The second greatest number are reported in November with the fewest reported in June.

Armed with this knowlege, the investigator works to explain each sighting and discount it in any scientific method he can conjure up. When the limits of man's knowledge are

UFO research stymied by a lack of information

Sensationalism, poor follow-up, and inaccurate accounts of unidentified flying objects have plagued UFO studies and left those interested in the subject yearning for more information, Allan Hendry, staff member at the Center for UFO studies has said.

Answering that need, the Center this fall will begin publication of a newsletter about UFO sightings.

"We will concentrate our efforts on good UFO cases," Hendry said. "In doing that, we will report on every aspect of a sighting."

Uniform reports and blanket follow-ups on published sightings will aid the public, Hendry said.

"We will follow up until we have a conclusive statement. The cases we present will be those which baffle astronomers, meteorologists and aeronautic experts," he said.

Many regional UFO groups publish newsletters but a comprehensive letter is needed by followers of UFO studies, Hendry said.

"Our newsletter will be distinguished from the rest of the newsletters because of the approach we are going to take on cases," he said.

The newsletter, to be edited by J. Allen Hynek, Director of the Center, will also publish feature stories about work related to the study of UFOs.

Boxes and boxes of mail in Hendry's office point to the need for communication about the work being done in the field.

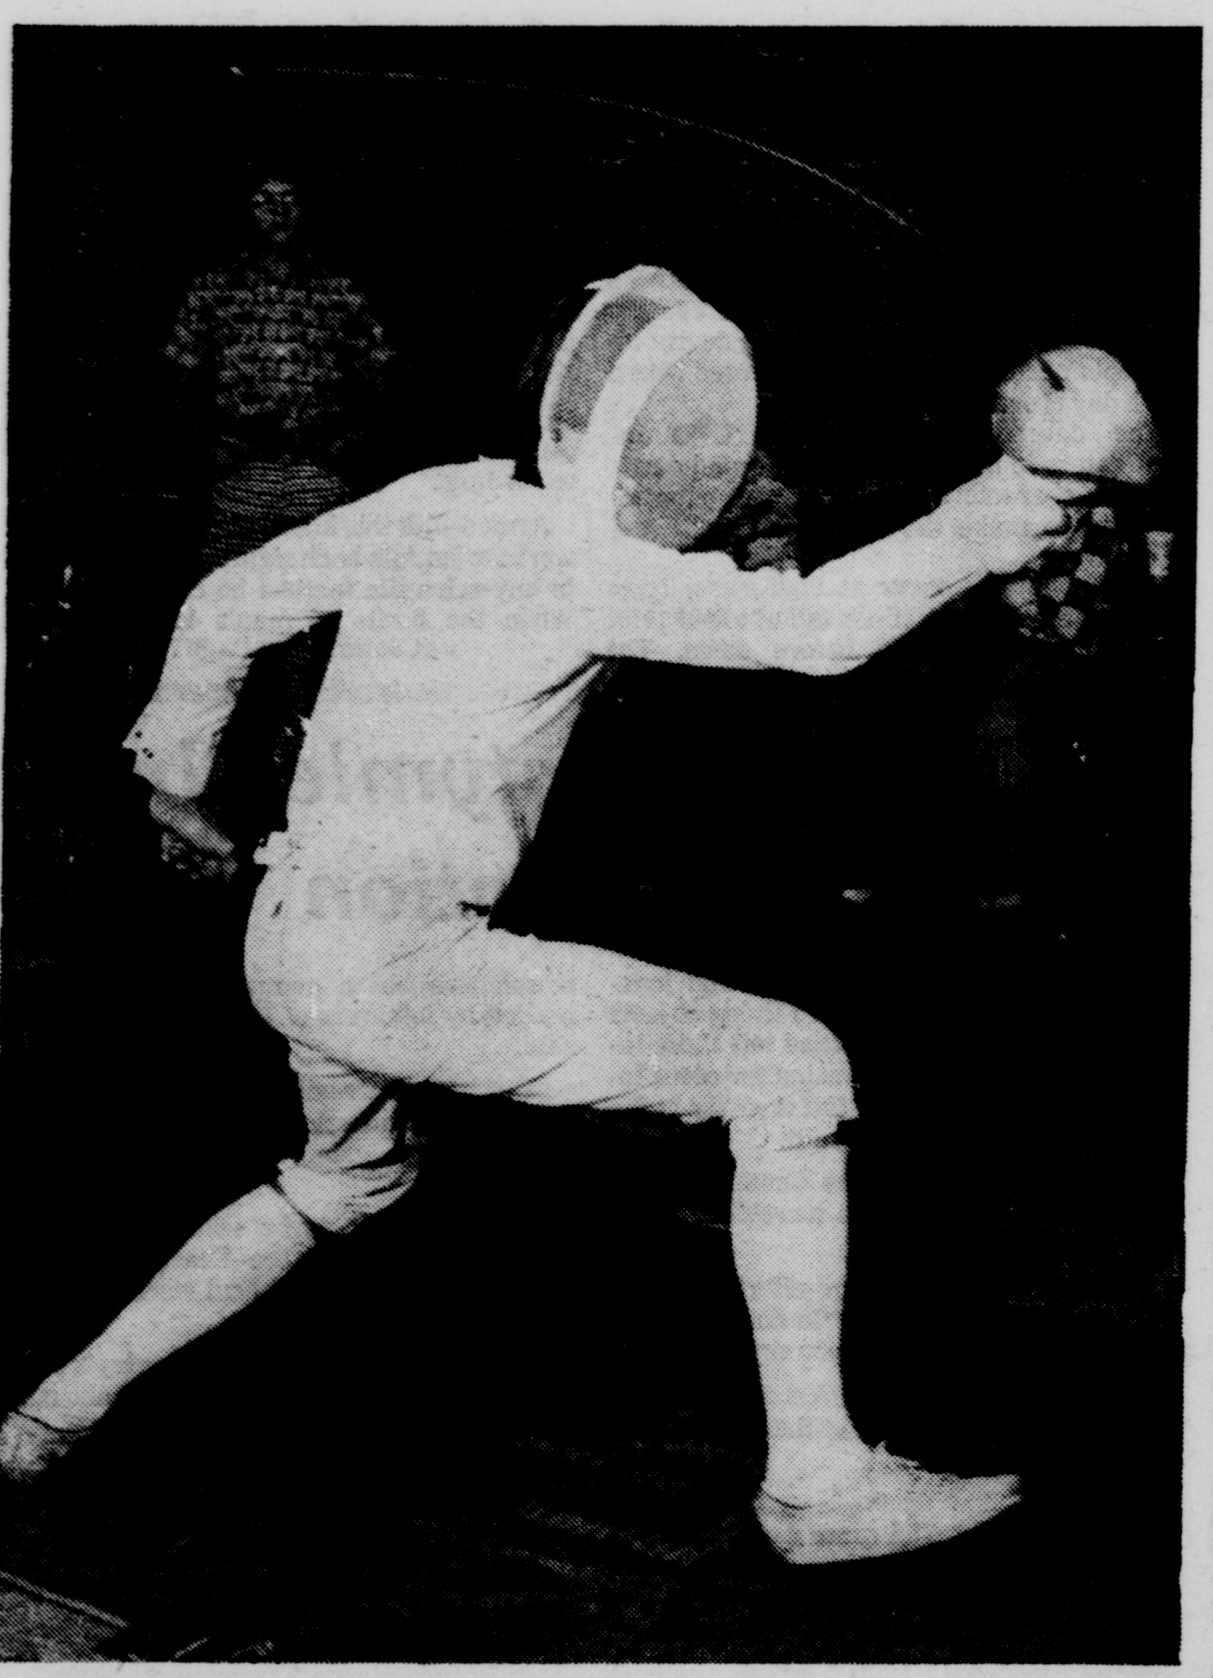

"We get mail from high school students. We get mail from all over the world," he said.

The newsletter will be made available on a subscription-only basis and will not be sold at newsstands. Information concerning the publication is available at the Center for UFO Studies, 924 Chicago, Evanston, Ill. 60202.

Swordsmanship— an avocation for amateurs

From knights in armor slashing away at each other to defend a lady's honor, to electronically-scored bouts with skilled competitors in masks and padded suits — fencing has experienced dramatic changes and now draws swordsmen of all persuasions.

Story by Marsha S. Bosley
Photos by Jim Frost

A blade sweeps the air as a fencer prepares to lunge at his opponent.

The silver swords shimmer as they are waved through the air. A lunge here. A parry there. The blades clink and clammer as they touch. The bout director yells "halt" and a point is awarded.

Touche. Another fencing season is ushered in.

It all may look and sound foreign to a beginner, but the graceful, fast-paced art of fencing is relatively easy to comprehend if followed closely.

Fencing, which reaches its peak period in the United States from October through April, is for amateurs.

"Professional fencing is nonexistent," said Antonio M. Nishimura, chairman of the Illinois Division of the Amateur Fencers League of America (AFLA). "Except for in New York, there are very few professional coaches in the United States," added the 25-year-old Chicagoan.

Although fencing is a more heralded sport on the east coast, it slowly is gaining popularity in other parts of the country, including Chicago and its suburbs.

At least 14 fencing clubs, sanctioned by the AFLA, are in the making in metropolitan Chicago. Several are or will be affiliated with schools, park districts and YMCAs.

"Next to swimming, fencing probably uses more muscles than anything else," said Schaumburg's Leo Turgeon. Turgeon, 47, has been running two fencing clubs in the Northwest suburbs — one in Schaumburg and one in Elk Grove Village — since 1972.

"It's individual participation not a spectator sport," Turgeon said. "Anyone can join. You don't have to be great.' Turgeon added that fencing combining combat with enjoyment, "helps keep me halfway in shape."

Turgeon's clubs are coordinated with the local park districts. In Schaumburg, it costs $10 for 10 weeks of fencing lessons. In Elk Grove Village, park district residents pay $4 for 10 weeks. Turgeon who has averaged 20 members in his Elk Grove Village club and 30 in his Schaumburg club, said, "A good club has between 15 and 25 members. That's very manageable."

Turgeon said one of the best aspects of fencing is that the whole family can enjoy it together. As far as athletics go, Turgeon said, outside of fencing, "Youngsters can't do much with their parents. But at home they can practice the fencing exercises together."

Anyone, from age seven and up, can learn to fence, said Glenn Kalin, fencing instructor for the Mount Prospect Park District. "We have people actively entering competition in their late 60s," said Kalin, a 27-year-old resident of Des Plaines. "They're able to compete without tiring or dying. And that's not so in other sports."

Fencing is evolving into a popular sport for women, too. "Some of the best fencing I've ever seen worldwide has been done by women," Nishimura said. "They're the cleanest, most stylish and competitive."

Nishimura said women's fencing is popular not only in Europe from whence the sport evolved, but on the east and west coasts of the United States. Part of the reason for the sport's growing acceptance in other parts of the country is that a select number of universities offer athletic scholarships to collegiate fencers.

Touche! A point is scored.

Many suburban high schools now are offering fencing as part of their physical education programs. "High school is definitely the place to learn," Nishimura said. "It would be beautiful if we could do it in the grammar schools, but the funds are more readily available for the high schools."

Nishimura said, however, that fencing has been relegated to a second class sport. "And when school budgets get tight," he explained, "the second class sports get dropped."

Kalin, ranked the No. 1 fencer at Notre Dame University when he attended that school from 1967-71, said, "It's a great sport for women. If you get a girl who's a dancer or fairly athletic, she'll pick it up easily." Kalin added that fencing, on the varsity level of women's intercollegiate competition, is "coming along."

"It's just beginning to attract women," Turgeon said. He said women previously were discouraged by the sport because of its physical intensity and the use of an actual weapon. "The chest area is the valid target and that discourages them," Turgeon said. "and it's the old saying — males are stronger and faster."

Turgeon added that females, "if they start at a young age and keep up with the grace and finesse, can keep up with it (fencing) pretty well."

Of the 100,000 amateur fencers nationwide — 270 of which reside in Chicagoland — the number of active female participants still is not proportional with the number of men, Nishimura said. "It's not considered one of the things women do yet,." he said. "Some are very fine fencers and can hold their own against any man. But they are discouraged for whatever reason. It's probably mostly sociological." Fencing has come a long way since the early 1700s when, in France, it saw its origin as gentlemen dueled with swords in quest of honor.

The 5-foot long sword used in the old days later gave way to the pistol for purposes of dueling. Yet the concept of attacking and defending with swords lived on, evolving into what Nishimura call "a sport of discipline, balance and control." As the sport developed, the 5-foot sword was trimmed to a lighter and more stylish 3 feet. The three modern types of fencing are foil, epee and saber. The difference among the three primarily lies in the shape and weight of the weapon and the body parts designated as the target area.

Two contestants situate themselves on a fencing strip for a bout. Today, most fencing competitions are scored electronically so that directors won't miss an obscure touche. Foils and epees are fitted with electrical attachments and special jackets are worn by competitors. The electrically sensitive jackets are wired to a recording device behind the fencers.

The sophisticated scoring technique has brought about many changes in technique as fencers refine their skills to make a proper score.

Fencers, if dressed properly, are well protected from the blade of the weapons. And in all AFLA sanctioned competition, fencers are required to wear standard fencing attire, including a very heavy 12-ounce double thickness canvas body jacket, leather gloves, a steel face mask and fencing shoes. Conventional tennis shoes also are acceptable footwear in a fencing bout.

The beginning equipment in foil — the learning weapon — is flexible enough that a novice could wear a sweatshirt, Nishimura said. A complete fencing outfit can be purchased for $60 and up.

Fencing has changed since the days of the knights, "when they just hacked at each other," Kalin said. "It has evolved into kind of a real science. It takes time to fence. It's sophisticated and fast. Medically speaking it is considered one of the all-around development sports.

"Besides the grace and style that are implicit, you need a tremendous amount of speed, balance and reflex. You need a tremendous amount of mental ability. It's a lot of think."

Antonio M. Nishimura salutes his opponent before the match begins.

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Seven Beauties" - Italian writer-director Lina Wertmuller's masterful examination of human ideals compromised by ruthless self-preservation stars Giancarlo Giannini as a World War II deserter whose Neapolitan machismo is so ingrained in his instinct for survival that he ends up "seducing" the sadistic female commandant of a Nazi concentration camp in vain hope of saving his neck. Her richest film to date. (R).

"The Omen" - Satan is at it again, this time channeling his monstrous powers through the innocent-looking five-year-old son of politico Gregory Peck and Lee Remick. (R).

"Silent Movie" - Mum's the word from Mel Brooks in this big-budget contemporary silent movie that unleashes a cascade of sight gags, pratfalls and broadly comic set pieces, linked to the connecting story of a minor studio's last-ditch efforts to avoid bankruptcy. Stars Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom Deluise. (PG).

"The Missouri Breaks" - Marlon Brando has a grand time chewing the Montana scenery as a wigged-out "regulator" hired to eliminate a gang of raucous horse thieves led by Jack Nicholson. Yet overall the tongue-in-cheek humor, graphic violence and existential ponderings do not cut it. (PG).

"Obsession" - A romantic suspense drama themed to a guilt-ridden New Orleans businessman who meets up with an exact double of his late wife 16 years after she and his daughter perished during a kidnap caper after he botched their ransom. Stars Cliff Robertson and Genevieve Bujold. (PG).

"Survive" - Dubbed Mexican screen version of the 1972 Andes plane crash whose survivors were forced to eat human flesh to stay alive until their miraculous rescue. A cheaply made, exploitative melodrama that has parlayed explicit scenes of cannibalism. (R).

"Harry and Walter Go to New York" - James Caan and Eliott Gould play a pair of broadly bumpling vaudevillians who finally make the grade as safecrackers at the turn-of-the-century. An unabashedly silly, but rather likable farce for easy summer laughter. (PG).

ARLINGTON - Arlington Heights - 255-2125 - "Survive" (R)

CATLOW - Barrington - 381-0777 - "Jaws" (PG).

MOUNT PROSPECT CINEMA - Mount Prospect - 392-7070 - Theater 1: "The Omen" (R); Theater 2: "Missouri Breaks" (PG).

DES PLAINES - Des Plaines - 824-5253 - "The Sunshine Boys" (PG) plus "Hearts of the West" (PG).

ELK GROVE - Elk Grove - 593-2255 - "The Omen" (R).

GOLF MILL - Niles - 296-4500 - Theater 1: "Harry and Walter Go To New York" (PG); Theater 2: "Obsession" (R); Theater 3: "Silent Movie" (PG).

PROSPECT - Mount Prospect - 253-7435 - "Murder By Death" (PG).

RANDHURST CINEMA - Mount Prospect - 392-9393 - "Harry and Walter Go to New York" (PG).

WILLOW CREEK - Palatine - 358-1155 - "7 Beauties" (R).

WOODFIELD - Schaumburg - 882-1620 - Theater 1: "Silent Movie" (PG); Theater 2: "Pom Pom Girls" (R).

PALWAUKEE MOVIES - Prospect Heights - 541-7530 - "At the Earth's Core" (PG).

TRADEWINDS - Hanover Park - 837-3933 - Theater 1: "Missouri Breaks" (PG); Theater 2: "The Omen" (R).

UFO:

exhausted, the search takes on new dimensions.

"We try to corroborate every sighting in someway," Hendry said. "When we get a report we have one of our investigators contact the person and conduct an interview. We contact all witnesses and try to find out if there were other witnesses. We check with the police for sightings. Often people who feel silly or are afraid to make a UFO report will contact the police to find out if anybody else reported something."

Airports in the vicinity of a sighting are contacted to find out if radar devices detected any unusual or unexplained signals "although many (technicians) ignore radar reports they can't explain or that aren't supposed to be there," Hendry said.

The national weather service is contacted to find out if there were any signs of strong vertical movement in the area at the time of a sighting.

In some cases, the UFO leaves behind physical traces — imprints in a field or on the grass, damaged trees and foliage, observers left in a daze, unexplained utility and phone outages, animals dead or mutilated, traces of radioactivity.

Hundreds of sightings in which physical traces have been left behind have been compiled into a copyrighted document prepared by Ted Phillips through the Center. His report, "Physical Traces Associated with UFO Sightings," was published in July 1975.

The first case listed in Phillips' report was documented two years before America was discovered in 1490 in Ireland. People attending a morning mass saw a disc-shaped object pass over the church several times. Cows in the area were left singed.

In 20 years, beginning in 1954, Phillips lists 10 UFO sightings, accompanied by physical evidence, occurring in Illinois.

In November 1954 in Kankakee, just south of Chicago, witnesses of a UFO saw white filaments falling to earth. A similar report was filed in September 1956 from Cherry Valley, a small village 75 miles northwest of Chicago.

Other Illinois sightings laced with physical evidence are on record in New Baden, Huey, Centralia, Dupo, O'Fallon and Greenville.

A depression in the earth left by a UFO often won't hold water. Traces of radioactivity are found. Within days of the sighting all vegetation including trees die.

The physical traces make it most difficult to dismiss the phenomena as poppycock. Students of UFO studies, however, see the similarity of witnesses' reports as further documentation.

"If it were left up to man's imagination the sightings would not be comparable," Hendry said. Of the 45,000 sightings cataloged (about half from the U.S.), many carry similar characteristics.

The witnesses are skeptics as well as believers, educated and uneducated, missionaries and natives of primitive lands. If the reports of such a cross section of the world's inhabitants were all in the witness' mind, the descriptions of the vessels would differ considerably, Hendry notes.

Still in a society that is used to having unusual phenomena explained within scientific limits, the UFO problem is dismissed as a hoax by laymen and scientists alike.

"I think we look to the next generation to solve the UFO problem" Hendry said. "Many scientists don't like to deal with subjects they can't explain. UFOs laugh at the properties of physics, they defy the laws of science. They are unearthly and that's part of the problem (of acceptance)."

Unearthly characteristics on record at the Center include vertical ascension at speeds which defy science as 20th Century man knows it. The vessels sometimes make humming sounds, have ports, domes, antennae, external lights which do not blink in a rhythmic pattern as lights on man's aircrafts. The UFOs feature light beams, vapor expulsion and sometimes occupants.

One case recorded in New Guinea in 1959 involves a missionary and several of his native followers who observed a UFO with four occupants. The missionary waved his arms. According to witnesses, the craft's occupants waved back.

Despite the cases on file, however, there remains many "show me" types. Coverage by the mass media, Hendry says, can hurt acceptance of UFO study more than help.

The attention given spectacular sightings by the media hurts credibility because, "One day a sighting makes national TV and the front page and the next day it's forgotten. There's really no follow-up."

Skeptics, believers and prophets of doom contact the Center in various ways, each trying to satisfy his own special interest.

"One night I was working late and when I left the Center there were two people waiting for me. They told me to put away my evil study and follow them. We get threatening letters and phone calls accusing us of being the antichrist and everything," the bearded follower of astronomy said shaking his head.

But the search goes on — trying to make sense of scientific nonsense. Plagued by the fear of the unknown and yet intrigued by the challenge of it, witnesses will continue to file their reports and UFO investigators will carry on their studies.

And if you should come upon an unidentified flying object some evening while taking a romatic stroll or vacationing under a clear summer sky, temper your enthusiasm or skepticism.

Hendry advises, "A bit of caution in the face of the unkown may be wise."

J. Allen Hynek leads the search

The Center for UFO Studies is a not-for-profit scientific organization supported by tax-deductible contributions. It is an educational organization, an association of scientists from various universities in the U.S. and abroad.

J. Allen Hynek, professor of astronomy at Northwestern University in Evanston is director of the center.

For more than 20 years Hynek served as astronomical consultant to the U.S. Air Force in their Projects Sign and Blue Book, which processed and studied sightings of unidentified flying objects reported to the Air Force.

Hynek also has served as associate director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass. where he was in charge of the U.S. Optical Satellite Tracking Program. He was responsible for tracking man's first artificial satellite as well as for some 270 volunteer "moonwatch" stations in various countries.

A native of Chicago, Hynek received his doctorate in astronomy from the University of Chicago. He has authored textbooks and technical papers in astrophysics. He is author of "The UFO Experience, A Scientific Inquiry" (Regnery, Chicago, 1972, Ballantine, New York 1974) and co-author of "The Edge of Reality" (Regnery, Fall 1975).

To report a sighting or receive information concerning the subject, write to Center for UFO Studies, 924 Chicago, Evanston, Ill. 60202 or call 491-1870.

White water wilderness

Running the rapids on America's rivers

Story by Genie Campbell and Lynn Asinof
Photos by Genie Campbell

STANLEY, IDAHO — In the Middle Fork of Idaho's Salmon River the rapids are named — Rubber, Waterwheel, Tappan Falls, Haystack and Velvet Falls. Behind each one is a story.

Boatmen for instance, like to talk about the time a raft got hung up on CB's Rock. It took two teams of mules to pull it off — or so they say.

Repeating of such tales is attracting a growing number of vacationers to white water float trips each year.

Offered to fit everyone's schedule and price range, river trips range from two-week floats to one-day excursions and cost anywhere from $20 for an afternoon including lunch, to $350-$400 for six-days and nights, almost twice that much for an extra week. Air fare is separate.

While there are plenty of rivers to raft throughout the United States, outfitters particularly dot the rivers in the Western states where beautiful scenery and wildlife are abundant.

Each river has its own personality. Outfitters choose appropriate rafts according to the speed and size of the current and rapids.

On the Colorado River, sturdy, motor-operated J-boats are used for the most part, because some of the most treacherous rapids in the country are found on this river.

"The Guiness Book of World Records" lists Lava Falls on the Colorado as the fastest rapids ever to be navigated. The river may attain a speed of 30 m.p.h. with waves boiling up to 12-feet high. When you experience Lava Falls, it is easy to understand why motors and experienced drivers are absolutely necessary.

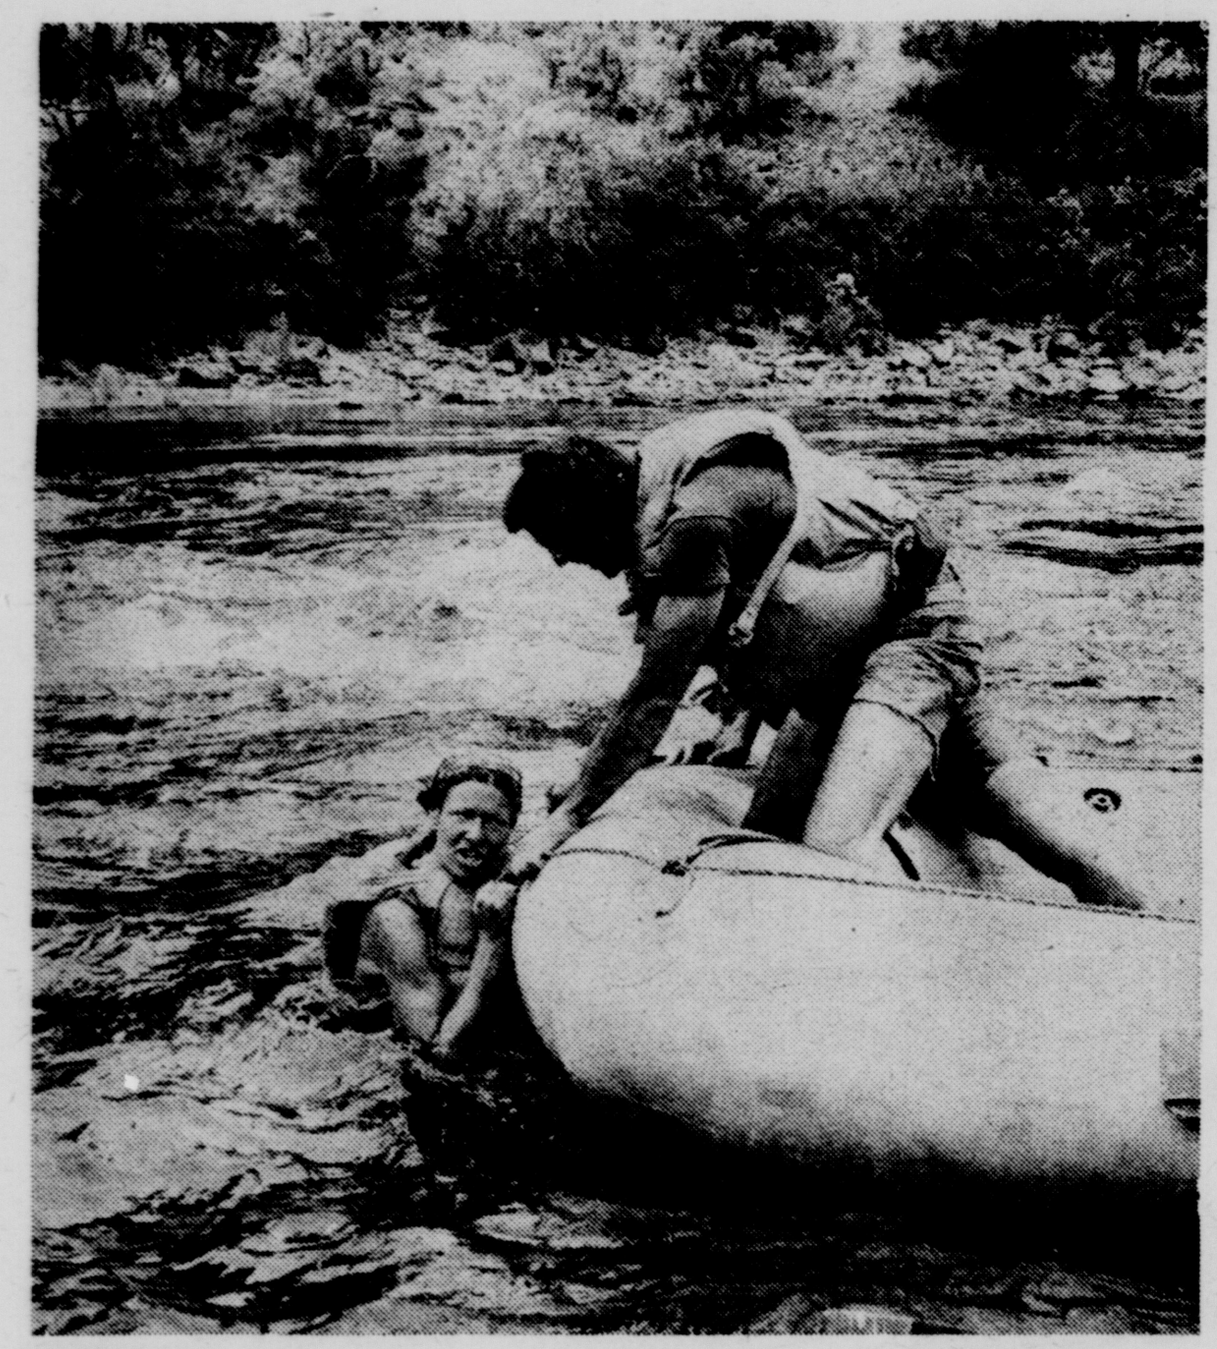

Other outfitters like wooden dories resembling New England ocean row boats because they are very stalwart.

However, the most popular kind of raft used is the smaller, inflatable one that will seat anywhere between two and six people. Usually a boatman equipped with oars rides on a raised platform in the middle.

Experienced river runners may prefer to float the river using a four-man paddle system, with riders sitting leg-over at each corner of the raft.

The rapids may not be as topsy-turvey on rivers where the smaller rafts are used, but vacationers will still experience the same

MAYBE SHE FELL in and maybe she didn't. Complaining of being "hot and dry" on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River will bring you only one thing — an instant dip.

White Water:

sensation of riding the rapids just because the rafts themselves are smaller.

Three popular trips originate in Idaho. Hells Canyon on the Snake River is run in late spring and early summer before July temperatures climb into the 100's.

Both the Main Fork and the Middle Fork of the Salmon River provide good river running well into the summer — until the water level drops too low.

The Middle Fork especially is noted for being a classic trip. The water is clean enough to drink straight from the river and the arid mountainside is home to bighorn sheep, elk, black bear, eagle and deer easily spotted from the river vantage point.

Vacationers are able to fish off the back of rafts during calm interludes though any brook trout caught must be thrown back.

The Middle Fork consists of 80 patches of rushing white water on 106 miles of river beginning at Daggar Falls outside of Stanley, Idaho, to the confluence with the Main Fork. The trip takes six days and five nights.

It's the rapids that make each trip exciting, white gushing water caused by mid-river boulders (affectionately called Indian love stones by the boatmen), six-foot drops and eddies.

With a licensed outfitter however, the trip is perfectly safe but still not one for either the faint of heart or the lover of luxury, though the meals themselves live up to gourmet standards.

Everything cooked outdoors seems to taste better — from fresh bacon and eggs in the morning to fried chicken, steak and even spaghetti at night.

But on a river like the Middle Fork of the Salmon, you can expect to be wet about 80 per cent of the time. As the rafts buck through the rapids, waves pour overboard often drenching the passengers and sometimes bringing on enough water to require a bail bucket.

"River rats," those hooked on the sport, will also tell you that's half the fun.

Light-weight foul weather gear can help, particularly on an overcast or rainy day schedule to prevent rivers from becoming overcrowded. Even with current traffic, raft and kayak groups are continually passing one another.

The rule of thumb is that anything that goes on the river must also be brought off. All garbage that can't be burned, is carried back in plastic bags.

Only biodegradable soap is allowed on the Middle Fork of the Salmon and it must be used above the high water line. This holds true even at the hot springs which provide natural showers all along the river's course.

One extra word of precaution. If you're considering a float trip for next spring or summer, don't delay in signing up. By the first of the year, many trips are already filled.

Talk to friends who have already river rafted to compare experiences. Contact travel agents who will have brochures on all the major outfitters. Two major ones are Jack Curry's Western Rivers Expeditions out of Salt Lake City, Utah and Eldon Handy in Stanley, Idaho.

though few complaints are ever heard. More often than not, the sun cooperates. Yet because the river temperatures average only 40 degrees, that first cold splash can be a shocker.

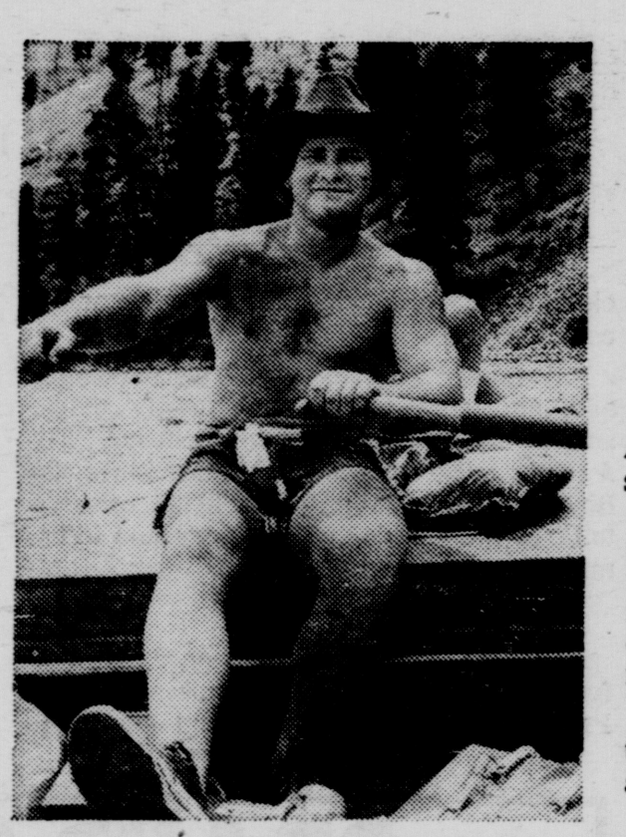

Special precaution is also taken to keep gear dry. Rafters are advised to pack all clothes in individual plastic bags which then go inside larger waterproof bags provided by the outfitters. Cameras and other supplies needed on board are stored in special ammunition boxes strapped to the rafts.

Learning to ride the rapids can be a bit harrowing at first though most vacationers by the second day sit back, relax and thoroughly enjoy each flash of white water instead of holding on for dear life.

Because of the increased popularity of white water float trips and growing environmental concern, steps have been taken to regulate the number and type of trips. All outfitters and boatmen must be licensed and each trip is scheduled with the National Forest Service, whose rangers occasionally make spot checks along the routes.

To alleviate competition over campsites, the Forest Service also assigns campgrounds for each trip, thus regulating the amount of distance traveled each day.

Beginning next season outfitters will be limited in the number of trips they can

Indian art focus of park exhibit

More than 100 pieces of native American art, created between 1850 and 1925 are being shown to the public for the first time in the National Park Service's traveling art exhibit "Indian Pride on the Move."

The exhibit will be on tour through many of America's smaller communities, Indian reservations and national park areas through the end of 1976. Works in the exhibit emphasize the art of the northern plains, western woodlands and plateau tribes. The collection includes beadwork, quillwork, hide paintings, carvings, weaving and musical instruments mounted for display in a 40-foot-long van.

During the summer and fall the exhibit travels through many of the Rocky Mountain and Southwestern states.

Information on the exhibit is available from the Office of Public Affairs, National Park Service, Washington, D.C. 20240.

How the working mother works it

by Elizabeth Mitchell

Working mothers are no longer a rarity. Last year in this country, more than half the mothers of preschool children were holding down full-time jobs. Still, respected child specialists urge mothers to stay at home — at least until their children start school — and many husbands insist that their wives can work only if they continue carrying the bulk of child-rearing and household responsibilities.

Obviously, there's a dire need for a new understanding between husbands and wives, as well as some plain old schedule juggling. Three new books, all by women who believe in marriage and the family but who "see the writing on the wall" for traditional arrangements, meet this need.

The women profiled in "Working Mothers" range from bluecollar or divorced women whose work is solely a source of needed income to affluent women whose work is solely a source of satisfaction. But no matter what their reasons for working, almost all speak of the heightened self-esteem their jobs bring.

In preparing to write "Working Mothers," author Jean Curtis interviewed more than 200 women and their husbands and children. The result is a warm and readable book, but also a very practical primer on "how to do it."

She offers advice on such practical concerns as the easiest time to go back to work; how to work out child care and division of household chores; and how to deal with new opportunities for extramarital sex with coworkers.

Curtis paints a realistic picture of the frustration, fatigue and loneliness of life as a working mother. "Working mothers tended to answer my query of their favorite fantasy with different versions of one basic theme: I'd like to have time to be alone, and read, or do whatever I want for a while. I have no time that is unscheduled."

"A Married Feminist" is less practical than Curtis' book, but equally thought provoking. Angela Barron McBride, a psychiatric nurse and mother of two girls, has written a personal and philosophical examination of the status of the modern American woman.

Punctuating the text are quotes from belles lettres, history, philosophy, religion and psychology. To illustrate her discussion of the enormous importance of cooking in the traditional view of woman as nurturer, McBride intersperses the following:

In Greece and Rome, during the Middle Ages, bakeries were often combined with brothels. A southern Brazilian dialect has a single word for "to eat" and "to copulate."

"Juggling" or "the Art of Balancing Marriage, Motherhood, and a Career" is what it's really all about. Letitia Baldrige tells her own story; a lively account of the day-to-day details of how she does it.

Baldridge is no ordinary working mother. A congressman's daughter, she has served as assistant to former Ambassador Clare Booth Luce at the American Embassy in Rome, as the first woman public relations executive at Tiffany's and as John F. Kennedy's social secretary. She currently runs a highly successful public relations firm.

It would be easy, but unfair, to dismiss this book. Baldridge's solution to the child care problem is an expensive nanny and her home is a large New York apartment overlooking Central Park. But her job and family seem more demanding than most, and she still manages to be an indefatigable businesswoman, wife and mother. Most important, she is a positive and resourceful woman.

Canadian commemorative series offered

The Canada Post Office Sept. 17 will issue four 10-cent commemorative stamps honoring the Iroquoian Indians. These are to be the last stamps in a series on Canadian Indian culture depicting artifacts, way of life, dress and symbolism.

Ashton-Potter Ltd. of Toronto will print 36 million stamps; the artifacts and way of life adhesives will be printed se-tenant as will the dress and symbolism issues.

The artifacts stamp includes photographs by Ray Webber of a corn husk, a turtle shell rattle, a false face mask, an earthenware vessel and a ball club, which were provided by the Royal Ontario Museum and the National Museums of Canada.

The way-of-life stamp is from a painting of an Iroquoian encampment by George Heriot. The dress and symbolism adhesives depict a ceremonial costume from a drawing by Lewis Parker, and an Iroquoian thunderbird interpreted by Georges Beaupre.

Marginal inscriptions, including the designers' names will appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The total production will bear general tagging.

Collectors desiring the first day cancellations should send their requests to the "Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A OB5" enclosing the cost of the stamps to be affixed plus a 15 cent service fee for each cover to be affixed with less than 50 cents postage. Your covers should specify, in the upper right hand corner, which stamp is desired. Remittance should be by international bank draft payable to "The Receiver General for Canada."

On Sept. 13 the Kingdom of Swaziland will release four stamps marking the country's accession to membership in Fifa, the world soccer association.

Denominations include 4-cent, 6-cent, 20-cent and 25-cent adhesives. Serviced first day covers are available for 70 cents (Swazi) each or you may send your own self-addressed envelopes to the "Swaziland Stamp Bureau, Post Office Box 555, Mbabane, Swaziland."

The Swazi postal service has also announced that on Jan. 1, 1977 the Stamp bureau will join the ranks of countries charging a fee for servicing philatelic mail orders. The amount of the fee has not been announced.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The student let East hold the first spade and won the continuation. Then he lost the club finesse to East's king. East led a third spade to clear the suit for his partner.

The student ran off the club suit while discarding a diamond from his own hand, West chucked a heart and two diamonds.

The student thought a while, took the heart finesse and was down one when it lost.

"How do you learn to handle such bad breaks?" asked the student. "Two finesses and both wrong. Could I have done anything?"

"Yes. You could and should have made your contract," replied the Professor.

Do you see how the student could have played safe against all bad breaks as long as West hadn't opened a three-card suit?

After winning that second spade the student should have led the queen of hearts. If West ducked the student would go after clubs and be sure of his contract. If West rose and cleared the spades the student would take and lose the club finesse, but East would not be able to lead a spade.

Shelby Lyman on chess

BEGINNER'S CORNER — hint and explanation: Black has some strong pawn moves.

A well-known and voluptuous actress, who frequently played at a famous chess club, showed up one day heavily scented and in exceptionally provocative dress. When a friend of hers inquired as to the reason, she explained in a humorous manner that she was scheduled to play her first game in her first club tournament and "wanted to win."

Several days later the two met again. This time our "femme fatale" was unusually subdued.

Her special efforts had been in vain. Her opponent, an extremely nearsighted 11-year-old, had beaten her in 15 moves. Throughout the game, his gaze had not wavered from the chessboard.

Ewfim Geller is the 51-year-old Soviet grandmaster who served as Boris Spassky's second during the latter's world championship match with Bobby Fischer. Though long regarded as one of the most talented players in the world, Geller has never qualified to play a world title match.

He tried most recently in the Biel Interzonal Tournament, where no doubt he had high hopes after a year of notable tournament successes.

But in the game below, Boris Gulko, one of the brightest of the young Soviet stars, dealt him a sharp rebuff.

Olga knows

ARIES [March 21-April 19]: You have an adventurous spirit as well as a questioning mind, Ari, and this week you get some answers which are long overdue. Freedom beckons. You are enchanted by that which is new. Week ends on key of F for frolic, fun and fiddle-dee-dee.

TAURUS [April 20-May 20]: There are those who think you, Taurus, are opinionated, stubborn and obsessed with sex. However, you and I know that you are simply determined, persistent and warm-hearted . . . right? Okay, so this week your big, warm heart goes flip-flop IN SPITE of your determination not to get involved. Week cuddles to a close.

GEMINI [May 21-June 20]: Everyone on the block knows you have a flair for words, Gem. Probably because you are constantly talking. Neighbor/associate has something of interest to tell, but you'll not hear that first word until you learn to shut up and listen. Have you ever tried adhesive tape? Just an idea.

CANCER [June 21-July 22]: You often listen with sympathy to the problems of others, but this week you won't want to hear anyone else's tale of woe. This week you want to sing the blues yourself, and SOMEBODY better listen, doggone it, after all the hours you've spent being a Wailing Wall. Week ends with a sniffle.

LEO [July 23-August 22]: Often accused of being pompous and dogmatic, Leo, it is a good idea to make a habit of reassessing your opinions. Help change this negative image by making better use of the natural, warm-hearted charm you possess in such abundance. Crazy week curls to a quiet close.

VIRGO [August 23-September 22]: Associate has the bead on you, Virgo, and this week tries to impress in outlandish way. You are underwhelmed. Business opportunity is presented. Grab it. Week ends on note of satisfaction.

LIBRA [September 23-October 22]: To you, Libra, balance is everything. [Well, ALMOST everything!] You weren't born under the sign of the scales for nothing, you know. The only worthwhile relationship for you is one in which the give and take are well balanced. This week you walk the wire. Again. Keep eyes on distant goal.

SCORPIO [October 23-November 21]: A certain intensity permeates entire week, Scorp. You refuse to do things by halves. You want to live life to the fullest, even if it means overindulging yourself. Whether work or play, it's whole hog or nothing.

SAGITTARIUS [November 22-December 21]: You are not one to go through the buffet of life taking only the side dishes, Saj. You also want the main course and very often "double helpings" as well! Others envy you your capacity to enjoy. Don't change. Week ends on note of G, for giggle.

CAPRICORN [December 22-January 19]: Charming as you are, Cap, you DO have one fatal flaw. You are too demanding. You demand too much from others, and you certainly demand too much from yourself. If present goal is realistic, you'll make it. But, Cap, you shouldn't push every walking minute. Week ends with a sigh.

AQUARIUS [January 20-February 18]: Your mind has always been much appreciated, Aquari, but during next seven week phase you will be appreciated for your hidden assets. Or attributes. Or virtues. Or whatever. You will understand. New interest compounded as complex week cruises to a close.

PISCES [February 19-March 20]: Do you find it strange, Pisces, that so many of life's strays wind up on your doorstep? You shouldn't, for the scent of compassion surrounds you and others pick it up instantly. Avoid additional responsibilities this week. Your own pet needs attention.

Novels provide basis for new fall TV series

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — The success of last season's Rich Man. Poor Man — a 12-hour version of the Irwin Shaw best-seller — on ABC is looked on in some television circles as the biggest thing to happen since TV discovered cops and robbers.

Last season was, most critics agree, one of the worst in TV history. But Rich Man, Poor Man was such a blockbuster that there is a tendency to forget all the other disasters and just to remember that one monster success.

That's just what TV planners are doing. They are hopping on the bandwagon and next season will see a proliferation of novels-for-TV.

These long versions of novels offer some distinct advantages to the TV planners. You can hook an audience for weeks. You have time to build new stars (look at Peter Strauss and Nick Nolte of Rich Man, Poor Man). And you can attract big-name actors through the generally superior quality of the material.

Because of all this, two of the three networks are heavily into planning more novels-for-TV next season. The third, CBS, is currently finishing off a general overhaul of its programming department and the new staff has not yet had a chance to plan very far ahead.

But even they will probably jump into the novels-for-TV pool. One CBS executive said, "It's too early to announce anything, but we'll probably do one or two next year, anyhow."

But the others, ABC and NBC, have many projects in the works. Some of them even sound exciting.

One of the most ambitious is ABC's "Roots." This is based on a novel by black writer Alex Haley, which won't be published until September. In it, he traces his family origins back through slavery to Africa, then back again.

ABC says it's too early to say how long this will run — it may be as long as 14 hours — but the first three-hour script is written. It's the work of William Blinn, the man who wrote Brian's Song, and an ABC spokesman calls it, "the finest script I've ever read."

NBC will have a continuing program, called "Best Sellers," which will be devoted entirely to dramatizations of novels. They have already scheduled several books for the TV treatment — Taylor Caldwell's "Captains and Kings," Thornton Wilder's "The Eighth Day," Irwin Shaw's "Evening In Byzantium" and Anton Myrer's "Once An Eagle."

These will vary in length. Charles Engle, vice-president for TV of Universal, who is making the series, says "Captains and Kings," which will be first, will probably run for nine hours. Others will be shorter.

Engels says the novels-for-TV differ from the ordinary TV movies in one critical respect.

"The TV movies," he says, "are based on a 'what if' premise — such as 'what if' a train going down hill loses its brakes. But with these novels, we are not selling a 'what if' situation, we are selling people. We are asking the audience to come in, sit down, meet our people, join with them and get involved in what happens to them."

There are problems inherent in this form of TV, however. For one thing, re-runs are difficult. With ordinary episodic TV, it doesn't matter which show you re-run when — Episode 7 can be re-run before Episode 4. But with this form, the re-runs must be in sequence to be understandable.

Then, too, the entire script must be ready before shooting can begin. Episodic TV operates on a catch-as-catch-can system; the scripts are often written during shooting. But with these novels, that is obviously impossible, so it takes more planning and more work.

NBC will also televise novels next season on programs other than Best Sellers. One such is Flora Rheta Schreiber's "Sybil," the story of a woman with 16 split personalities.

This will have Sally Field as the woman and Joanne Woodward as her psychiatrist. It is being produced by Jacqueline Babbin, a TV veteran.

Miss Babbin laughs at the notion that novels-for-TV are a new form. She says that back, somewhere around 1959 or 1960, she made a series called Family Classics, which included version of such great novels as "The Three Musketeers" and "Vanity Fair."

"And," she says, "I think the current trend started with the English import, 'Forsythe Saga.' "

Engel gives credit for starting the long form of novels-for-TV to his studio's "Vanished," a three-hour version of the Fletcher Knebel novel. And then, of course, came the TV edition of Leon Uris' "QB VII," a smash hit.

So far, all of them have been successful. Engel believes that's because the public likes the fact that these stories all have a beginning, a middle and an end.

"It is the fact that they have a definite ending," he says, "that makes them different. Every story is resolved, one way or another, just as in a book."

It's still too soon to say how profitable these will be. Engel says Rich Man, Poor Man, despite its enormous success, lost money for the studio, although the network wound up with a profit.

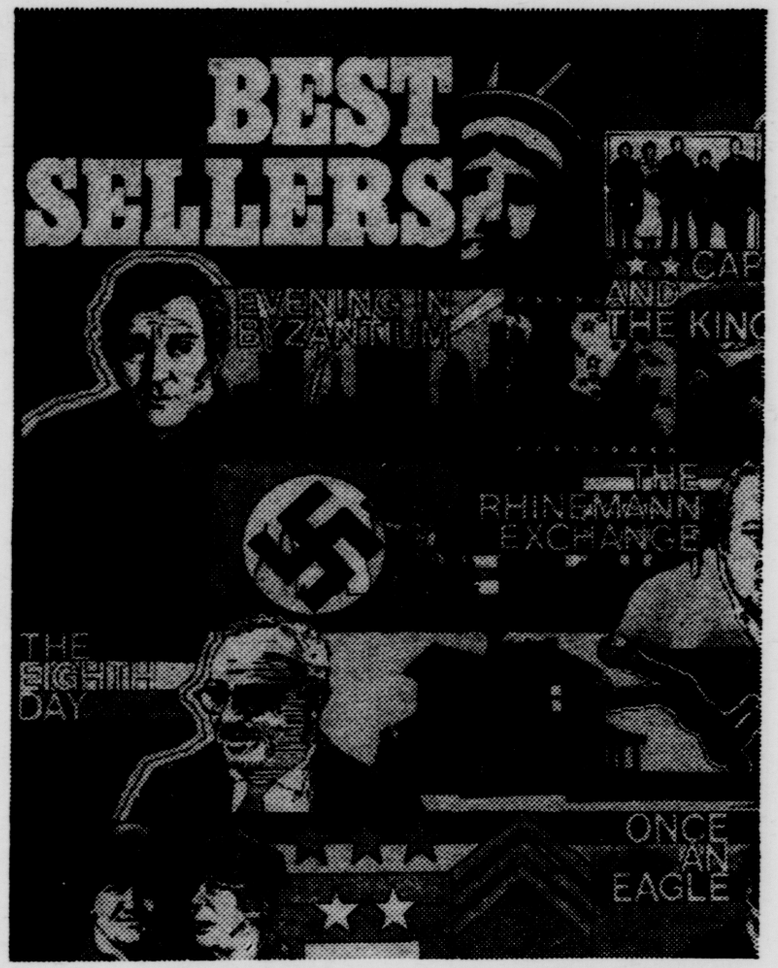

As far as the author of the book is concerned, there is nothing hazy about the economics. Getting your book on national TV for several weeks is a tremendous boost to sales.

When Rich Man, Poor Man came out, the paperback publisher reissued it. At last count, some three million copies of the paperback had been sold since the story appeared on TV. The author, Irwin Shaw, should be happy.

Because of that success story, the procedure will be followed in the future. Already "Captains and Kings" has been reissued, and the author and publisher are eagerly awaiting a bonanza.

While it may be "sex and violence" that attracts people to movie box offices, the novels-for-TV offer the same thing — only with a veneer of respectability. Engel uses the euphemism "romance and adventure" instead of "sex and violence." But it's really the same thing.

And it seems to be working — at least the networks are counting heavily on the gimmick next season.

BEST SELLERS become TV blockbusters in the plans of NBC programming executives. Spurred on by the success of Rich Man, Poor Man, NBC is running a continuing series of novels-for-television this season.

Q. Why doesn't Vincent Van Patten have a series of his own? Every time he gets on a show they cancel it before he has a chance.

A. It has been his misfortune to be in a couple of flyweight series. "Apple's Way" and "Three for the Road." But he's getting another big chance. He's going to co-star in a special two-hour pilot episode on "The Six Million Dollar Man." If it goes well, he will become — would you believe — The Bionic Boy, honestly!

Vincent VanPatten

Richard Hatch

Q. Is it true that Richard Hatch, formerly of the soap opera, "All My Children," will be replacing Michael Douglas on "The Streets of San Francisco"? When will he begin? A.F.

A. Yes, it's true. The show will open its season Thursday, September 16 with a two-hour show in which Douglas is disposed of.

Q. Settle an argument. How long has "Hawaii Five-O" been on the air? R.B.

A. It will be starting its ninth season. And remember, nice people don't fight.

Q. There was supposed to be a series this fall with Stefanie Powers, but I haven't heard anything about it lately. Is it still going to be on? J.P.

A It will get on eventually. It's titled "Feather and Father" and it was bumped from the fall schedule when ABC decided to do a weekly series of "Rich Man, Poor Man". But production has gone ahead and it will probably be on in January.

Eddie Albert "a find" for Switch producer

Glen Larson, executive producer of the "Switch" series, feels he got a real bargain when he hired veteran actor Eddie Albert to costar with Robert Wagner in the show.

"Eddie's not only a fine actor," says Larson, "but he's the best technical adviser on con men in this town."

Albert's wife, Margo, agrees with Larson.

"Eddie hears from every confidence man west of the Mississippi River at least once a year," she says. "They all know he's willing to put money into any crazy scheme."

"She's exaggerating," says Albert. "I haven't heard from some of those guys in at least 20 years. Others just phone to say hello. Of course, they sometimes want a few hundred dollars to help care for their sick mother, but otherwise it's just a social call."

"Switch," of course, has Wagner and Albert playing private detectives who specialize in helping the victims of elaborate confidence games.

"The plots were becoming so complicated that our fans were complaining," says Albert. "That's partly because I was giving the script writers some of my own ideas."

Eddie has some good ones, all based on his own exteriences.

"There was the guy who said he had discovered the secret of hydrogen," says Eddie. "He came to the studio one day when I was filming the 'Green Acres' series and told the guard he had to see Eddie Albert. Well, hydrogen is nonpolluting and there IS an inexhaustible supply. The guy was sure it would soon replace all other forms of power.

"He probably was right.

The only time the Red Cross has to run ads like this is after hurricanes, tornadoes, typhoons, earthquakes, fires and floods.

The first responsibility of the American Red Cross is to help people in trouble. And over the past 12 months we've given emergency aid (food, housing, clothing or medical care) to over a quarter of a million people. As a result, we face the balance of this year millions of dollars short of disaster relief funds. So we're asking you for help, to pass along to someone who needs it. People are seldom ready for disaster. But we have to be.

The only time the Red Cross has to run ads like this is after hurricanes, tornadoes, typhoons, earthquakes, fires and floods.

The first responsibility of the American Red Cross is to help people in trouble. And over the past 12 months we've given emergency aid (food, housing, clothing or medical care) to over a quarter of a million people. As a result, we face the balance of this year millions of dollars short of disaster relief funds. So we're asking you for help, to pass along to someone who needs it. People are seldom ready for disaster. But we have to be.
